Canada Jobless Total Edges Up

But Declines In B.C.

OTTAWA (CP)—Unemployment across Canada rose to 659,000 last month, an increase of 9,000 during a time when unemployment figures usually go down, the manpower department and the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported today.

British Columbia, however, bucked the trend along with the Prairies and Quebec, and recorded 72,000 jobless, down 1,000 on March.

B.C.'s percentage rate for April was 8.1 per cent unemployed, down from the 8.2 per cent March rate, but still above the national average of 7.8 per cent.

The joint report by the manpower department and statistics bureau said the national increase in jobs available between March and April "was considerably less than usual for this time of year." The number of people employed in April was an estimated 7,737,000, compared with 7,686,000 in March — an increase of only 51,000 while there were 60,000 more people in the labor force.

Because of slower-than-usual growth of new job opportunities, this spring, the seasonally-adjusted rate of unemployment shot up sharply to 6.7 per cent from 6.0 in March. In actual terms, the unemployment rate remained unchanged, however, at 7.8 per cent.

The actual figures show the percentage of the work force that is actually unemployed. The seasonally-adjusted figure is computed in order to take into account the factors such as winter or spring seasons

Some Not Helping —Benson

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Edgar Benson said Wednesday that some provinces — showed they "really do not care about inflation" after agreeing last year to help fight it.

He told the Commons the problem of inflation was discussed with the provinces and they agreed that some wage guides should be followed by both the federal and provincial governments.

"I must say that beyond the meeting at which this was agreed, some of the provinces were not noteworthy in carrying out the voluntary guidelines with regard to wage settlements in respect of their own employees."

Mr. Benson spoke in reply to questions from opposition MPs about putting the subject of unemployment on the agenda of next month's federal-provincial conference in Victoria. The conference was originally intended to deal mainly with constitutional reform.

Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield asked whether the provinces agreed to fight inflation to the extent of causing higher unemployment.

PROVINCES CONSULTED

Mr. Benson said the provinces were consulted on anti-inflation policies at meetings of premiers and prime ministers, and at meetings of provincial treasurers and finance ministers.

"This (inflation) was agreed to be the major problem in Canada and . . . it was agreed that certain things, including some wage guidelines, should be adhered to by the provincial and federal governments," Mr. Benson said.

David Orlikow (NDP—Winnipeg North) asked whether Manitoba had not entered a reservation to the agreement, saying that rents and profits should be restrained as well as wages.

Mr. Benson said that was true, but he added:

"It was also indicated by some provinces—as was indicated by some members of the opposition—that they really do not care about inflation."

ROYAL PARTY BACK AT WINDSOR CASTLE

Times News Services

LONDON — The Queen, Prince Philip and Princess Anne returned to Windsor Castle to a bit of unwanted excitement after their non-security-conscious tour of British Columbia.

The Queen was told that a telephoned bomb threat forced Princess Margaret and 1,400 other persons to evacuate the Chichester festival theatre Wednesday night. A police search, however, failed to locate an explosive device.

Automatic Suspension For Drivers Ended

The provincial government has abandoned its policy of automatic 30-day suspension of drivers convicted of impaired driving.

Attorney-General Leslie Peterson said today the move results from a B.C. court of appeals decision quashing a suspension.

He said he can't argue with the court's view that the suspensions should be handed out only after an inquiry into each case.

This "procedural defect" will be corrected by the motor vehicles branch, Peterson said.

But he warned that this doesn't mean a "go soft policy" is being instituted as a result of the court decision.

"If anything, it will be the reverse," said Peterson.

He also repeated earlier suggestions that the government may introduce legislation next year to make the automatic 30-day suspensions acceptable to the courts.

The good thing about the automatic suspensions was that there were no exceptions for anyone, Peterson said.

Forests Ablaze In Central B.C.

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — A forest fire, which burned over 600 acres 15 miles south of here, jumped its northern boundary on Wednesday and threatened some private homes.

There is no immediate danger to Prince George and its suburbs.

Assistant district forester Bill Bishop said water bombers were called in. He described it as a particularly bad start to the fire season of any year. The fire broke out Tuesday and was out of control by Wednesday afternoon.

More than 500 men were fighting 98 fires in the Prince George district. Twenty-five of the fires had broken out since Tuesday. A total of eight aircraft and 110 tractors were attacking the fires.

A house near Bixon, about 30 miles south of this central B.C. city was destroyed by a forest fire Tuesday. At Crescent Spur, 95 miles east of Prince George, a deserted railway station and store were destroyed by a 250-acre fire that twice jumped the Fraser River.

Winds in th Prince George area were at 20 miles an hour out of the south. The forecast called for 15-mile-an-hour southeast winds today. The weather continued hot and dry.

In Victoria, the B.C. Forest Service reported 174 forest fires burning in the province and said several in the Peace River district were major problems. Strong southwest winds were forecast for the Peace River later in the week.

Labor-Short Japan Wants West To Make Semi-Finished Products

Times News Services

VANCOUVER — A growing labor shortage has already forced Japan to expand some of its labor intensive industries to its Asian neighbors and this trend may also bring work to western Canada, a Japanese steel executive said Wednesday.

Tadayoshi Yamada, executive council member of Nippon Steel Corp., told the Pacific Basin Economic Co-operation Council that Japan has a minimal population growth and is critically short of land.

As a result, he said, the country must put work out to countries with spare labor and manufacturing facilities.

SEMI-FINISHED

The Japanese government and industry, he added, will encourage western Canadian industrialists from Manitoba to British Columbia to develop several base mineral products into semi-finished industrial items for export to Japan.

Yamada said the process will be aided by a liberalization of foreign exchange regulations and an easing of import controls by his country.

Robert Bonner, vice-chairman of MacMillan Bloedel Ltd., a giant in the forest products industry, said British Columbia businessmen for years have urged removal of Japanese barriers to the importation of semi-manufactured goods.

"Indeed," he said, "the Japanese moves appear to be in response to Canadian urgings."

He said a direct consequence of an enlightened and co-operative Japanese trading policy could be an expansion of smelter facilities and the founding of a serious iron and steel industry in western Canada.

The PBECC consists of five founding members — Australia, Canada, Japan, New Zealand and the U.S. Guest participants at the conference are Hong Kong, Singapore, Indonesia, the Philippines, South Korea and South Vietnam.

The conference today considers in closed session an American proposal for an international investment charter, which would set out the rights and responsibilities of corporations and host countries regarding industrial projects and investments.

A basic principle of the charter would be the responsibility of investors to "proceed in ways that will contribute to established economic and social development programs" in the developing countries.

The host country would conversely be responsible for developing an investment environment "conducive to the flourishing of private enterprise in the interests of all parties involved."

NO VOTE DATE SET—THATCHER

REGINA (CP) — Premier Ross Thatcher said Wednesday night the cabinet has not decided on the date for a provincial election in Saskatchewan although it likely will be either in June or October.

He denied reports that he had told a Columbus, Ohio, audience there will be a provincial election within one month.

Brinco Will Get Nod For Stikine Power

Long before a major environmental study has been done in the area, it is "basically" a certainty that there will be power development on the Stikine River system in Northwest B.C., Resources Minister Ray Williston indicated today.

WILLISTON
. . . looking north

Williston was commenting in an interview on reports that British Newfoundland Corporation Ltd. of Montreal is involved in studies of power development on the Iskut, a tributary of the Stikine, about 200 miles northwest of Prince Rupert.

He said the cabinet environment and land use committee wouldn't conduct an ecological study of the area until a proposal for development is received.

Williston is chairman of the committee which has been given the official job of making major environment and land use decisions.

RESTRICTED

He indicated the committee would be restricted to deciding the methods and nature of development rather than the basic question of whether development should take place.

Williston said a power supply in the area, coupled with the extension of the provincially owned Pacific Great Eastern Railway to Dease Lake by 1974, would provide the missing links for a major mineral development.

He said that B.C. Hydro and Power Authority, now

Britain's ECM Hopes: Almost Certain

By HAROLD MORRISON

LONDON (CP) — Barring some last-minute upset, it now appears that Britain's major negotiations to join the European Common Market may be completed by July, opening the way for her formal admittance by January, 1973.

British commentators, supported by Canadian trade experts here as well as European observers, all view the latest round of bargaining at Brussels as a big breakthrough, though some key issues still remain to be resolved.

These include the future of sterling as an international reserve currency, the future of New Zealand dairy products in the British market and the question of whether the Caribbean countries will accept the idea of association with an enlarged European bloc to safeguard their sugar markets.

Opinion polls suggest that a majority of the British people still remain to be convinced that entry into the Common Market will be to their benefit. A big anti-market lobby continues its criticism and warnings that entry will push up British food prices and force Britain to pay large subsidies to French farmers.

But in Prime Minister Heath's government there is confidence that the Conservative party will not crack in parliamentary debate and that a vote in favor of entry is assured providing the remaining issues can be resolved.

Some of them, such as the future of sterling, may be settled in the Anglo-French summit in Paris next week between Heath and President Georges Pompidou.

Others may be resolved at the next Common Market bargaining session in Luxembourg June 7.

One key issue is whether New Zealand dairy markets can be safeguarded. Some British observers suggest this could turn out to be the crucial barrier since there is much sentiment in Britain in support of New Zealand's future.

Canada gained at least one important concession during the Brussels bargaining—agreement by the six that duty-free imports of newsprint will be safeguarded through a quota system. A number of other raw materials, such as wood pulp and plywood, will be given similar treatment.

But there is concern in official Canadian quarters that enlargement of the Common Market through extension of the association principle to the Caribbean and other regions will hurt Canadian exports. These countries which accept association must give the Common Market tariff and trade preferences.

that usually affect employment figures over a period of several months. It is regarded by economists as a better indicator of unemployment trends.

While there was an 11,000 reduction in the number of unemployed people aged 55 or more, there was a sharp increase of 20,000 in the number of younger workers looking for jobs. For this under-25 group, the seasonally-adjusted unemployment rate shot up to 12.3 per cent last month, from 11.1 per cent in March. 5

While the increase in the over-all unemployment figure was contrary to the trend expected, a finance department spokesman said it was not unprecedented. There have been many cases in the past in which one month's unemployment figure appeared to bounce out of line, and next month's report could show an equally dramatic shift towards lower unemployment, he said.

	April 1971	Mar. 1971	April 1970
Labor force	8,396	8,336	8,198
Employed	7,737	7,686	7,654
Unemployed	659	650	544

Regionally, unemployment rose in the Atlantic provinces and Ontario but declined in Quebec, the Prairies and British Columbia.

The decline in Quebec, however, was slight and insufficient to pull down the seasonally-adjusted trend rate which rose to 8.4 per cent, the highest in the country.

LABOR FORCE UP

The report said that compared with a year earlier, the labor force last month was up by 198,000 or 2.4 per cent while employment was up by only 83,000 or 1.1 per cent. The number of unemployed persons was up by 115,000 or more than 21 per cent.

There was the usual springtime increase in employment last month in agriculture and construction. But the increase in trade was less than usual, and there were fewer jobs available in the service industries and government, in manufacturing and in transportation.

The figures are compiled from a monthly survey of 30,000 households conducted by the statistics bureau and analysed by the manpower department. The survey, taken last month for the week ended April 17, covers all Canada except the northern territories and Indian reserves.

Not counted are students still in school full time, housewives not seeking outside work, and those too old or otherwise unable to work, voluntarily idle or retired.

The seasonally-adjusted figure of 6.7 per cent of the labor force unemployed in April was the highest since last September, when it was 6.8. The figure had been declining, except for a small bump upwards in December, and reached six per cent in March, giving weight to government assurances that the peak of unemployment had been passed.

Fine Boosted

EDMONTON (CP) — A fine imposed on an Alberta doctor convicted of an assault that resulted in the loss of the victim's eye was increased to $2,500 from $350 in Supreme Court.

Dr. Brennan was convicted of assault causing bodily harm for attacking 32-year-old William Gusulak of Manning During a party at the Manning Medical Clinic on Aug. 25.

Crown Prosecutor J. W. K. Shortreed asked the court for a jail sentence in the case, saying that the crown appealed the sentence imposed because of "the absolute ferocious violence" of the assault.

Shadow Mischief

Welfare Route For Hikers Cut

By PETER McNELLY

For some travelling young people, life on the road this summer will be no lark.

Some of these people, particularly those in the 14 to 18 age group, are runaways or have other troubles causing them to leave their home towns.

Clearly, they don't get welfare. It's not provincial policy to give welfare to persons under 19 except in special cases.

Victoria city welfare director Alex Davidson said today his offices on Cook and Panodra Streets refer people in the 14 to 18 age group to the Family and Children's Service.

Gordon Welsh, director of treatment services for the F and CS, said today the summer always means an increase in the number of troubled young transients coming to the agency for counselling.

Last week, the F and CS handled between seven and 10 cases, he said, and this likely will increase once the high schools close at the end of June.

But Welsh said he dosen't forsee a dramatic increase in this problem compared with last year's situations.

He said some of the younger people coming to the agency's offices at 1627 Fort are frightened, confused or need to get something off their chests.

Family and Children's Service social workers always are available to talk things over, and they will try to work out ways of getting the youngsters back home.

Staff can call parents and work out a way of putting the youngster on a train or plane, with the parents paying what part of the cost they can afford.

Or, Welsh said, if the individual says things are so bad back home that he doesn't want to go back, the F and CS will contact the appropriate welfare or children's aid society to arrange further counselling.

No Direct Fererrals Made

Many referrals to the F and CS come from Cool-Aid. Cool-Aid staff worker Laurie Smith said today the group doesn't make direct referrals any more, but simply points out what assistance is available here.

Smith added that many young people won't have anything to do with welfare offices any more because, "after travelling around you know you get a bad reception."

"I can probably count on one hand the number of people who have asked us about welfare in the last eight months," Smith said. "They don't even pay attention to welfare agencies any more."

Young transients aged 19 and over are not given welfare unless they can prove residence. This is contrary to the spirit of the federal welfare law, the Canada Assistance Plan, but B.C.'s department of rehabilitation and social improvement never has accepted the principles of the federal act.

WANTS CONTROL

The effect of provincial policy is to make it very difficult for young people to get welfare. This is shown by Welsh's statement that 50 per cent of the local youngsters in the 16 to 18 age group who come to the F and CS for advice decide to drop the matter before going through with applying for welfare.

DETERRENT

"They say, 'if it's that much hassle to get welfare, I don't want it.' I don't agree that it should be like this, but it is a deterrent," Welsh said.

The F and CS will refer local young people to city welfare if it is evident that they have no intention of returning home and cannot find other means of support.

When it is evident that strong family and emotional problems exist, the F and CS can take the young person into its care and can call upon a variety of counselling and treatment methods.

Union Fight Closes Projects

VANCOUVER (CP) — Lathers' union members were picketing selectively at seven construction sites today in their jurisdictional dispute with the carpenters' union.

Union business agent Courtenay Burton said the pickets went up at a Chilliwack General Hospital extension and an Air Canada project at Vancouver International Airport to house the Boeing 747 aircraft.

The lathers were also picketing the Ocean Cement headquarters at Marpole, a medical building and an office building in Vancouver, an apartment project in Burnaby and a school annex.

C. J. Connaghan, head of the Construction Labor Relations Association, said his organization wants to assess the extent of the actual shutdown by other trades refusing to cross the picket lines before making a move.

In Victoria, a spokesman for the United Brotherhood of Carpenters said there are no indications of picket lines locally.

He said that generally the Vancouver Island Building and Construction Trades Council has taken a position against jurisdictional picket lines "and I hope we can maintain that good record."

Car Plows Into Crowd —4 Persons Injured

VANCOUVER (CP) — An auto involved in a two-car collision plowed into a crowd of pedestrians Wednesday afternoon, sending four to hospital.

One woman, Mrs. Elsie Terhume, 58, of Vancouver, suffered the most serious injuries, but was reported in good condition in hospital here Thursday. She received internal injuries and a fractured hip.

Police said the three other pedestrians were released after treatment in hospital.

hard-pressed to meet its rapidly-growing power load, could not provide power to the area and B.C. would welcome private industry building the electrical facility.

TAKE POWER

The government has made it quite plain to Brinco that in future B.C. Hydro might requisition the power that was developed with "proper compensation."

First indication of Brinco's interest came from a brief reference in the company's 1970 report.

Brinco is largely involved in water, mineral and timber resource development in Labrador.

The company which Brinco has brought in to do its development work in B.C. is Iskut Pulpower Ltd., which is still partially owned by Glenn Crippen of North Vancouver, a consulting engineer.

Thomas Elliott, manager of the B.C. and Yukon Chamber of Mines, described the area involved as "one of the most promising mineral areas in B.C. It is tremendously important to us."

The U.S. mining giant Kennecott Corp. has spent an estimated $6 million in proving up what is estimated to be a one-million-ton ore body with grades running as high as one per cent copper.

Meanwhile, a provincial fisheries official said there is concern for the effect of any power development proposal on the salmon fisheries of the river system.

There is also concern that any investigation by fisheries departments would come "as usual, after the fact" of major development decisions.

He said that five potential dam sites have been discussed in the past and the choice of which one to build would be critical for the fisheries of the area.

The government has been warned in the legislature in recent years that the delicate ecology of the northern half of the province will require great care to avoid environmental disasters.

The land environment and land use committee this year was given the job of making the big development decisions before huge sums had been spent on projects which in effect forced the hand of pollution control authorities.

Williston admitted in the legislature that this is what happened in the case of Utah Construction and Mining which was allowed to dump 93 million gallons of effluent daily into Rupert Inlet on Northern Vancouver Island by the pollution control branch.

Williston said today that the environment committee will still be in a position to judge the desirability of development proposals.

Stay Away Warning Issued

Rehabilitation Minister Phil Gaglardi announced today there are no jobs in B.C. for people from other provinces and they should stay home.

Gaglardi called a press conference to say he is asking B.C. industry to give preference to B.C. residents wherever possible when hiring.

He said "we'll do our best" for people who do come from other provinces but there is only enough economic growth going on here to handle the labor force already in the province.

"If you're coming to B.C. to work, you'd better think again," Gaglardi said to the people of Canada.

He also repeated earlier criticism of federal programs encouraging summer travel and called for Ottawa to use the money to give each province $5 million or $10 million to solve its own unemployment problems instead of shipping people across the country.

Gaglardi's warning was reminiscent of similar statements in the past from former welfare minister Dan Campbell, who often told "hippies" and other potential welfare recipients to turn around and go home.

RUSSIANS SAY POLLUTION LOSS HITS 6B RUBLES

The birds had the misfortune to alight on a swampy inlet of the Caspian Sea, one of the most polluted bodies of water in the Soviet Union.

The swans' feathers became coated with the oily mess, the government newspaper Izvestia reported. People from the town of Guryev, on the Caspian's northern shore, scrubbed the birds with detergent and sent them on their way.

Such incidents are becoming increasingly common and the Soviet Union in the last five years or so has started to think about preserving its water resources, after 50 years of all-out industrialization.

In the last few months the Soviet press has painted a grim picture of once-sparkling rivers running with manure and industrial wastes, seas splotched with oil slicks, and rare creatures such as the caviar-bearing Beluga sturgeon and white swans dying because of man's abuse of their habitat.

"Losses due to water pollution are estimated by scientists at six billion rubles a year," said Boris N. Bogdanov, chief of the agriculture ministry's department for preservation of natural resources. That is equivalent to $6.6 billion.

"Rivers are polluted by industrial and municipal sewage which is not subject to purification," Bogdanov added.

Consideration for Environment

"And the sanitary condition of all towns and villages must be improved."

The Caspian Sea provides 90 per cent of the world's sturgeon catch and 95 per cent of the black caviar. The sturgeon has been fighting a losing battle against pollution and dams that cut off his spawning grounds in the Volga River, the Caspian's main source.

The northern part of the sea is stained by hundreds of slicks from offshore oil rigs and oil derricks and refineries on shore. Soviet scientists report also that the Caspian has dropped more than seven feet since 1931 and is at its lowest level in 1,500 years.

In 1968, the government ordered installation of anti-pollution shields on all the Caspian's offshore oil rigs, declared the northern portions a fish preserve with stricter penalties for poaching, and installed water purification plants at 100 industrial enterprises along the Volga.

Even if no pollutants foul the sea, there is still the residual problem of old pollution to be cleared up, and oil drilling still competes with sturgeon fishing.

Some scientists feel it is too late to correct damage already done. It takes 30 years for sturgeon to reach spawning size. If all the adult fish die off, there won't be any new parents for many years.

268 Graduates Win $3,800

OTTAWA (CP) — Awards valued at $3,800 each have been awarded to 268 graduate students across Canada in the fields of medicine, pharmacy and dentistry, the Medical Research Council announced today.

The students ar undertaking full-time training and research leading to a master of science or doctor of philosophy degrees. They include five women who will begin research training in the audiology and speech sciences program recently established in the pediatrics department at the University of British Columbia.

The Medical Research Council is a federal funding agency.

Massive Spill Picture Painted

OTTAWA (CP)—Two mariners and two scientists Wednesday painted a grim picture that included almost inescapable shipwrecks and massiv spills of oil in British Columbia's Gulf Islands.

They appeared before the special Commons committee on environmental pollution, carrying out a study of the implications of a United States proposal to carry Alaskan oil by tanker to Cherry Point, in northwestern Washington State, from Alaska.

Capt. Wilfred Davenport, a retired Port of Vancouver pilot, and Paul LeBond, a University of B.C. oceanographer, dealt with natural conditions in the Gulf Islands-Georgia Strait area which make shipping hazardous at best and which could quickly send an oil spill on to coasts anywhere in the region.

Davenport told the committee the Gulf Islands area is one of the worst for shipping in the world, with unpredictable tides, currents, storms and fogs always waiting to bring a ship to grief.

Any ship entering the area needed a good radar set and serviceable communications equipment. If a ship did not have these, it was a menace which should not be allowed passage through the area.

Faulty Equipment, Incompetent Crew May Mean Sinking

LeBond said there is no question that an oil spill could contaminate coasts of the Gulf Islands, Vancouver Island or mainland areas of Canada and the U.S.

Generally speaking, he said, a spill of petroleum near Cherry Point would tend to flow northward into Georgia Strait. In two days it could reach Vancouver.

Regardless of how good the equipment on a supertanker might be, he said, one ship with inoperative equipment or an incompetent crew could mean a sinking.

Philip Townsley, UBC biochemist-microbiologist and an expert in bacterial degradation of oil, held out little hope to the committee that the use of bacteria to clean up oil spills is in any but experimental stages.

Petroleum companies, he said, have the most money to spend on such research and the most to gain. But they didn't seem interested.

But even if it was practical to use bacteria to degrade oil, the method would be useful for complete clean-up only on small spills.

Words of Wisdom

ONE DOES NOT NEED TO BE a monarchist to recognize that the royal tour just ended was a very great success. More than ever before, the warmth and charm and beauty of the Queen came through to the public. Prince Philip was his usual bluff and hearty self, and Princess Anne took her place with distinction in the role of honored visitor marred only by her illness in the final day or two of the tour. By every standard the visit was all that it should have been, and the public farewells as it came to a close lacked none of the warmth of the earlier welcomes.

As the Queen graciously noted in her final speech, thanks are due to the officials at all levels who made arrangements that reflected efficiency at every stage of the tour, and thereby contributed substantially to the pleasure of the visitors and the many thousands of British Columbians for whom the royal party's participation was the highlight of our provincial Centennial celebrations.

It was interesting that the Queen, in her final address at Government House, remarked on the very evident affection of British Columbians for their land which she had found throughout her tour of the province. And she wisely used this fact as a basis for some queenly advice.

Scenery and climate are not enough in themselves, she said. "The creation and maintenance of a civilized community depend upon the will and determination of the people as a whole, working through a system of democratic institutions .... the basis of our democratic institutions is that it all depends on us."

"No legitimate work is unworthy," the Queen said, "No voluntary service is ever too humble or a waste of time and effort ... I believe we should be more concerned with giving service."

That observation, from a woman whose life has been dedicated to service, carries weight. For regardless of the luxury and material comforts of royal life, there can be no doubt that the continual exposure to public view and public duties must prove as onerous as any less exalted calling.

This is at a time when many Canadians — like their counterparts in other countries — are immersed in doubts and questionings of their political, economic, social and religious beliefs. A reminder of the concept of "voluntary service," the idea of "working through a system of democratic institutions," and the recognition that the viability of our institutions and our future "all depends on us" was timely.

The Queen's words should not be lost in the striking brilliance and glamor of the occasion. They have a clear ring of sincerity, and certainly a ring of truth.

Regional Police

VANCOUVER ISLAND MUNICIpalities, meeting in annual convention, have decided to ask the Union of British Columbia municipalities to probe the feasibility of placing police under the authority of regional boards.

Whatever the inspiration for the proposal — economies, or increased efficiency with a force acting as a unit with jurisdiction over an expanded area — the suggestion automatically raises the familiar issue of unification for the forces of Greater Victoria.

We are told, from time to time, that the degree of co-operation between different municipal police forces in this community is exceptionally high, that little would be gained through unification, and that certain virtues exist in preserving the identity of each municipal force. But there are also advantages in unity of command, co-ordination of training, avoidance of duplication, and promotion opportunities, to cite but a few.

Regional control suggests a compromise between two British Columbia policing methods, a halfway mark between hiring a thoroughly local department and contracting for the services of the RCMP. To delegates to the Vancouver Island municipal meeting, it appears to have merit.

Is there any reason, other than parochial pride, why unification of the individual departments in Greater Victoria could not have the advantages of regionalism and still retain the special local contacts enjoyed by municipal forces?

A Fresh Look

THE FORMER CANADIAN diplomat, Mr. Chester Ronning, back in China after an absence of twenty years, has been impressed by what he sees as the favorable improvement of the Chinese people's spirit — a development which, according to Mr. Ronning, has brought about enormous physical changes in the Chinese environment. He says: "They've done this without losing their essential humor. Talk about the Chinese being robots today is complete nonsense."

A radically new view of life in Mao's China may be in order for Westerners. Men like Mr. Ronning can do much to educate us as to life in China today; they can break the stereotyped prism through which we have been seeing China since long before the advent of the Communists.

It has been suggested that world political power is shifting to Asia. Even if this is only partly true, it would be well for practical and other reasons to make an approach to understanding China, the keystone of Asia, without antiquated visions of the white man's burden and Westernizing missionaries. Mr. Ronning is helping to initiate this process.

No Middle Way in the Middle East

ONE NEED NOT BE AN "INsider" to predict that the Egyptian terms for reopening the Suez Canal will probably be rejected by Israel. The Egyptians are asking for an Israeli withdrawal of 115 miles initially with the Israelis having six months to agree to a timetable for withdrawal from all occupied Arab territory. President Sadat of Egypt further warned that his country would go to war if current political efforts to settle matters with Israel got nowhere. These are inauspicious results, indeed, of U.S. State Secretary Rogers' recent visit to the Middle East.

The dangerous situation is further brought home by the revelation of former President Johnson on television that he received a threat via the "hot line" from Soviet Premier Kosygin, at the time the Arabs were suffering disastrous losses at the hands of the Israelis in 1967, that the Soviets were prepared to take military action — Mr. Johnson subsequently ordered fleet movements.

A way will have to be found soon to reconcile the reasonable claims of both parties — a resort to military methods now will neither prove nor settle anything.

FROM LONDON — By DAVID HUMPHREYS

A Heath-Pompidou Summit Showdown

PRIME Minister Edward Heath took the initiative sooner than expected for a meeting with French President Georges Pompidou on Britain's future. It is Mr. Heath's first major initiative on the Common Market application and it faces squarely the French fact. Therefore much of the significance of this week's negotiating session in Brussels has been transferred to Paris where it belongs. Mr. Heath's talk with Mr. Pompidou a week Thursday is the first between a British prime minister and a French president since Harold Wilson went to Paris in January 1967 during his unsuccessful attempt to generate enough momentum to carry Britain into Europe.

Humphreys

The reasons for Mr. Heath's move just now are not difficult to find in London or Brussels. This was to have been the week of the all-important resumption of talks on the British application to the Inner Six. The talks gathered an unhealthy make-or-break atmosphere partly because of the importance the British attached to them and to chief negotiator Geoffrey Rippon's insistence that some substantial progress had to be made this week if London was to keep to its timetable for carrying out the negotiations.

Putting up a confident front during a rather gloomy week at Westminster, Mr. Rippon said that one main reason for his confidence was that British membership on the sort of terms we have proposed, would be in the direct financial interest of each of the existing members, quite apart from the longer-term economic and political advantages which all Europe would derive from enlargement.

Apparently Mr. Pompidou isn't fully convinced. Dutch Foreign Minister Joseph Luns, after meeting the French president, emphasized that Mr. Pompidou's doubts about Britain's European role represented a greater barrier than all the technicalities. During a meeting with Mr. Rippon in The Hague, Mr. Luns suggested that the two leaders meet and that Mr. Heath should undertake to erase Mr. Pompidou's lingering doubts about Britain wanting to cling to a privileged position in Europe.

Vanishing Patience

All the signs at home pointed to vanishing patience and the need for action. Anti-Market Tories warned Mr. Rippon, at a meeting of backbenchers, of electoral disaster. The Times attacked the spreading notion that Britain will be all right regardless. Failure of the negotiations "would be a total, disastrous and unmitigated defeat for us."

Pro-European Laborites were smarting over what they considered to be a highly equivocal speech by Mr. Wilson. In the middle of the week "Europe Day" was rather unhappily celebrated. And its organizer, MP Sir Geoffrey de Freitas, marked the occasion by warning the government it would be nearly impossible to carry on the momentum of a pro-European campaign unless there was a "breakthrough in Brussels."

During the last few days Common Market and British government sources warned that not much should be expected after all in Brussels. For one thing, the currency crisis talks overshadowed them. The announcement of the summit removed some of the uncertainty in Brussels. All the talk at the Common Market headquarters shifted to the Paris meeting.

The British went to Brussels still talking hopefully of breaking the deadlock on the major problems of New Zealand agriculture, the amount of the British financial contribution to the Common Market budget and Commonwealth sugar. The nitty-gritty of the application must still be cleared away in Brussels. The two government leaders aren't getting together to haggle about detail but to see if they can reach a meeting of minds on a broad political principle.

Mr. Pompidou will be going into the meeting with the monetary crisis fresh in his mind. It served as a timely reminder of West German strength in throwing its weight around in Europe if it wishes. Paris and Bonn were deeply divided on how to handle it. The British are hoping Mr. Pompidou will realize, if he hasn't done so already, that British membership will be in France's and his own political interest. The majority of Frenchmen, unlike the British, want Britain to join, according to the opinion polls.

The Europeans here have grounded a lot of anxiety on uncertainty about Mr. Pompidou's intentions, anxiety which, in the experience of Mr. Luns, has been well-founded. In these circumstances nothing could be more natural than for Mr. Heath to go to Paris and find out, once and for all.

And it is a case of no-going-back. That is the trouble with all summits. They are ultimate stages beyond which there is only success or failure. Yet settlement on the subject so monotonously played for so long is in tune with the mood of the country this springtime. In defusing events in Brussels this week, those next week in Paris are being charged, but the leaders are more likely to be able to cope with them.

Wants Britain In

President Pompidou has said he wants Britain in the Common Market. Apparently he has doubts about whether Britain really wants membership on equal terms. The British have always denied that they want special privileges. If both mean what they have been saying agreement should be within reach.

So far the Conservative government has been following on where Labor left off the process of negotiating in good faith to see if the "right terms" could be obtained. Mr. Heath's only meetings with a Common Market leader have been with West German Chancellor Willy Brandt whose sympathies have never been in doubt. Against Mr. Heath's quick decision to go to Paris now must be balanced the years of preparation at the ministerial level in Brussels and other capitals. If after all this a summit in May 1971 cannot unlock the door, it may be asked what point there would be in knocking in June.

Letters to the Editor

Litter

During a visit of several days to your charming city, when I was the recipient of many courtesies, the one thing that appalled me was the tremendous amount of trash which litters your community: discarded cigarette packages, candy wrappers, bottles, beer cans, etc. While the pavement sweepers seem to do a commendable job, nothing is done to clear up the grass verges or even the actual sidewalks.

Where I live, in Southern California, severe penalties are imposed on litterbugs, producing the desired effect, and this in a resort town where trippers abound.

I'm sure most of your citizens would agree with my thinking that if we can do it, so can you. — Rufus Henderson Stevens, Redondo Beach, Calif.

March Litter

With reference to a statement attributed to Mr. McKean in the Times of May 10. Mr. McKean is certainly not enhancing the objectives of Miles For Millions by denying that a considerable amount of litter was left behind by well-intending but not pollution-conscious youngsters.

I participated in the march with my 12-year-old daughter and there was litter along the way. When we reached mile 14 — Craigflower Park — I was appalled by the sight. Disposal receptacles were within arm's reach and paper cups and other debris were scattered around the mobile kitchen and on the grass facing the Gorge.

The first thought that came to mind was that the proceeds would be well used if they were all spent on Enviroment 100. I don't know where Mr. McKean was on the day of the march, but he certainly wasn't on the route.

Mr. McKean and his committee no doubt worked hard on preparation for the event. However, I think he owes a vote of thanks to those people who cleaned up the litter so well, that he was unable to find any on Sunday morning during his inspection tour. — Ted Wicken, 3938 Shorncliffe Rd.

The "Birthright" Position

I wish to protest your article "Ad Battle Waged Over Pregnant Women" in the Daily Times of May 8, 1971.

You state that the organization "Birthright" opposes therapeutic abortions on moral grounds.

Birthright is in favor of therapeutic abortions where the life of the mother or her health is in jeopardy. Birthright opposes abortions for so called mental illness which has become such a loose and elastic indication that in the past several years since the liberalization of the abortion laws has been passed by government, millions of unborn babies have been destroyed, at the whim or desire of the mother, based mainly on the excuse of possible decline in their mental health. There were 70,000 such abortions in New York City in the first six months of 1970; there are 60 a month being done here in Victoria in one hospital alone, and there is an 800-times increase in Vancouver. This is a constant story in nearly every town and city in North America and Great Britain.

Where is this all going to end? The pro-abortionists keep harping on abortion for the unwed pregnant girl. We are all sympathetic with this social catastrophe. But the pro-abortionists never mention the increasing number of abortions in married women whose husbands can well afford another child and which the prospective mother is quite capable of rearing if she was of that desire.

Birthright wishes to point out that abortions can cause death or permanent injury to the mother.

Birthright also points out that venereal disease is now in epidemic proportions in Canada, Great Britain and the United States, simultaneously with free sex and the vast increase in pregnancies. — Wm. R. Foote, MD, FRCS(C), FRCOG, FACS.

New Role Of Libraries

By RAY CULOS

BRITISH COLUMBIA'S libraries are being starved of financial support. At a time when the role of the library is becoming increasingly important in our community, as we struggle to keep up with the knowledge explosion, many of our libraries are still operating in the horse and buggy era.

The biggest single obstacle to the development of the library service in British Columbia is financial.

We have imaginative, far-sighted people throughout the library system who are anxious to turn libraries from a mere collection of books into true community resource centres. But their efforts are stymied because of the lack of financial resources.

In British Columbia, provincial support amounts to less than 10 per cent of total library expenses — well below the recommended minimum of 20 per cent.

We desperately need provincial grants toward the cost of new libraries in this province. The high cost of construction makes it almost impossible for local library boards to finance new buildings or badly-needed additions.

Unfortunately, too many people still have a stereotyped image of a library as nothing more than a book repository, where borrowers are admonished to "Keep Quiet" and talk in whispers. A library should be much more than that.

A library trustee is a resident of a local community who is vitally interested in the development of library service. He acts as the "citizen control" over municipal monies being spent on library service. The trustee is appointed by the municipal council.

The library trustee has, in fact, been responsible in great measure for getting the public library out of the basement of the community hall or grocery store in small communities and into the handsome service units which can be found in many of our communities around the province.

It is acknowledged, however, that now is the time to rediscover libraries, a time to forget what one may remember a library to be — silence, dusty shelves, and people speaking in whispers.

'Resource Centre'

Today's libraries must reflect the vital link between information output centres, leisure time and entertainment, audio-visual needs, continuing education and the ever-increasing demand for instant communication. In short — a "community resource centre."

The Trustees Section of the B.C. Library Association is convinced that co-operation at the regional level can be feasible only if the provincial government agrees to contribute more significantly to the cost of providing public library service.

It was with this in mind that trustees presented a brief to the provincial government in 1968 requesting that the government match dollar for dollar the municipalities' constribution to the cost of library service.

This action suggests that, unless the government commits itself to a greater leadership role the desired regional or systems concept of providing service will be a long way from coming into effect.

"IT'S NOT SO DARN EARLY. ALL THE PEOPLE ON TELEVISION ARE UP!"

Looking Back

From the Times of May 13, 1911:

Berlin — The committee which is negotiating the Berliner Zeitung am Mittag national aeroplane contest published here today details of the event. The contest will start about the middle of June. The total prizes will be $100,000, including $1,000 offered by the Prussian ministry of war which will also purchase the machine winning the race.

The total distance to be covered is 1,164 miles and a daily average flight of 89 miles is called for.

'CULTURE 30 YEARS BEHIND'

Paris Is a Bush League Town

By BORIS KIDEL

PARIS—"Paris is provincial, it's a remote backwater," Pierre Boulez, France's greatest living musician said in a recent television interview here. "More happens in London in three weeks than in Paris in six months."

He was speaking of music, but his assessment is largely valid for all the creative arts. Paris, the home of the Impressionists, of Cubism and Surrealism, the city where Gide, Valery and Malraux were writing between the two World Wars, has sunk into a period of intellectual decline.

Once the source of new artistic and literary movements, Paris is becoming another Florence, living off its past glory and reduced to marginal significance for the main cultural trends of the contemporary world.

Tragically out of touch with the realities of the seventies, the French remain convinced that Paris is the spiritual capital of the world. They still see themselves complacently as the representatives of a superior civilization. With complete seriousness, Andre Malraux, for 10 years General de Gaulle's minister of Cultural Affairs, announced it as his goal to turn France into "the leading cultural country in the world."

The victim of his own nationalism, he believed France could dazzle the rest of the world with a new model culture, midway between the commercialism of the United States and the State control of the Soviets.

As with their political ambitions, the Gaullists overreached themselves badly. Instead of stimulating cultural renewal, they brought mediocrity and a spirit of stifling conformity to the country.

It is highly indicative that two of France's foremost creative artists chose the gaullist era to become expatriates: Boulez divides his time between London and New York, while Maurice Bejert, the dancer and choreographer, has settled in Brussels.

Gone are the days when Paris was the focal point attracting writers and artists from all over the world. Joyce, Hemingway, Scott Fitzgerald, Henry Miller were all writing here before World War II. A painter had to come to Paris to win recognition. It was not only the "douceurde vivre" that drew them to Paris, but also an intellectual climate in which ideas and art were flourishing.

Even after 1945, largely due to Sartre and Camus, Paris still exercised such magnetic appeal that Arthur Koestler found it necessary to scold British intellectuals for succumbing far too easily to what he called "French flu." Today New York and London have displaced Paris as the main cultural centres of the Western World.

The avant-garde has moved elsewhere, and the young no longer flock here to feel at the centre of exciting artistic experiments. Only Latin Americans and Spanish exiles still regard Paris as the gateway to a wider world.

Mary McCarthy, the American novelist, is one of the few eminent expatriates still living here (her husband is an international civil servant stationed in Paris.) In a special literary issue of the left-wing weekly Nouvel Observateur she summed up her reactions to Paris in 1971:

BOULEZ.

MALRAUX

"If one wants to be at the centre of intellectual action it's pointless to cross the Atlantic, or one must travel across the whole of Europe and not content oneself with Left Bank cafes. Far more interesting things of wider appeal are happening in Germany and in Holland. The French are not interested in what is going on outside their own frontiers. They are paying dearly for it. My impression is that their theatrical season and literary production this year showed signs of fatigue."

One of the basic troubles is that their own self-satisfaction isolates the French from the main cultural trends elsewhere. At a time when the inter-penetration of ideas and styles has become a major fertilizing element for the arts, the French stand out as the most insular people in Europe today. They are Franco-eccentrics who disdain foreign influences.

"France is always 30 years behind the main western cultural trends," wrote Claude Roy, the novelist and critic, in one of the rare recent French attempts at cultural self-analysis.

What makes Paris such an uninspiring place today is that cultural chauvinism is accompanied by oppressive conformity. It would be unthinkable for a French film director to make Dr. Strangelove, M.A.S.H., Catch 22 or Oh What a Lovely War! The tricolor and the Army must be treated with jingoistic reverence. Nine years after the end of the Algerian war the Italian prize-winning film The Battle of Algiers can still not be shown in French cinemas because it might offend patriotic susceptibilities.

SARTRE

Even more disturbing is the case of the television film The Sadness and the Pity, a remarkable chronicle about the Nazi occupation of Clermont-Ferrand. For the first time a serious attempt was made to de-mythologise French wartime attitudes.

However, 30 years after the events, the men in charge of French television evidently believe their viewers are not mature enough to face up to the truth that all Frenchmen were not heroic Resistance Fighters. The majority, as the film shows, supported the collaborationist Vichy government at least until 1942. To safeguard old legends, the film is being withheld from French television screens.

It is not only the authorities who exercise censorship. Private organizations and individuals tend to react intolerantly to even mild criticism. The ex-cadets of the Saumur Cavalry School obtained the suppression of a television program because they objected to one of the wartime sequences. A factory director used his official contacts to prevent the screening of a television magazine which he feared presented him in an unflattering light.

This spread of parochial narrow-mindedness is responsible for the disastrously poor quality of French TV. Quite apart from the manipulation of news programs by the government, artistic and intellectual standards seem to be designed for a public without taste and cultural discrimination.

"Our programs must be as harmless as boiled sweets," remarked a leading producer of cultural programs who is without political affiliations. "We must steer clear of everything that might be controversial or challenging."

French TV chiefs have an identical approach to theatrical promoters who are out to make profit by lowering standards, Henri Chapier, the film director and critic, wrote the other day. The aim is to please at all price the maximum number of viewers with entertainments that anaesthetise or befuddle the mind, he said. A few late night shows of higher quality merely indicate that more demanding viewers are not being entirely ignored.

The importance of TV is not being denied. "Whatever its quality might be, TV forges the mentality of tomorrow's world," a panel of cultural experts recently told the French Planning Commission. But very disconcertingly even sophisticated opinion-makers seem completely unaware that other European countries, Britain, Holland and particularly West Germany, have greatly superior TV services not only with more stimulating cultural content but above all prepared to deal with the controversial issues of our times in adult style. Since the persons who matter do not bother to find out what goes on outside France, the demand for better TV is virtually non-existent.

The TV situation is grave because for four out of five Frenchmen it represents the only access to culture. More than in other Western industrialised countries culture is here the privilege of an educated elite with money. Eighty per cent of French adults never go to a theatre, 78 per cent of the young between the ages of 15 and 26 have never been to a concert, 75 per cent of the books are bought by a mere 13 per cent of the population. One of the most revealing phenomena about the French cultural scene is that only 2 to 4 per cent frequent public libraries.

The demand for books may well exist but the libraries are lacking. Britain spends five times as much as France per head of population on public libraries, the United States six times and Denmark nearly nine times.

The country Malraux set out to turn into the world's leading cultural power produces not so many more books today than a century ago. In 1968 18,000 titles were published in France against 31,000 in Britain, 30,000 in Germany and 20,000 in Spain.

Now that Camus is dead and Sartre keeps himself busy demonstrating his solidarity with Maoists at street corners, the French literary scene lacks outstanding figures. The practitioners of the "nouveau roman," Alain Robbe-Grillet, Claude Simon, Natalie Sarraute, have proved too obscure to become dominating influences. Somehow French novelists have failed to discover subject matter and style that reflect contemporary preoccupations.

It is too early to assess the creative originality of men like the ethnographer Claude Levi-Strauss, the philosopher Michel Foucault or the psycho-analyst Jacques Lacan, who are all admired here as the most significant representatives of French intellect today.

Even some French critics seem to have doubts. Jean-Francois Revel, an astute observer of the French cultural scene, describes Levi-Strauss as a man who uses his raw material for books which others have written in his field. Direct ethnology "at the grass roots," Revel says, was practised by Levi-Strauss over 30 years ago in a limited geographical area for a very short time.

French intellectuals who have worked abroad believe the strength of French thinkers is an ability to synthesise and elaborate the ideas of others. "The oil wells are outside our borders," Edgar Morin, the sociologist remarks, "but we have the refineries for new thought."

One great obstacle is the obscurity of the language wielded by French philosophers. So much of what they write reads like a translation from intricate German texts, or rather, as one literary critic put it sarcastically, like a translation from a non-existing language.

In the cinema inspiration appears to have petered out since the days of the "New Wave" in the early sixties. Lelouch's A Man and a Woman in 1966 was the last French film to win a major award at a Cannes film festival.

Jean-Luc Godard has turned Maoist and asserts that if a film tells a story, it must necessarily transmit bourgeois germs. In his film Pravda he propagates the Chinese line on the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia, condemning the Russians as imperialists and the Czechs as revisionists. The others of the "New Wave" have turned commercial or failed to renew themselves.

The sole new major talent to emerge in the last few years is Eric Rohmer, whose limpid style in My Night With Maud and Claire's Knee has won him a growing number of admirers. The dangers facing the French film industry is that with the cinema entries down from 371 million in 1959 to a mere 182 million in 1969, producers are determined to play it safe and invest their money in only what seems to them certain box-office successes.

It is above all in the field of classic music that Paris has not much more to offer today than a second rate capital. After prolonged agony, the National Opera, which has not put on a new work for 14 years, closed down last September for 14 months. The official reason was that the building needed modernisation but in fact the company was in such disarray that even the ancient productions of Carmen and Gounod's Faust could not be safely staged any longer.

Not a single hall for exclusive concert use has been built in France since 1914. With typical prestige ambition, the "zombies," as Boulez calls them, in charge of music at the Culture Ministry chose Herbert von Karajan as musical director for the newly created Orchestre de Paris. As was to be foreseen, Karajan was far too busy elsewhere to pay more than flying visits to Paris.

In art, Paris's importance seems at a first glance unimpaired because Picasso, Max Ernst, Vasarely and so many other great painters are still living in France. They are the old-timers who settled here in the golden era years ago.

In fact, for the first time in over 100 years Paris has ceased to be the commanding arbiter of artistic taste. Individual masters are still painting here but no distinct Paris school exists any longer. Art critics regard the 1960s as one of the quietest periods in Paris artistry since the mid-19th century. Largely through the sheer wealth of American museums and private collectors, New York has become the main artistic centre of the Western world.

Days of glory ended?

There's No Jam Tomorrow

By RICHARD NEEDHAM

When I was a child going to Church of England schools we used to bawl out a hymn or quasi-hymn written by William Blake: "I will not cease from mental strife, nor shall my sword sleep in my hand, till we have built Jerusalem in England's green and pleasant land."

I thought of Blake when I read what Tommy Douglas had to say in his farewell speech to the New Democratic Party: "The supreme task of the party should be to make our dreams come true, to transform our city into the holy city, and make this country into God's country."

* * *

Ho hum. I've been hearing this all my life. Vote for us, and we'll build the new Jerusalem. Follow me, and I'll lead you into the green pastures, the just society, the more abundant life, the brave new world, every man a king, every man a Ph.D, all tears wiped away from all eyes.

Unfortunately, it never comes about; you give them the power, you give them the money, but where's the holy city they were going to create for you?

Jam tomorrow, as Alice lamented, but never jam today. No jam tomorrow, either.

What always happens to the great and wonderful scheme to make everybody healthy and happy is that some unexpected obstacle derails it.

Or it gets lost in the bureaucratic mazes of government. Or someone comes up with a different scheme, for which the old one will have to be scrapped.

I think we suffer — and suffer greatly — from what I call futurism, what Malcolm Muggeridge calls dawnism, the dawn of a new day, a new era. Alexander Pope said it with bitter realism: "Hope springs eternal in the human breast; man is not now but always to be blest."

Ah yes, and this is going to be one of the most comical things about the State of Quebec, the new country whose creation I may well witness in my own lifetime. The whole philosophy of the Quebec separatists is dawnist, futurist.

They're going to have a socialist state with everyone happily employed at short hours for high wages, with everyone enjoying all manner of welfare benefits. Ho hum, this I'll have to see.

We're the same on the individual level, don't you think? The kid in high school imagines he'll be happy once he gets to university.

The university student imagines he'll be happy once he's working; or, if female, that she'll be happy once she's married. The married woman thinks she'll be happy once she's divorced, or once her children are grown up, or both.

* * *

And so it goes all through life, with the general manager thinking he'll be happy once he's president, and the working stiff thinking he'll be happy once he's retired. Jam tomorrow!

I tell people of all ages, "You're never going to be any happier than you are today," for which they hate me. I tell them, "The society you've got today is about as fair and just as you're ever going to get."

They hate me for this, too; they don't want to live among the grubby compromises of today, they want to live in the holy city of tomorrow. So maybe, from a vote-getting viewpoint, Tommy's right. Sell 'em the dream!

And even if we did get the new Jerusalem, whatever that is, how long would it last? How long would we moody, irrational humans put up with it? I'm in the affluent suburbs a lot; they've the good life, so-called, and it's driving them crazy.

* * *

As Santayana said, "Man is not a grazing animal and he would never stay long in a paradise where everybody has four meals a day and nothing else ever happens." But the last word on this, as on many things, belongs with Dostoyevsky:

"What can one expect from man, considering he's such a strange creature? You can shower upon him all earthly blessings, drown him in happiness so that there'll be nothing to be seen but the bubbles rising to the surface of his bliss, give him such economic security that he won't have anything to do but sleep and nibble at cakes, and even then, out of sheer spite and ingratitude, man will play a dirty trick on you. He'll even risk his cake for the sake of the most glaring stupidity, for the most economically unsound nonsense, just to inject into all the soundness and sense surrounding him some of his own disastrous, lethal fancies."

Isn't this a pretty fair description of the situation we have in Canada today? It isn't quite the paradise described by Dostoyevsky but it is — or has been — pretty good; steaks and Ski-Doos coming out of our ears.

Now we're blowing it—have blown it, I think—through our own stupidity, our own nonsense, our own lethal fancies, among which I'd certainly include our dreams and visions of the holy city.

BUSINESS AND FINANCE

Bralsaman

Bralsaman Petroleums Ltd. earned $46,733 or 3.9 cents a share during the three months ended March 31 compared with $35,591 or three cents a share in the first quarter of 1970.

Earnings were on a gross income of $65,954, up from $53,930.

Lexington

Presence of sufficient low-grade ore at its Greenwood property will probably result in consummation of an operating agreement with a major mining company, reports Lexington Mines Ltd.

Negotiations have been carried on over a considerable period of time, leading to a tentative outline of new operations. A holding company would be set up to bear all expense before and after production commences, of which Lexington would own 35 per cent minimum.

The company for three years has been concentrating on exploration over an area of more than 6,000 acres, upgrading old accesses, drilling and surface work at a cost of $500,000.

Interprovincial

Total income was down slightly but net earnings were virtually unchanged in the quarter ended March 31, reports Interprovincial Pipe-Line Co. and subsidiaries.

Transportation income was off by more than $800,000 to $36 million vs. $36.87 million last year, and other income was more than double at $964,000, leaving total income $37 million compared with $37.28 million.

Expenses were up to $19.13 million ($18.76 million), and after-tax earnings were $8.59 million compared with $8.68 million. Earnings per share were rated at 34 cents both periods.

Evans

Higher profits reflecting from anticipated 1971 housing starts of more than 1.8 billion are forecast by Portland-based Evans Products Co.

First quarter results are up 76 per cent from a year ago at $1.98 million, or 31 cents a share vs. 16 cents.

In 1970 Evans had net profit of $11.39 million ($1.83 a share) from revenue of $561 million.

Columbia

Columbia Metals Corp. Ltd. plans an extensive surface drilling and underground development program for its mine at Ferguson, near Revelstoke. The property is 1½ miles long.

At present, a 135-tons-a-day mill is tuning up for production of high grade silver in the True Fissure sector, where reserves are expected to last three years.

Columbia has signd a firm contract with British Metal Corp. for the full output of silver, gold and base metal concentrates. The company also is negotiating with several senior companies to take part in exploration of Columbia's 40 Highland Valley claims.

Reitman's

Reitman's Canada Ltd. expects first quarter sales to show a 19 per cent improvement and resulting higher profit, according to a message for shareholders.

A year ago the firm had $9.38 million in sales, which produced $1.13 million net income (13 cents a share).

Normont

Vancouver-based Normont Copper Ltd. has been reorganized into Intercontinental Environmental Industries Ltd., to manufacture pollution control devices for industry.

A scrubbing unit for smokestacks, developed by inventor Norman Gladu, of Langley, will be the principal product of the firm, which is a minority shareholder in Universal Pollution Control Systems, maker of Gladu's earlier fly ash suppressor.

IEI will retain a mining interest through shareholding in Granex Mines Ltd., which has B.C., N.W.T., California and Nevada properties.

GN Capital

International Telephone and Telegraph Corp. sales and revenues hit a record $1.54 billion the first quarter of this year, according to board chairman Harold S. Geneen.

He said 1970 was the best year in ITT history with consolidated sales and revenues of $6.4 billion, up 12 per cent, and net income of $353 million. Net earnings per common share were $3.17, up 20 per cent.

Geneen urged foreign holders of dollars to use them in the U.S. to help the balance of payments deficit.

I. U. Corp.

Per share earnings and operating income for the first quarter nearly matched on a percentage basis, reports International Utilities Corp., which had a 13 per cent increase in consolidated revenues.

Income was up 33 per cent from $9.2 million to $12.3 million, or 85 cents a share, up 29 per cent from 66 cents a year ago.

Revenue was $230 million vs. $203 million, all from operations. In 1970 the sale of property and investments added $3.6 million to revenue, for a net of $12.8 million, or 92 cents a share — seven cents better than this year.

Kalco

Field work on three of Kalco Valley Mines Ltd, B.C. mining prospects is under way by three major mining companies.

The Lytton group of 166 claims is being explored by Phelps Dodge Corp. of Canada, which is committed to spend $50,000 minimum and may earn 70 per cent interest by spending an additional $300,000.

Forty-four claims on Summer Creek, Princeton, are optioned to American Metal Climax subsidiary, AMAX Exploration Inc., which may earn 70 per cent interest by spending $350,000.

More Freight

VANCOUVER (CP) — The port of Vancouver has handled 28 per cent more freight during the first quarter of 1971 than it did during the same period last year, acting port manager William Duncan.

He said more than 8.3 million tons moved through the port in the first three months of the year compared to 6.5 million in the same period of 1970.

Worldwide

A slump in drilling contracts pushed the earnings of Worldwide Energy Co. Ltd. down 67 per cent during the three months ended March 31 to $151,000 or four cents a share.

In the first quarter of 1970 the company earned $457,000 or 14 cents a share, on gross revenues of $1.1 million from $1.14 million.

Giant Ex.

Rock trenching on Cogburn Creek, Harrison Lake, property has disclosed nickel-copper mineralization, reports Giant Exploration Ltd., partner with Giant Mascot Mines Ltd. in the exploratory venture.

Basically nickel in content, samples also show minor cobalt values.

Detailed geological mapping, soil sampling and geophysical survey work to spot diamond drill targets are planned as the next phase of the program.

ITT

First quarter results of Great Northern Capital Corp. Ltd. show revenue nearly $1 million higher compared with a year ago, and net income of $442,000 (19 cents a share) vs. a loss of $198,000 (seven cents) in 1970.

Biggest increase in revenue was in land sales, which rose to more than $1 million from $408,000, helping to put total revenue at $7.25 million against $6.4 million in the quarter last year.

Expenses rose marginally to $6.7 million, due to higher interest and cost of land sold, primarily.

Welfare of Natives in North Ottawa's First Concern

By KEVIN DOYLE

OTTAWA (CP) — Northern Development Minister Jean Chretien says the road to resource development in the north lies between what he describes as the utopian direction of socialism and the impractical route of pure capitalism.

He told the Commons Wednesday it would be absolute folly to leave the vast resources of the north in an undeveloped state.

But the government's prime concern in all development efforts would continue to be protection of the welfare of northern natives. "This is a prerequisite of development."

Mr. Chretien's comments came near the close of a two-day debate on a Conservative non-confidence motion criticizing what the motion said is the government's failure to develop the human and economic potential of the north. A New Democrat amendment called for clear government policies on such issues as foreign ownership, native rights and environmental protection.

TO DISCUSS BILL

The motion and amendment were defeated by identical 118-to-87 votes. Voting against the Liberals were 56 Conservatives, 20 New Democrats, 10 Social Credit MPs and Independent Roch LaSalle (Joliette).

Standing in the 264-seat Commons: Liberal 150, Conservative 71, New Democrat 23, Creditiste 13, Independent 2, vacant 5.

The Commons today was to debate a government motion to set up a committee to consider replacement legislation for the expired Public Order (Temporary Measures) Act, 1970.

The motion would create a joint Senate-Commons committee to "report upon the nature and kind of legislation required to deal with emergencies that may arise from time to time in the future."

During debate Wednesday, Mr. Chretien and his department came under sharp criticism from Erik Nielsen (PC—Yukon), backed by Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield.

Mr. Nielsen called for the government to resign because of what he said is an obvious failure to develop clear policies for northern development or for development in other parts of the country.

Mr. Chretien and Energy Minister J. J. Greene should have been singled out as subjects for separate non-confidence votes, he said. Government members were "lazy, undemocratic and disorganized."

Mr. Stanfield called for a far-sighted and effective northern transportation policy.

He reiterated a frequent opposition criticism that only 4.5 per cent of those employed by mining firms in the north are natives. Mr. Chretien argued that the federal government has intensified its educational and training programs for natives which would improve this situation.

ATTACKED TAX POLICIES

Ron Harding (NDP — Kootenay West) also attacked government tax policies which he said subsidize foreign corporations to extract resources then send them out of Canada for processing.

The New Democrats took the position early in the debate that the government should control all resource development by owning such operations through Crown companies or similar devices.

The Conservatives have argued that the government should be encouraging private industry to search for resources in the north through the use of attractive tax concessions and perhaps subsidies in other forms.

Mr. Nielsen said the first requirement for an effective northern development policy is election of a new prime minister.

Mr. Chretien said the federal government has accomplished a great deal in improving the education of Indian and Eskimo children in the north.

The government now was spending $26.7 million a year for northern education compared with $10 million in 1959.

URGENT

Len Marchand (L—Kamloops-Cariboo), the only Indian MP, said treaty rights for Northwest Territories Indians is the most urgent matter requiring settlement.

He said it might be better to wait 10 or 15 years to deal with the treaties when more northern Indians would be prepared to make the best deal for themselves.

He said he was pleased to see that Indians in the north are being encouraged to take a larger part in government.

Gordon Ritchie (PC—Dauphin) said Canada's sovereignty in the north may face challenges as a result of U.S. demand for resources such as water. He said efforts should be made to attract more people to the North.

Pat Mahoney (L—Calgary South) said the north will be a resource-based economy for many years to come.

Critics of the government should remember that foreign investment in northern development does not necessarily mean ownership. He said resource development creates jobs.

Manitoba Considers Ban On No-Return Bottles

By The Canadian Press

Among ideas being considered by the Manitoba government to control litter are a straight ban on non-returnable bottles, increased public education or a compulsory refund on all containers, as suggested in a Conservative private member's bill.

Municipal Affairs Minister Howard Pawley said outside the house Wednesday he personally favors the first proposal because the Conservative proposal for a refund is similar to legislation passed in British Columbia, where a litter problem still exists.

Earlier, in the legislature, Ian Turnbull (NDP—Osborne) called for immediate legislation to ban non-returnable beverage containers.

His call came during debate of the standing committee on municipal affairs. The committee report had recommended that the private member's bill setting a mandatory two-cent deposit on all such containers be referred back to committee for further study.

The Manitoba house also was told the budget for the 1971-72 fiscal year will be brought down tonight.

In the Ontario legislature, a committee heard the department of education deny claims by the Ontario Secondary School Teachers Federation that 40 per cent of high school students will suffer a drop in education quality because of ceilings on education spending.

The federation issued the warning in a brief three weeks ago.

Reports that 100,000 acres ranging in price from 47 cents to $4 an acre were being sold in northwestern Quebec to American speculators brought reaction in Quebec, where William Tetley, minister of financial institutions, said the importance of the land purchases had been exaggerated.

Mr. Tetley told the national assembly only 4,000 acres of abandoned land were involved in speculative purchases in the Abitibi area. He said the land was bought in tax sales.

The Quebec government was told earlier the interest in the area among speculators could arise from the recently-announced decision to exploit the hydro-electric potential of James Bay.

Residents of the area now are reported planning a real estate co-operative to protect their land against low-priced sales.

In Fredericton, Premier Richard Hatfield denied there was any contradiction between his statements and those by George E. McInerney, chairman of the New Brunswick Electric Power Commission.

H. H. Williamson (L—Bathurst) said the two had made conflicting statements about knowledge of Nova Scotia Premier Gerald Regan's European tour to seek financing for development of Bay of Fundy power.

ALLOWED TO SUE

At Charlottetown, the Prince Edward Island cabinet agreed that promoters of a rock festival cancelled by the government's controversial Public Gathering Act will be allowed to sue the government.

The festival had been planned for the outskirts of Charlottetown Easter weekend. The new act, which gave the province power to ban any public gathering that might endanger public safety, has met a torrent of protest.

Premier Alex Campbell announced last month the act will be repealed when the legislature sits in the fall and that the government would be "loath" to use it this summer. An alternative to the act is being studied.

AUDITORS' REPORT

TO THE DIRECTORS OF THE VICTORIA FOUNDATION AND GOOLDEN FUND:

We have examined the balance sheet of The Victoria Foundation and the Goolden Fund as at December 31, 1970, and the statements of fund equity and receipts and disbursements for the year then ended. Our examination included a general review of the accounting procedures and such tests of accounting records and other supporting evidence as we considered necessary in the circumstances, except as referred to in the following paragraph.

The Foundation derives part of its income in the form of bequests and donations which are not susceptible of complete audit examination. Accordingly our work in respect of this income was limited to accounting for the amounts recorded in the books of the Foundation.

In our opinion, except for the limitation in the scope of our examination referred to in the preceding paragraph, these financial statements present fairly the financial position of the Foundation and Fund as at December 31, 1970, and the results of its operations for the year then ended, in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles applied on a basis consistent with that of the preceding year.

TRAVEL COSTS SPIRAL . . . . . SO UNIVERSITIES SPLIT

Two-Conference Plan Divides WCIAA

The Western Canada Intercollegiate Athletic Association will be dissolved next year, making way for two conferences from British Columbia to the Lakehead.

The autonomous conferences, both as yet unnamed, were formed because of recent expansion in member schools and "spiralling travel costs," a WCIAA spokesman said following the annual meeting in Calgary.

In the 1971-72 season, the association will be split into two divisions for hockey and basketball, the same schools that likely will be entered in the new organization next year.

Football will operate outside the individual conferences with University of Calgary, Alberta, Saskatchewan, Manitoba and B.C. remaining as the teams.

Proposed universities for one conference are Calgary, Alberta, Lethbridge, B.C., and Victoria. In the other are Regina and Saskatoon campuses from Saskatchewan, Manitoba, Winnipeg, Brandon and the Lakehead.

EACH HAD CHOICE

Each university had a choice as to which conference it wanted, and most agreed with the system suggested at the annual meeting.

There will be an interlocking schedule in hockey this year, and likely in 1972-73, but none in basketball.

The association also hopes that each conference will be able to compete in Canadian Intercollegiate Ahtletic Union championships next year. Delegates were undecided whether separate conference winners in basketball and hockey would meet in playoffs.

Further meetings to clarify details for each conference are scheduled later this year for Winnipeg and Vancouver.

In other business at the annual meeting, the association also decided to endorse the CIAU's involvement in hockey and skiing at the 1972 World Student Games at Lake Placid, N.Y.

Dr. Lou Goodwin, director of the university of Calgary's school of physical education, was re-elected president of the WCIAA for 1971-72. Andrea Borys, director of women's athletics at Calgary, was returned as vice-president and Dennis Kadatz, also of Calgary, was named secretary-treasurer.

Celtic Repeats Scottish 'Double'

GLASGOW (CP) — Celtic completed the Scottish League and Cup double for the third time in five years Wednesday when they beat deadly Glasgow soccer rivals Rangers 2-1 in the Scottish Football Association Cup final replay.

IMPRESSIVE

A crowd of 103,000 at Hampden Park saw Celtic roar into a 2-0 half-time lead with attacking football reminiscent of their European Cup triumph over Inter-Milan in 1967.

Celtic was determined to allow no repetition of Saturday's first meeting when a late equalizer enabled Rangers to force a replay. Lou Macari put Celtic into the lead after 24 minutes and Harry Hood added the second from a penalty three minutes later.

But Rangers, desperately hoping to dent their rivals' dominance of Scottish soccer, came pounding back early in the second half and a 57th minute goal by Callaghan put them back in with a chance.

Some snow packs were close to their historical highs, a provincial water resources official said, but a continuation of normal weather would prevent the possibility of flooding in the Fraser Valley.

A protracted stretch of hotter-than-average weather in the coming weeks could create some problems in streams feeding the Fraser, the official said. But the snow pack is lower in the upper Fraser area than in the lower Fraser, reducing the danger of serious flooding.

Railway Inspection Set

OTTAWA (CP) — Top officials of the Canadian transport commission will inspect railway operations through the Fraser River Canyon where three men died in a freight train derailment earlier this year.

The commission announced today that the officials will ride an eastbound CP Rail freight next Tuesday from Vancouver to Kamloops, a 250-mile trip, and return to Vancouver the next day aboard a Canadian National Railways freight.

The commission is carrying out this on-the-spot inspection because reailway workers criticized safety measures in the canyon at a commission safety inquiry in Ottawa last month.

David H. Jones, chairman of the commission's railway transport committee, and commissioner John Woodard, a former locomotive engineer, will head the group.

The British-Isreal meeting will be held in the Dominion Hotel Sunday at 3 p.m. Mrs. Dorothy Abraham, who has studied British-Isreal for 50 years, will speak on The Throne, The Queen and The Future.

Alliance Banned

GENEVA (Reuter) — The World Alliance of Reformed Churches, which comprises 130 member churches, said the Spanish government has refused to allow it to hold two meetings in Madrid next September. The alliance said it had asked that it be allowed to hold meetings on the premises of the Spanish Evangelical Church.

LOOK AHEAD 20 YEARS: U.K. REALTOR

'Resist Developer Pressure'

A visiting British realtor Wednesday urged Canadians to use vision in planning land use for the next 20 or 30 years, and resist undue pressure by developers.

C. J. S. Cooper, of London, vice-president of the British chapter, International Real Estate Federation, was asked his professional impression of Canada's open spaces:

"You've got unlimited potential here, and looking at your urban centres I'm impressed by the new buildings.

"But I feel there's going to be sprawl — someone will say 'Let's put a building on that hilltop'; someone else will want a factory here, or there.

"I think you should have a vision of what cities should look like in 20 or 30 years and allocate the space," Cooper said. He added:

CONTROLS

"I'm sure there's a lot of pressure put on planners by high-powered developers, like anywhere else."

In the U.K., Cooper noted, there has been strict control of land use for commercial purposes through long-range planning. "This is good; we've done a very good job," he said.

But there is still great need there, as elsewhere, to provide reasonably priced housing to everyone.

Generally speaking, Cooper felt, there are becoming fewer and fewer resident-owners in urban areas. In England, there seem to be more private owners in the countryside.

Population and commercial pressures combine to squeeze homeowners out of urban centres, in England as in other parts of the world. Yet, there is an exception to that in the U.K. where local councils — often substantial landlords themselves — have begun to allow tenants to buy their homes.

In North America, the equivalent situation could be development of the condominium concept, where occupants of a single structure may secure title to that portion occupied by them.

Meanwhile, especially with proliferation of the private automobile since the Second World War, cities in England are feeling the traffic syndrome.

"The main cities have got pretty snarled up," Cooper said. London could have been a wasteland by now if it had not already possessed an efficient underground train transit system.

In urban centres where there is great vehicular pressure, improving the road system goes part way to solving the problem, thinks Cooper. It is also necessary to develop shopping precincts in the suburbs, however.

Cooper was spokesman for a party of about 40 overseas and American realtors who visited Victoria as guests of the Real Estate Board following conclusion of the 1,500-delegate International Real Estate Federation annual meeting in Montreal.

A member of the federation council, Cooper stood in for its president, Willy Egeli, of St. Gallen, Switzerland, who said in Vancouver the day before that condominiums are the answer to a growing shortage of land for private detached housing.

The Swiss in the last 15 years have developed the idea to the point where half the country's homes are condominiums, and the proportion is rising.

Payment Proposed

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The Soviet Union has proposed that compensation be paid to developing countries for losses due to "brain drain." Under a resolution introduced in the UN Economic and Social council, delveoped countries would be urged to refund to developing countries money spent for training their nationals who take jobs away from home.

STIFFER PENALTIES IMPOSED AS TOTALS SOAR

Area Drug Convictions Disproportionately High

Greater Victoria, with approximately 0.84 per cent of Canada's population, accounted for over 3 per cent of the nation's drug convictions in 1970.

And with just 8.3 per cent of the British Columbia population, Greater Victoria's 204 drug prosecutions in 1970 amount to slightly over 11 per cent of the provincial total.

Nationally, the number of convictions in 1970, compiled by the federal health department, was 6,745, double the 3,338 in 1969.

In British Columbia there were 1,790 convictions in 1970, up from 1,117 in 1969.

Locally to deal with the dramatic upsurge in the use of narcotics and restricted drugs, the courts have begun to impose stiffer penalties, particularly for convicted traffickers.

Statistics from the General Investigative Section of the RCMP show this increase as part of a trend which has taken place in the area since 1966, when it appears drug use among young people started to come into vogue.

Only three prosecutions were made in 1966, but the figure climbed to 33 in 1967 and there were 75 drug prosecutions in 1968.

Figures for the first four months of 1971 indicate that the rate of drug prosecutions is not about to decline. So far this year there have been 70 prosecutions, 52 for possession offences and 18 for trafficking.

By far the most common offence has been for possession of marijuana and hashish, the so-called "soft" drugs so popular in contemporary youth culture. Prosecutions for possession of these drugs make up over 55 per cent of drug charges laid in the area.

Penalties for possession of marijuana or hashish in the last year ranged from an average fine of $350 to a light jail sentence or a suspended sentence with a year or two probation.

Fines were most often used as punishment, comprising 69 per cent of the cases, while 16 per cent of the convictions brought light jail sentences (from seven days to six months) and 15 per cent of the sentences were suspended.

Authorities have dealt more severely with convictions involving possession or trafficking of heroin. In every case, conviction for possession of heroin has led to a lengthy jail term while traffickers have received jail terms of up to five years.

Persons convicted of trafficking in drugs rarely escape jail according to figures covering the past year. Of 28 persons convicted only two had their sentences suspended, and none received fines. The average jail term was 21 months.

There were four cases of heroin trafficking, with three getting sentences of 2½ years and the other getting five years.

In the five cases of persons convicted of possession of narcotics for the purpose of trafficking, four were given jail terms, two of them for three years each.

Traffic in the restricted drugs (LSD, MDA, STP) comprises a substantial part of the illicit drug trade. Almost 20 per cent of the convictions made in Greater Victoria in the past year have involved a restricted drug.

Heroin convictions accounted for just over 5 per cent of the total.

Traffickers Eye Youth Market

The traffickers of heroin have developed a new system of narcotics distribution to accommodate the potential market among young people, according to an official of the British Columbia Narcotics Addiction Foundation.

Heroin is no longer confined mainly to the Vancouver area, Dr. H. R. Williams, clinical director of the foundation, said in his annual report Wednesday.

"Areas where heroin use had never been reported in the past are now showing a high incidence of use."

Dr. Williams said treatment centres for heroin addicts are needed throughout British Columbia as a result of the increase in heroin addiction.

Licence Threat Hurled At Rest Home Owners

GAGLARDI
. . . 'I'll take them on'

HANRAHAN
. . . won't meet Phil

Rehabilitation Minister Phil Gaglardi said today he would "take a look" at the licence of any rest home operator who evicts a welfare guest.

He made the statement after telling reporters that "I don't operate under threat."

The minister was commenting on a meeting of rest home operators which unanimously supported a policy of evicting welfare guests if the government fails to meet demands for higher rates.

"Did you ever hear of anything so inhumane?" Gaglardi asked. "They're not fit (to run rest homes) if they dump people."

"I'll take them on any old day of the week," Gaglardi said.

"Let him go ahead and try, and see what happens to him."

Gaglardi said the rest home owners are trying to "stampede" him and "I don't operate under that system."

He said the government "has gone as far as it is prepared to go" on the rate question because a committee of experts had made the recommendation for the recently announced increase in the rate for welfare guests. It was boosted from a maximum of $150 a month to $174.

* * *

Two new twists to the dispute were disclosed today by Hanrahan.

1. The operators will not meet with Gaglardi again because he "does not know what he's talking about;"

2. The Victoria dispute "could be province-wide."

About 300 rest home guests are caught in the middle of the fight between the operators and the government.

* * *

No date was announced for the discharge of the welfare guests but Hanrahan, asked if the eviction will be in stages rather than all at once, said "they are all going to be discharged around the same time." But this would not be right away, he added.

"This will be very, very serious," he said. Hanrahan also said Gaglardi will have to appoint another man to discuss the dispute because the operators will not meet with him.

New Tactics Considered In Sandringham Strike

A top-level meeting of union officials in Victoria Wednesday night discussed a number of ways of bringing the 7½-month Sandringham Private Hospital strike to a head, but no decisions were made on specific actions, a spokesman said today.

Alex Markides, local representative for the Canadian Union of Public Employees, said in response to questions that chain or solid picketing "is a thought" and that consideration has been given to picketing the homes of those who have replaced the 28 women who went on strike last Sept. 30.

Markides also said that tactics which are decided upon will not be announced in advance.

Attending the meeting were representatives of CUPE, the B.C. Federation of Labor and the Victoria Labor Council.

Markides said the "effort will be escalated" to involve the "National Nursing Homes chain so that both parties can get back to the bargaining table." NNH manages Sandringham and has resisted the union which is seeking a first contract.

Fire believed caused by children having a secret smoke on the way to school wrecked a garage and a car and damaged two adjoining buildings at Moss and Oscar this morning.

Police are questioning students at Sir James Douglas Elementary across the street, after owner Frank Low said youngsters often broke into the garage to smoke.

Low owns one adjoining building which houses his store, Henderson's Low Cost, as well as Alicia's Beauty Salon and three upstairs apartments.

He said the burned auto was an older model, and estimated the cost of the garage at $2,000. Singe, smoke and water damage to the building itself was slight.

Damage was estimated at $2,500 to the house on the other side of the garage, owned by Mr. and Mr. William D. Wells. The roof of the home was badly burned, windows were broken and there was smoke and water damage.

Two other cars parked in front of the garage were pushed out of the way after the alarm was turned in at 8:39 a.m.

Investigating for city police are Sgt. Gordon Bennett and Const. Charles Brown. Firefighters were directed by Asst. Chief John Stewart.

The Best Place for a Horse Is With Other Horses — Bate

Plans for an animal farm in Beacon Hill Park do not include a horse to replace Queenie, Victoria parks director Cliff Bate said today.

The farmyard will contain only small, young animals, newly acquired from local farms each season.

"There's no way we can have a horse and children" in the farmyard, Bate said.

Council approved the children's farmyard plan in March but the first animals will not appear until next spring.

Despite the wide attraction of Queenie, who died earlier this year, the park was not the best place for an old horse, Bate said. Queenie's fans overfed her and she lacked exercise, making her uncomfortable and often requiring a crane to get her on her feet.

The best place for an old horse, Bate said, is in an open pasture with other horses.

MORE DETAILED SURVEY PLANNED

Old Town Study Group Gets Grant

The University of British Columbia architectural study group, studying Victoria's downtown area between the harbor and the business area, has received an $8,000 grant from the federal government.

The Opportunities for Youth Program sent a telegram to co-ordinator Jim Starck Wednesday saying the program will "enable you to contribute in your own way to both the community you live in and in Canada as a whole."

Starck, originator of the group, applied for the grant so U.B.C. students could continue a study of the buildings in the Old Town area. Starck was an architecture instructor at UBC for two years.

The group plans to carry out a more detailed survey of the buildings and their conditions.

"The core group will be made up of architect students and hopefully more specific people such as urban geographers, sociologists and civil engineers," Starck said.

The rest of the workers will come from almost any discipline interested in this type of study, he said.

Meanwhile, an account of the group's brief on downtown development, which appeared in the Times Wednesday, incorrectly reported that the Old Town steering committee presented its brief to the Chamber of Commerce environment committee Wednesday.

The brief was presented to the chamber committee today, and it will be presented to City Council Tuesday, May 18.

ROUSE AND BEWARE, ye householders of historic Foul Bay Road! The attack has been renewed, the name of your turny-twisty thoroughfare is again in danger, and it may take a determined protest to save it.

In an excess of nice-Nellyism, three mayors have aligned themselves with a new move to do away with the time-honored but misinterpreted "Foul" that figures in your street name.

The adjective as applied to Foul Bay by early nautical types had no bearing on the purity or otherwise of its waters, whatever their state today. It merely signified foul ground in the sense of a difficult or dangerous anchorage.

I don't go along with this changing of place names from the bluff, bold, historic and hearty because over-sensitive ears don't happen to like the sound of them. With all deference, I suggested that the proposed substitute title, "Queen Elizabeth Way," be given instead to the ring road that circles University of Victoria campus.

The mayors of Oak Bay, Victoria and Saanich might also take warning from what happened when some earlier scatterers of rose petals decided that Smuggler's Cove Road on Ten Mile Point should have its well-earned name changed to something nicey-nice.

Up went a new road marker with a pretty name in Spanish. Simultaneously, up rose a concerted howl from residents who demanded the old name back in forceful terms. They prevailed, and Smuggler's Cove road it remains.

I hope that threatened Foul Bay roadsters will react in no less determined fashion.

Anyone who believes that war as waged in the era of musket and muzzle-loading cannon was more picturesque than lethal could do worse than take in the reconstructed "Waterloo" now in full thunder at the Royal.

We did last weekend, and came away with a clearer notion of what combat held for the quaintly-uniformed fighting man of old.

As a study of the fateful battle that took place on June 18, 1815, the picture is both grim and impressive. Cavalry charges that look at the outset like reproductions of old paintings crash from their frames to end in nightmarish blood-lettings. And though they lack the overkill potential of our modern fissionable horrors, the ranged guns work awesome execution.

(The actual battle, as reported by observers at Waterloo, could be no more than capsulized on film. To approximate the slaughter it would have been necessary to scatter 45,000 "dead" or "wounded" extras over a single tract of three square miles.)

To which I might add that after enduring Rod Steiger's Napoleon for a couple of hours, I could have used a restorative nip myself.

Here's a plaintive note from a reader who backed three kid footsloggers in last Saturday's March for Millions.

"I'm only too glad to pay off," he writes, "but I wish they'd come around and collect. If they put it off much longer, they'll have to wait till next pay-day."

A suggestion which the tardy three, along with any others who haven't yet collected for miles walked, would do well to heed.

HEARING CONCLUDING

The preliminary hearing of a 17-year-old youth charged with attempted murder began its second day in Victoria provincial court this morning and was expected to conclude this afternoon.

Judge William Ostler issued a no-publication order Wednesday in the case of Russell Michael Amos charged after Fiona Fay Boucher, 2, of 643 John, was attacked at her home on the night of March 4 and 5.

John Macintyre is the prosecutor while Cecil Branson and Mike Hutchison are defending Amos.

Esposito's Health Chihawks' Concern

CHICAGO (CP) — Who's kidding who in the Stanley Cup final?

Winger John Ferguson has a chronic hip injury and is a doubtful starter for Montreal Canadiens.

The two teams meet here tonight in the fifth game of the National Hockey League's championship round, all even at two games each.

Loss or impairment of either of these players could almost ruin their respective club's chances of nailing down the cup.

Despite an injury, Esposito will have to continue playing because he has no experienced backup man after Gerry Desjardins's late-season arm injury placed him on the sidelines.

Tonight's game is set for 8:30 p.m. EDT (5:30 PDT).

Reay was angry Wednesday at Montreal reports Esposito had been handicapped by a groin injury, apparent aftermath of his collision behind the Chicago goal with Canadiens' rookie defenceman Guy Lapointe in the third game.

"There was nothing wrong with Tony," the Chicago coach replied in admonishing writers who doubted Esposito's health after Tuesday's 5-2 loss. "He never complains. He's a big hunk of man . . . he gives no quarter and asks none."

Esposito's only complaint since the collision was a leg cramp in the third game "but it's not hurting now."

The Canadiens flew in late Wednesday. Ferguson accompanied the club but was listed as doubtful.

Dillon, Grover Sparkle As Rocks Still 'No. 1'

By STEWART LANG

Ranjit Dillon provided the difference and George Grover supplied some outstanding goaltending as Victoria Shamrocks came from behind in the third period to score a 9-8 victory over Coquitlam Adanacs on Wednesday night and claim sole possession of first place in the Western Lacrosse Association.

Victory, the third straight without a loss in the regular season and fourth straight including the pre-season exhibition schedule, came before 1,118 fans.

Ranjit Dillon scored what turned out to be the winning goal at 14.54 of the third period to finish with a six-point night. He had an earlier goal in the first period.

Veteran Wayne Shuttleworth led Coquitlam with three goals. Singletons were chipped in by Bill Robinson, Bill Bradley, Bob Rezansoff, John Allen and Doug Wallsmith.

Grover, in the Victoria net for the first time this season, came up with a sparkling total of 33 saves as compared to 38 for his counterpart Terry Garrett.

Although he had a tendency to stick to close to the net on breakaway situations, giving an angle advantage to the attacker, Grover managed to keep the Irish in the game for the first two periods when they were outscored 3-2 and 4-3.

Grover parried 13 shots in the first period, including four on breakaways by Jim Rickbel as the Rocks neglected to move their defence back fast enough when attacking plays were broken up.

TWO QUICK GOALS

However, it was the third period that decided the issue.

Beaulac closed the gap to 7-6 with a goal at 5:06 with Coquitlam's Jim Aitchison in the penalty box and Nirmal Dillon evened the count 7-7 after a spectacular floor-length dash at 6:42.

Another defensive lapse allowed Adanacs to take the lead again on Robinson's tally at 7:41 but Ken Alexander made the count 8-8 at 9:00 with an unassisted goal on a screen shot from a milling group of players.

Rocks then held on until time ran out for Coquitlam.

Among the other outstanding Shamrocks were Beaulac, who showed plenty of hustle on both ends of the floor and Ken Alexander, who caused Aitchison to collect three minor penalties.

Victoria only collected four out of a total of 20 minutes in penalties but lost out on draws, 21-11.

THREE MISSING

Three important faces were missing from the Victoria lineup during the victory — Ivan Thompson, Charn Dhillon and Dennis Somner.

Thompson, suffering from a knee injury, and Dhillon, who hurt his back at work, "might be ready Saturday" said co-coaches Ron Jay and Bert Bertoia following the game. Somner will be out of town for business reasons for 10 days.

Saturday the Irish take on Adanacs in Coquitlam, the first of three straight games out of town.

Wednesday night's win was neatly summed up by Bertoia in two words:

"Wow! Beautiful!"

BILL WALKER

If the eye of the beholder suddenly grows older today, there's reason enough for the nostalgia. For this year marks the 75th anniversary of the Victoria West Athletic Association. Yes, the Wests have been booting the ball around town since before the turn of the century, and, if not always in classic style, at least with distinction. Up the Wests!

It should go without saying that this is the oldest registered football club in Canada, but that's for the record and the real reason for the giant wingding that has been planned. In case you haven't heard, the festivities will be at Athletic Park on Saturday, May 22. Just about everybody who is somebody should be there For the list of West players and executives through the years reads like a who's who in city annals.

So, you all come, you hear!

Seventy-five years is a long time in the history of a province that this year is celebrating its centenary, and a longer time in one man's particular life. But to Percy Wilson it has been a pleasure, and his abiding interest to have been an integral part of the Wests almost from that very beginning.

Percy is a former Wests' executive member, president, you name it . . . now he has turned club historian. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wilson, built the first home on Springfield Ave., in 1890. Later a street was named in the family's honor. Percy was four years of age when he moved into his new home, and he found he had a built-in athletic career for the asking. The Wilson's back yard opened on a playing field, and Percy grew up playing with boys mostly a few years older than himself.

Percy was 10 when George Okell and Tom Crocker arranged a football game against whay was to become arch-rival James Bay. Some of the players were Tom Andrews, Alex and Dick Stevens, Will Willescroft, and Crocker and Okell . .

Other matches with other areas soon followed. The games usually were played at Beacon Hill. The Macauley Point field was used as well, but the turf, even then, caused problems.

"Sometimes Macauley Point was very rough due to the army practising with horse-drawn cannon . . ." is an excerpt from Wilson's memoirs.

"We had basketball, too," Percy recalled. "The big kids used to play. They'd lock the door on us little guys, unless they were shorthanded. Then they'd invite us in. And they'd bounce off the posts down the middle of the floor."

"The scores weren't that great," Percy recalled, "compared to today." And the team wasn't a world beater, either. In the club's first game, JBAA scored a four point victory, and later "whipped" the Wests again. The score was 6-2.

But the basketballers recovered, and in 1899 went on to win their very first city championship. A. Patton captained the club. Some of the others were George Andrews, Tom Andrews, J. MacDonald.

Incorporation came in November of 1901, but the familiar green and white colors weren't adopted until a year later. The original uniforms were green and black. And if that change drew heated protests at the time, it was nothing like the uproar that occurred when Wilson borrowed Ed Popham's lacrosse stick one day and broke it.

In 1920 the club fortunes were at their lowest ebb. The war had taken its toll and there were few new members. The original club house, built for $1,000 in 1902, was lost when the mortgage holder foreclosed. Since then only football has remained as the continuing club activity.

Before that, club members were active in almost everything — basketball, track, boxing, tumbling, lacrosse. Socials were commonplace. As a matter of fact for a time the in-thing for the Saturday night swingers in town was the combination basketball program and army band concert in the drill hall on Menzies Street where the Motor Vehicle branch now is. The cost was moderate too: 10 cents!

The mere mention of boxing should bring the blood to a boil of those who can recall Joe Bailey. He was a member of the Wests, but more. He was the best fighter of his time in the Dominion, and won the Canadian lightweight title from J. Allan on May 27, 1912.

Family groups have also played a large part in Victoria West club history. The Yousons — Jack, Bert, Frank, later John . . . The Spellers, Murray, Lionel and Roy; Harold, Nip and Pop Sage; Gordon and Bobby Bell; Sid and Jimmy Sherratt; the Restells, Tommy and Charlie, all those Okells and who can forget one memorable date in local football, in which Victoria West players reigned supreme?

Mighty Fulham of the English League first division had come to town for an exhibition game against Victoria's best. When Fulham left they weren't so mighty. Two of the Wests players had seen to that. Ab Travis had scored the only goal of the match, and brother Joe, in goal, had turned aside every thrust of the visitors.

And if any list of ex-Wests (and family affiliation) is seemingly endless, it is. But at least Percy in his booklet on club history, has made a valiant attempt to get all the names in print . . . "I don't think I've missed anyone," he explained.

Then he added: "You know there is one fellow who literally died, fighting for the Wests. That was Tom Crocker."

But more on that, and the Wests tomorrow.

Policeman, Student Die In Chilean Soccer Riot

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — A policeman and a student were killed Wednesday night in rioting after a heated South American Cup semi-final soccer game, and more than a dozen spectators and police were injured.

It was the worst soccer riot in Chilean memory. The melee lasted for 2½ hours after Estudiantes de la Plata of Argentina beat Union Espanola de Chile 1-0 in a rough game before 50,000 fans in National Stadium.

The policeman was killed by a piece of drainpipe thrown from a top tier of the stadium, police reported. The 17-year-old student was killed when a tear gas bomb exploded in his face, they said.

Junior Playoffs Remain in Doubt

TORONTO (CP)—Further junior amateur hockey playoffs remained in doubt today after the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association failed Wednesday to arrange an East-West playoff and St. Catharines refused to continue their eastern series at Quebec.

St. Catharines Black Hawks were involved in a best-of-seven series with Quebec Remparts for the Richardson Cup the Eastern Canada championship.

The Hawks beat the Remparts 6-3 in the fifth game here Wednesday night and the sixth game was scheduled for Quebec City Friday.

But Hawks president Fred Mulfer said immediately after the game that he would not send his players back to Quebec where they were attacked Saturday by angry Quebec fans.

Quebec leads the series 3-2.

NO OFFICIAL NOTICE

Earl Dawson, Canadian Amateur Hockey Association president, said later he had not received official notice of the Hawks' intention of not going back to Quebec.

"We have until Friday and then if St. Catharines does not show up in Quebec, then I would say we would have to declare Quebec the winner," Dawson said in a telephone interview.

The dispute followed meetings earlier Wednesday with representatives of the Ontario Hockey Association, the Quebec Junior Hockey Leagee and the Western Canada Hockey League.

PROPOSED PLAYOFF

Bill Hunter, manager and major shareholder of Edmonton Oil Kings of the Western Canada Hockey League, and WCHL president Ron Butlin proposed an East-West playoff for the Memorial Cup, emblematic of national junior hockey supremacy.

Dawson said after the meetings that no conclusion was reached on a national playoff but that talks on the matter would continue.

He said a "matter of pride on both sides" was the stumbling block to an agreement on a national final but he would not specify what the matter of pride involved.

The OHA and the Quebec league have said they would refuse to play off against the WCHL because western teams have been allowed the use of four over-age players each and western teams received $10,000 travel expenses each compared to $5,000 for the eastern teams.

Dawson said he felt he had made "some special concessions" in listening to the St. Catharines complaints about having to go back to Quebec for a sixth game.

He had received assurances from Quebec officials that adequate police protection would be provided.

Phils Upset by Homers And 'Tick' That Wasn't

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The burning question in Philadelphia is whether the Phillies were done in Wednesday night by three pitches that hit Chicago Cub bats or one pitch that didn't.

There may be different opinions on the matter. As far as the Cubs are concerned, home runs by Ron Santo, Johnny Callison and Billy Williams that accounted for six runs in a 9-4 triumph were the keys to victory.

However, the Phillies contend that a ruling by umpire Tom Gorman that Jim Hickman checked his swing and did not foul-tip a 3-2 pitch was as crucial as any of the homers.

METS BEATEN

Elsewhere in the National League, Houston Astros edged New York Mets 5-4, San Diego Padres nipped Pittsburgh Pirates 2-1, San Francisco Giants trounced Cincinnati Reds 7-2 and Los Angeles Dodgers blanked Atlanta Braves 5-0.

The Cubs and Phillies were scoreless in the fourth inning when the fireworks—physical and verbal—started. Williams singled with one out and then came the disputed fourth ball to Hickman. Joe Pepitone popped up for what the Phils thought should have been the third out, but Santo belted a three-run homer and Callison followed with a solo shot.

YELL AT UMPIRE

When Gorman called ball four on Hickman with Williams running, catcher Mike Ryan exploded and he, pitcher Jim Bunning, and manager Frank Lucchesi all screamed at the umpire.

"He foul-ticked it," roared Ryan.

"I didn't hear anything," said Gorman as he waved Hickman to first base.

Houston unloaded on Mets' ace Tom Seaver for four runs in the sixth and the Astros hung on. Singles by Roger Metzger, Joe Morgan and Denis Menke snapped a scoreless duel between Seaver and Don Wilson.

A two-base error by Cleon Jones and Morgan's single accounted for the decisive run in the seventh.

Oakland knocked Sam McDowell out of the box en route to an 8-1 victory over Cleveland. Bert Blyleven took a pitcher's duel from Ray Culp as Minnesota Twins edged Boston Red Sox, 1-0 and the New York Yankees tripped Milwaukee Brewers 3-0 on Mel Stottlemyr's three hitter.

In other games Detroit Tigers whipped California Angels 8-1 behind Joe Coleman and Chicago White Sox took a doubleheader from Washington Senators, 5-0, and 9-5.

DONOHUE HITS 'MAGIC TIME'

Donohue said he reached the magic time of 50 seconds flat for the 2½-mile oval. The time was clocked by hand by the crew. The official electric timer was busy on drivers' tests.

Donahue, engineering graduate of Brown University, has been satisfying the crowds watching practice for Saturday's opening time trials for the 55th 500-mile race May 29. He did 174.4 May 3 and 177.901 May 6.

Al Unser, last year's winner, was high qualifier last year at 170.221.

Locker-Room Ban Ends

HOUSTON (AP) — A major flap about a ban on admittance to the player's locker room — a controversy that once threatened the start of the Houston Champions Invitation Golf Tournament — was resolved late Wednesday and plans for the $125,000 event went ahead on schedule.

"We're going to get this resolved by tomorrow morning or they're not going to go off No. 1 tee," Bob Rule, executive secretary of the sponsoring Houston Golf Association said before the problem was ironed out.

A settlement was hammered out in a meeting between Rule, members of the host Champions Golf Club and officials of the Tournament Players Division of the PGA.

Under the new arrangements, accredited members of the working press, along with TPD officials—both of whom had been banned earlier in the week—will be allowed in the locker room.

A small section of the room, however, will be screened off, as a "cool" room and players only will be admitted to that area, giving them a private area and a place to cool off after coming in from the course.

The locker room was closed to all but players earlier in the week in a precedent-setting move. The ban was ordered by Ed Griffiths, TPD tournament supervisor and the man in charge of this tournament.

OUTDOOR SCENE

By Barry M. Thornton

During the past three years membership in fish and game clubs throughout the province has fallen dramatically. In 1968 the B.C. Wildlife Federation, the provincial voice of organized sportsmen, had a membership well over 17,000. Today the membership is just over 11,000. Club membership in the Federation has fluctuated but not declined during this period however, individual memberships in these clubs continues to fall and hence the overall decline in the Federation membership.

Those who support the fish-and-game movement and recognize that it has only been through a strong and unified voice that action has been forthcoming for wildlife and outdoor recreation, are deeply concerned with this drastic drop in membership.

Regular users of the outdoors, the hunters and anglers, have remained almost static during this three-year period with only a slight increase in licenced hunters (now totalling just over 150,000) and an equally slight increase in anglers (now just over 200,000). The majority of hunters are also anglers, so one can guesstimate that there are approximately 250,000 steady outdoor users licenced in B.C.

Why then this serious membership drop?

One can speculate on the cultural club membership drop throughout North America which has seen a steady membership decline in all areas during the past five years. It has been noted that those who become involved in organizations in their special interest areas usually number between 5 and 10 per cent of the total participants. If we apply the 5 per cent to B.C. outdoorsmen we find that the Federation is receiving close to the 12,500 membership to be expected.

Is this justification or is this membership loss typical of the disinvolvement we now find repeatedly with outdoorsmen?

Another problem lies in the clubhouse phase, in which most fish and game clubs have become totally engrossed. Few are the clubs now that haven't acquired property to build their public dens. It is a necessary phase which fortunately will pass when facilities are completed. However, in the interim wildlife is suffering irreparable harm and the hunter's ethic in the public eye has almost reached the irreparable "butcher" connotation.

The major concern and one which has literally amounted to brainwashing, is the unquestioning worship given to the specialists who now manage our fish and wildlife resources. During the sixties their policy can best be described as a "butchershop" policy. "We have a huntable surplus and therefore it shall be harvested." They were impervious to the ethics and mores of the outdoor fraternity. And, unfortunately, the outdoor fraternity through their infatuation of statistics swallowed this policy. Many outdoorsmen knew not where to turn and in disgust forsook the clubs who still continue unwittingly to demand this form of management.

In this vicious circle clubs support the vast area blanket management policy that lacks the imagination and forsight for the outdoorsman's moral and aesthetic needs. One prime example of this was a resolution passed at the Wildlife Federation convention in 1968 which demanded no closure or special tackle regulations on any stream in the province except for biological reasons.

This year the B.C. Wildlife Federation Annual Convention will be held in Penticton during the 19-22 of May. Delegates from the 180 member clubs will be voting on a variety of resolutions which will have far reaching effects on all outdoorsmen in the province should they be implemented.

The blanket management attitude continues to be shown by one resolution presented by the Lower Mainland zone; that of banning the use of roe throughout all lakes and streams in B.C. All anglers will agree that there are specific lakes or streams where this should be legislated but to legislate all is ridiculous.

On the other side however, a resolution submitted by the Victoria Fish & Game Association requesting experimental "bucks only" areas shows the beginning of a pendulum swing towards ethical hunting as opposed to "butchershop" management.

QUALIFYING COMPLETED . . . . . IN SCHOOL TRACK MEET

Mount Douglas Retains Strength

Mount Douglas appears to have lost little of the strength which helped win three straight Greater Victoria and the past two provincial high school track and field championships.

Coach Stan Gill's squad finished Wednesday's final heats with the highest number of entries for the city finals, scheduled to begin at 10:30 a.m. Friday at Centennial Stadium.

Mount Douglas qualified 64 athletes in the three-day heats at Centennial Stadium, including 41 in the all-important "A" section and 23 in the "B".

Points in the "A" section are distributed 15-10-7-6-5-4½-2-1½-1-½ for individuals and 7-5-4-3-2-1 in relays.

Claremont, Esquimalt and Victoria will likely stage the closest battle on Friday as all are within three "A" qualifiers of each other.

Victoria, which has skidded each year since finishing second in 1968, picked up only three berths in the eight Wednesday heat events.

FINAL QUALIFIERS

	"A"	"B"	Total
Mt. Douglas	41	23	64
Oak Bay	34	22	56
Claremont	32	20	52
Mount View	21	22	43
Esquimalt	19	18	37
Victoria	19	15	34
Belmont	8	20	28
Reynolds	10	17	27

Belmont, in its first competition this year, and Reynolds, in its sophomore year, should provide some close battles near the bottom of the standings.

Sean Walton of Claremont was accidentally left out of the "B" 800-metres in Tuesday's events by meet compilers and bumps Belmont's Dave Richardson, previously announced as qualified.

Betting Rise At Edmonton

EDMONTON (CP) — Betting was up slightly at the Edmonton spring thoroughbred meet — $2,940,429 compared with $2,860,683 for a comparable 10 days last spring. The pari-mutuel total during the meet which ended Tuesday was obtained at a time when virtually every track in North America is reporting a slump in wagering.

PM Limits News Conferences

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau has not given a general news conference in Ottawa since Dec. 22, 1969.

Apart from periodic announcements, such as imposition of the War Measures Act last fall, he has not made a Commons speech since Oct. 9, 1970.

Informants say the prime minister has decided to concentrate on the television interview as the best means of communicating with Canadians.

They say he is likely to rely more on television in the next election campaign than he did in 1968 when he flew back and forth across the country in a charter jet making 20-minute speeches here, there and everywhere.

Mr. Trudeau this year has given more news conferences abroad than in Canada.

He gave a brief news conference in Niagara Falls, Ont., April 2. He also gave news conferences here Jan. 5 and Feb. 9. But they were not general. They were on specific subjects—his participation in the Commonwealth prime ministers' conference in the first instance, the constitutional conference in the second.

MADE TV APPEARANCES

He has also made brief appearances for television cameras and radio microphones after the Commons question period on subjects of his choice.

By contrast, he gave at least five news conferences during his January Asian tour to Pakistan, India, Singapore, Indonesia and Ceylon.

However, these were as much part of the diplomatic protocol of the tour as the meetings with heads of government and visits to temples of all descriptions.

During his Pacific tour a year ago, Mr. Trudeau conducted at least five news conferences.

Mr. Trudeau used to have fairly frequent question-and-answer sessions with university students in Canada. But his only recent one was held in New Delhi in January and he has not had one at his old alma mater—the University of Montreal—or any other university in Quebec.

Sunday, Mr. Trudeau will appear for an hour on CBC television in a recorded interview. The transcript has already been made public by the prime minister's office after part of the tape was aired in New Westminster.

His general news conferences seldom, if ever, have lasted that long.

Mr. Trudeau is, however, available to the press in short bursts, so to speak, on the way to or from his Commons office.

Normally, he does not object to being button-holed for questions by reporters. But by and large he carefully chooses the timing and site of his major press appearances and more and more television is the medium.

During the Quebec troubles last October, Mr. Trudeau did not make a Commons speech. He left that task to Justice Minister John Turner and Regional Economic Expansion Minister Jean Marchand. But he appeared at least twice on television, once with a major speech.

Massey Ignored King Biography Reveals

LONDON (CP) — Vincent Massey, while Canadian high commissioner here before the Second World War, ignored orders from Prime Minister Mackenzie King not to consult with the British government on the explosive European situation, according to a book just published here.

It is a biography of Robin Barrington-Ward, editor of The Times from 1941 until his death in 1948 and deputy editor for several years before that. Barrington-Ward is depicted as the driving force behind The Time's policy of appeasement toward Hitler's Germany at a time when the newspaper had a deep impact on British foreign policy.

Biographer Donald McLachlan, a former Times foreign correspondent who died last January, suggests that Barrington-Ward's outlook was influenced by the supposed reluctance of the Canadian and other overseas Commonwealth governments to back a tough stand by Britain.

KEPT HIM AWARE

The future governor-general and Barrington-Ward had been fellow students at Oxford, and the biographer says:

"His frequent meetings with his old balliol friend . . . had kept him keenly aware of the dominions' wary attitude to commitments in Europe. . . ."

In a footnote McLachlan adds that during the Munich crisis of September, 1938, Barington-Ward kept in close touch with Massey who, according to the Times man's diary, was "all against world war merely to keep minorities under Czech rule."

The diary entry continues: "Canadian government of Mackenzie King, the feeble creature forbids him to join consultations at the dominions office. He goes all the same to get information but does not advertise his presence there."

"Massey," the author adds, "Kept himself well enough informed to be able to show to Barrington-Ward on Sept. 25 Hitler's Godesberg proposals the day before Jan Masaryk (then Czechoslovakian minister to Britain) made them known in London."

HOPES SHATTERED

McLachlan also recounts how in April of 1939 — six weeks after the German occupation of Czechoslovakia had "shattered his hopes" of a negotiated peace in Europe — Barrington-Ward wrote to George Ferguson of the Winnipeg Free Press explaining his understanding of appeasement.

Ferguson, now editor emeritus of The Montreal Star, then was managing editor of The Free Press, which had persistently criticized British softness toward Germany.

POPE ISSUES PLEA FOR SOCIAL REFORM

By WILLIAM R. MacKAYE

WASHINGTON (WP)—In a Papal declaration to be issued Friday, Pope Paul VI asserts that Christians should not back off from the problems that assail the world but should involve themselves actively in meeting the needs of the day.

The fact that some persons embrace ideological positions incompatible with Christianity, notably Marxists and proponents of unbridled liberalism, should not necessarily discourage Christians to co-operate with them, the Pontiff adds.

But, he adds, Christians should at the same time be on their guard not to go beyond this co-operation into becoming beguiled by philosophies that may be not only dangerous but also inadequate to deal with complexities of life.

This summons to believers to participate in social reform while at the same time keeping their sights set beyond the visible horizon forms the backbone of the 12,000-word document, which has become available to a number of newspapers.

The Pontiff clearly intends the wide-ranging document, which technically is cast in the form of an "apostolic letter," to be taken as an example on social teaching virtually on a par with his pioneering 1967 encylical "Populorum Processio" (on the development of peoples).

Nun-Running Charge Refuted by Vatican

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The Vatican announced today that two investigations had disproved charges that Indian girls were sold to convents in Europe to work as domestics.

The announcement admitted, however, that some Indian nuns have had trouble adjusting to convent life in Europe. It urged Western orders of nuns to open convents in India so Indian girls and women could follow the religious vocation at home.

The London Sunday Times said last August that convents in Europe purchased more than 1,200 peasant girls in the Indian state of Kerala who wanted to become nuns. The newspaper said it had identified convents in Britain, Italy, France and Germany that imported Indian girls for about $600 to $720 each.

Several days later a letter published in an Italian newspaper, attributed to an Indian nun, said she and other Indian girls were made to scrub toilets and wash pots and pans while the Italian nuns in the convent performed no menial labor.

The Vatican reported on two separate investigations, one among convents and bishops in Europe and the other among priests and nuns who worked in India.

NO PROOF OF SALE

"We can energetically affirm that there is no evidence to confirm the charge that the girls had been 'sold' to religious orders," the Vatican communique said.

"The families of the girls did not ask or receive any money. Besides, the air tickets for the girls were always paid directly to airlines by Western convents."

But then the communique said: "Some recruiters received, besides the money destined for the girls' expenses, other sums of money from Western convents, some offered spontaneously, some solicited, for the social and charitable works in India." It was not clear whether any person had profited from the exchange of nuns between India and Europe.

The Sunday Times reported that the first Kerala girls had arrived in Europe in 1960. It said more than $720,000 in church funds had been spent to buy the girls.

Following the report, the Vatican announced that the practice of sending girls from India had been suspended.

Laws Criticized

VANCOUVER (CP) — A director of the Legal Aid Society said Canadian vagrancy laws discriminate against transient youths.

Frank Maczko told an audience of about 50 persons at the YMCA centre that current vagrancy laws are based on feudal laws designed to keep serfs from moving to the cities.

He said: "It's not much different now — those same laws are being used to prevent youth from moving from city to city."

New Threat for Disaster-Struck Town

ST. JEAN VIANNEY, Que. (CP) — Civil protection officials announced late Wednesday they were closing another section of this nearly-deserted community following a forecast of rain today.

Officials of the Quebec civil protection organization said another 40 homes would be cordoned off at least temporarily in this village where some 1,300 persons lived until a giant earth slide claimed 31 lives and swept 36 homes down a gorge into the Riviere aux Vases last May 4.

Government geologist Jean-Yves Chagnon called on provincial police to close part of the village for an indefinite period because the soft earth was in danger of crumbling, "rain or no rain."

However, he denied earlier published reports which claimed new fissures had appeared in the earth near the disaster site. He said none had appeared since the day following the slide.

In a St. Jean Vianney story Wednesday, The Canadian Press erroneously reported that Mr. Chagnon had ordered the evacuation of 48 homes following discovery of an imposing fissure some 2,000 feet from the disaster site.

BODY FOUND

Meantime, frogmen probing the mouth of the river, seven miles downstream from St. Jean Vianney, discovered the body of Donald Soucy, 12. His was the fifth body discovered.

The youth's parents are listed among the remaining 26 persons missing and presumed dead, buried beneath the 15-million tons of rubble that thundered into the gorge late Tuesday night, May 4.

The future of St. Jean Vianney, 115 miles north of Quebec City, remains in doubt. Most residents are living with friends and relatives in such nearby communities as Jonquiere and Chicoutimi. Some are quartered in mobile homes provided by the provincial government.

In Quebec City Tuesday, Municipal Affairs Minister Maurice Tessier said he intends to force municipalities to ensure the solidity of the ground before undertaking any new housing developments.

U.S. Blamed For Collision With Red Tug

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet labor newspaper charged today that an American destroyer was following and photographing a Soviet rescue vessel just before the two ships collided in the Korea Strait May 6.

The newspaper Trud gave this account:

"With every second, the military ship continued to approach, and its crew was taking movies and photographs of the Soviet ship. The actions of the American sailors created an emergency situation. And finally the collision occurred."

The Soviet foreign ministry filed a protest with the U.S. embassy Tuesday.

A U.S. Navy statement May 6 said the ships were the U.S. destroyer Hanson and the Soviet tug Diomid. It said no one was injured, and the ships suffered only minor damage.

THE THINKER HEADING FOR COVER

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — A bronze cast of Rodin's The Thinker is going to be kept inside the Baltimore Museum of Art permanently to protect it from air pollution. The conservator who oversaw the statute's recent cleaning said the thick green crust of corrosive materials which accumulated in its 40 years in front of the museum had eaten the bronze down to a point where it could not stand another cleaning.

Gillespie — An Old Master Still at Work

By JOHN CUNNINGHAM

TORONTO (CP) — Behind a solid barrage of present-day rock drumming, the thumping of a modern electric bass and the occasionally audible sounds of a well-played piano, the subtly-skilled trumpet notes played by Dizzy Gillespie still showed the earmarks of an old master at work.

Perhaps there was some truth to the claims of the Toronto critics who said that Gillespie, one of the founding brothers of bop some 30 years ago, had done away with the crazy, leaping solos that had placed him in the top half-dozen of the world's greatest jazz trumpeters.

But as the evening performance at Toronto's Colonial Tavern wore on, Dizzy's tightly-muted trumpet stylings carried with them some of those moments of Gillespie jazz charisma remembered well by music fans of a couple of decades ago.

His band, a five-member group made up mostly of musicians much younger than himself, has a solid rock rhythm section.

'GOTTA KEEP UP'

Yet the star, Dizzy himself, must play a bop-styled jazz with only occasional jazz hints from piano player, Michael Longo.

How to overcome the electrified sound of an amplified guitar and bass, counteract the onslaught of heavy drum off-beats and still retain a distinctive jazz sound?

Stopping to buy an underground newspaper from a bearded, long-haired youth dressed in a hippie outfit, Dizzy said:

"Dixieland jazz was the message of the '20s. It was all right for its time.

"But rock 'n' roll is the music of now. I like it. Some of it is not so good. Some of it excellent."

Dizzy said his band has decided to come to a compromise.

They play bop—but it has a rock 'n' roll base.

PURSE REDUCTION HINTED . . . . . AT EXHIBITION PARK

Another Problem for Horsemen

VANCOUVER (CP) — The next week and a half could make-or-break the horsemen at Vancouver's Exhibition Park.

Already facing a possible jockey strike Friday, the Horsemen's Benevolent and Protective Association is faced with a proposal from the British Columbia Jockey Club to lower purses if the mutuel handle does not pick up considerably.

The horsemen were meeting today to decide whether to give the jockeys a fee increase to 10 per cent of the purse for a winning ride.

The jockeys have said they will not ride on Friday's card unless they are granted a straight 10-per-cent increase.

The horsemen have offered to pay the jockeys 10 per cent, minus a one-per-cent government bonus which is rebated to the horse owners.

The Jockey Club's conditional proposal is to decrease the minimum purse to $1,550 from $1,700. Betting at the track is off about 13 per cent this year.

Jockey Club spokesman Jack Diamond says the club is still looking at the purse situation and isn't expected to make any decisions until the end of next week.

On Wednesday, Jim Arnold stole the show again, padding his riding lead by bringing in three winners, including Reuben Sandwich in the featured seventh race.

Another highlight was the $244.10 Exacto in the sixth race, set up when Bumpty Bump and Maurice Roy finished in that order.

The attendance was 4921 and the mutuel handle $251,847.

Wrong Diagnosis

WINNIPEG (CP) — Alvin Hamilton, a former cabinet minister in the Diefenbaker administration, says the federal government has wrongly diagnosed Canada's inflation ills.

Hamilton said the government's policy of "tightening up where it's already too tight" was compounding current economic problems.

Before the Judge

A 19-year-old youth was sentenced to four months definite and 10 months indeterminate in jail Wednesday by Judge William Ostler and his 18-year-old companion given a suspended sentence with a two-year probation for uttering forged cheques.

Both John B. Garraway, of 1763 Glastonbury, who was jailed, and William E. White, of 1660 Cedar, who was placed on probation, had pleaded guilty to the offences earlier.

Ostler in passing sentence said he was impressed by the attitudes of the fathers of both accused.

Garraway's father was called to testify Wednesday by his son.

He told Ostler that his son had had some difficulty with drugs and had left home a year ago. The son was sentenced by Ostler to jail last summer and was released from prison in October.

Since his release, the father said, John passed three school courses he was taking while living back with his family.

And recently, the youth had signed a contract with his family to cut out drugs and keep reasonable hours, the father added.

"We feel more hope now than a year ago," the elder Garraway said.

Ostler said in White's case it was his first appearance in criminal court although the number of offences was serious.

Garraway, court was told earlier, cashed three cheques at a bank and food market between mid-March and mid-April that had been stolen by White from the restaurant where he was employed.

The cheques totalled just over $350.

White also cashed a cheque of $123.50 at a department store March 24. The cheque was also one of those he took from the restaurant.

Ostler said he would recommend Garraway be screened for one of the forestry camps on the island, a request the accused had made so it would be easier for visits from his family.

Larry F. Whitehead, 17, of 4989 Lochside Drive, was fined $350 for possession of marijuana Jan. 29.

He was searched, court was told when he pleaded guilty earlier, by officers and a quantity of the substance with a hookah pipe was found in a car at Saanich and Darwin in Saanich.

* * *

Russell G. McKee, 18, of 887 Brett, and Joseph E. Poulton, 18, of 1135 Camrose Crescent, were each fined $75 when they pleaded guilty to shoplifting a coat from the Woolco department store.

A police officer said the two were in the store about 8:30 p.m. May 8 and selected several clothing items including the coat.

The officer said one of the accused went to a checkout counter with some of the merchandise for purchase and other went out the door with the coat, valued at $46.

The two were apprehended outside the store.

Ostler said the accused were to pay the fines from money they earned at weekend jobs.

* * *

Edward Ivanisko, 19, of Campbell River, was fined $350 when he pleaded guilty to possession of marijuana.

Court was told that he was checked about 2:45 a.m. May 12 and a bag containing some of the substance was found in a pocket.

Gene Grant Materi, 27, of 517 Galiano Crescent, was fined $300 in traffic court by Judge E. F. N. Robinson for impaired driving and prohibited from driving for three months.

THE DOCTOR IS A HYPNOTIST

Woman Sings During Caesarean Operation

TORONTO (CP) — It was a Caesarian operation and the woman was not under anesthetic, yet she sang her favorite song as the doctor delivered her a seven-pound, seven-ounce baby boy.

Unbelievable? Dr. Ralph August, a Muskegon, Mich., obstetrician and gynecologist had it all on film Wednesday at the annual meeting of the Ontario Medical Association.

Dr. August is also a hypnotist.

After the operation on film, the hypnotized mother told Dr. August that giving birth was a pleasant experience.

"I knew every minute what you were doing," she said. "You made two cuts, didn't you? And I could feel you probing for the baby."

Dr. August, who says he offers his patients their choice of conventional anesthesia or hypnosis, finds the latter successful in 85 per cent of his cases.

He has followers in Canada.

Dr. J. F. Grehan of St. Catharines said in an interview after the film that an Ontario Society of Clinical Hypnosis has been formed, with about 50 physicians.

He said that next fall Dr. Daniel Glick of Toronto will teach hypnosis as a medical technique to undergraduate medical students in the University of Toronto course.

LOST LITTLE BLOOD

Dr. August told the OMA the woman lost only six ounces of blood during the Caesarian, much less than most mothers. He said reduced bleeding is characteristic of most surgery under hypnosis.

The film showed Dr. August relaxing his patient before surgery until she was in a deep hypnotic state.

She was taken to the operating room and no pain-killer drugs were used. The doctor stayed with her during the entire procedure.

She liked music and singing so the doctor suggested she might feel more deeply relaxed if she sang.

To many, it might have seemed bizarre. The young woman lay on the table looking happy and singing to herself.

When the baby was born, Dr. August held him up and suggested that she look at her son. She opened her eyes, raised her head and beamed with pleasure. Then, she went back to sleep, singing to herself.

Bathing Halted

LUGANO, Switzerland (AP) — Bathing in famed Lake Lugano was banned because of pollution. Local authorities making the decision said that the once clear, blue waters of the lake now are so polluted they are a health hazard to swimmers.

Sewage Plan Draws Fire

PRINCETON, B.C. (CP) — The B.C. government has been accused of setting double standards in pollution control because of a proposal by the department of recreation and conservation to dump 28,000 gallons of treated sewage a day into the Similkameen River.

The department has proposed primary and modified secondary treatment for sewage from its Manning Park lodge and ski-hill complex east of Allison Pass on the Hope-Princeton Highway. It would then be dumped into the Similkameen River.

Opponents say not one community on the Canadian section of the Similkameen puts any sewage effluent into the river, which they call one of the purest in the province.

One irrigation district has filed a protest with the pollution control branch and the South Okanagan Health Unit has complained to Health Minister Ralph Loffmark.

The Okanagan Water Basin Board, made up of about 20 Okanagan and Similkameen communities, will consider the recreation department's application at a meeting in Kelowna today. The Princeton village council will consider it Monday and the Okanagan-Similkameen regional district on Thursday.

Dr. David Clarke, director of the South Okanagan health unit, says its unthinkable to put any sewage into the Similkameen. He calls it a case of double standards, adding that the main discharge would be in mid-summer and mid-winter when the river is at its lowest level.

"I just can't understand their thinking," he said. "While it will cost more, there is no reason why the department can't discharge the treated effluent on land. The government certainly has plenty of land in the park."

Barbara Lawrence, a member of the Okanagan-Similkameen Regional District, said "this application is something we have to stop immediately or we could end up with more people looking for an excuse to dump effluent into the river . . ."

Outdoor Groups Combine To Gain Recreation Area

Outdoor groups on the Saanich Peninsula have agreed to pool their resources to obtain more trails and open space for general recreation.

B. G. Parker, a member of the Victoria Polo Club, said representatives of 15 organizations attended a meeting to discuss the opening of riding and walking trails.

"This was basically the object of the meeting, but we are also interested in parks and greenbelts," he said. "If we are to preserve the beauty and recreational aspects of this area, we must work together."

TRAIL SOUGHT

The combined outdoor groups appointed one member for each municipality — Saanich, Central Saanich, North Saanich — who would act as a liaison between councils and the organizations on recreation matters.

The plan calls for a system of trails linking all major parks on the peninsula, such as Mount Douglas, Elk-Beaver Lake, Thetis Lake, Goldstream, Dean Park and Horth Hill.

Estimated cost of the trail program when it was formulated in 1969 was $208,000.

But the project has made no headway because the region is committed to acquiring as much parkland as possible before land prices rise to exorbitant levels.

LEVY INCREASE

It has been suggested to the regional board that the park levy of half-a-mill be increased by one-quarter or half-mill to speed up the parkland acquisition program and trail development project. This would require the approval of municipalities.

Parker said outdoor groups will study the proposal for increasing the park levy.

Groups represented at the meeting were the Victoria Outdoor Club, Victoria Polo Club, Junior Forest Wardens, Victoria Natural History, Sunset Riding Club, Pony Club, Victoria Western Horsemen, Sierra Club, Victoria Canoe Club, Bow and Arrow Riding Club, Garden City Riding Club.

Combined membership of outdoor clubs is about 2,000.

VACUUM WIRED FOR SOUND

SHEFFIELD, England (UPI) — When housewife Betty Hoyland heard voices coming from her vacuum cleaner for the second day running, she decided enough was enough, and she complained to the manufacturer.

The company's representatives hurried to inspect the device and explained that the machine had been acting like a radio receiver because of freak conditions and was picking up strong radio signals.

New Housing Starts Down From '70 Total

New housing starts in Greater Victoria fell 6 per cent in March compared with a year ago, bringing total starts since Jan. 1 down by 40 per cent.

Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. reports single family units in Victoria were down 20 per cent, apartment starts off 45 per cent in the quarter.

On a provincial basis, for communities of 10,000 population or better, the trend was opposite, showing a 9 per cent increase in starts for March and 3 per cent improvement in the quarter.

B.C. had 1,729 new housing units in March, compared with 1,591 units a year ago, and 4,384 in the first three months vs. 4,273 in 1970.

An indication of the demand for new housing, despite fewer starts, may be seen in the number of newly built but unoccupied units, which in metropolitan Victoria in March numbered 275 compared with 349 in February and 425 in March 1970.

This area had 198 starts in March (210 a year ago) and 530 in the first quarter (880), with 1,580 under construction (2,397), and 450 completions (702).

Of these, there were 48 single family, or semi-detached duplex in March (79), and 150 row and apartment type units (131). For the quarter, respective figures were 149 (186) and 381 (694).

Before the Judge

An Ontario merchant appeared in Victoria provincial court Wednesday to testify on behalf of a 20-year-old man who pleaded guilty to four charges of trafficking in drugs.

Donald Brill told Judge William Ostler that he had come to ask for leniency in the case of Gordon William McKie, also of Toronto, who faced charges of trafficking in LSD July 10 and 21, in hashish July 13 and in heroin July 29.

McKie pleaded guilty.

Brill said he had come from Toronto after meeting McKie through his son last August. He said his son picked up McKie when he was hitchhiking in Winnipeg last summer.

Brill said the accused had stayed with his family, admitting a troubled childhood and use of drugs that had been ended.

He added that McKie went to work for his firm in Ottawa, driving a truck and handling large sums of money.

"He developed a relationship with our family and not only he for us but us for him," Brill said.

A RCMP officer testified that McKie sold one undercover agent two tablets of LSD for $10 July 10 and a gram of hash for $5 three days later.

The accused, the officer said, then sold a second agent two tablets of LSD for $5 July 21 and a capsule of heroin for $20 July 29.

Defence counsel Lloyd McKenzie, arguing for a suspended sentence, said it was "almost miraculous" that McKie should be thumbing a ride in Winnipeg and land in with the Brill family.

Prosecutor Cecil Branson, however, while agreeing that it was an unusual case, opposed a suspended sentence because of the number of charges and the involvement of heroin which he termed "a most despicable drug."

Ostler remanded the case to May 28 for pre-sentence report and to look at higher-court judgments in similar circumstances.

SCHOOL BURSTING AT SEAMS

Sidney Elementary is bursting at the seams and a meeting will be held there tonight to determine how to cope with the overflow.

School superintendent Cory Holob says attendance has risen from 599 in June 1970 to a present registration of 670. Rapid suburban growth in Sidney is responsible for the increase which is expected to continue at a rate of 5 per cent a year.

TRANSFER 90

"Every hole has now been filled," says Holob, who explained the school board is considering transfer of about 90 students by bus to Deep Cove Elementary and Sansbury Elementary, both in North Saanich.

The situation will be explained to parents at the meeting tonight which will be attended by school board trustees Harry Tobin and Charley MacNeill, superintendent Holob, grounds supervisor Bryan Shaw and principals of all three schools involved.

Plans are on paper for the establishment probably in 1973 of a second elementary school in the city which will be accommodated in the present junior high school when the new junior-senior school complex is built.

STAR-GAZERS MEET HERE

More than three dozen papers on almost every aspect of star-gazing will be read at University of Victoria Friday and Saturday as 70 astronomers from across the country gather for a conference of the National Research Council's Committee on Astronomy.

Included on the agenda is discussion of a proposal to build a huge radio telescope on the Clearwater River, which would make Canada a world leader in the field.

Astronomers from the Dominion Observatory here will repot on their studies of binary stars and galaxy structure, for which the observatory is internationally known.

LIFER SAYS HE'LL LIVE TO BE 900

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — In a petition to the California Supreme Court, a San Quentin prisoner says he wants his life sentence for murder ended because, like Methuselah, he expects to live for 900 years.

Percy Jones, 44, told the court he follows biblical sanctions against certain foods and his "religious conscience" otherwise convinces him of a 900-year life.

He said his five-year-to-life term was imposed under old theology that a man was expected to live 65 to 75 years.

ONE PARENT BILLED FOR BROKEN WINDOWS

One parent has been billed for school windows broken by his son in the school board's tough new approach to mounting window replacement costs.

A school board spokesman said today's costs of replacing windows in Greater Victoria schools was $13,900 from Jan. 1 to April 20 this year. Almost all the damage is deliberate and the school board is taking a firm approach to the problem, the spokesman said.

"There seems to be no economic or geographic pattern governing which schools are hit hardest," he said, but one factor is the number of loose rocks lying around.

Even after hiring an extra glazier, damage has been so heavy this spring that some of the repair work has had to be contracted out by the school board's construction and maintenance department.

April is the worst month for vandalism. This year's bill is running well ahead of last year, when the total window breakage for the year was $36,000.

Hardest hit was been S. J. Willis Junior High, where breakage has cost $2,078. On one night alone early in April, 45 windows were broken at the school.

The bill at Highrock Junior High was $1,901, and at Victoria High $1,044. Lowest window replacement costs were reported by Lake Hill Elementary at $8.50 and Mount Douglas High at $7.60.

In addition to billing parents when the culprit can be determined, the school board plans to increase lighting and surveillance at school grounds, and to ask students for suggestions on how to prevent vandalism.

Despite the mounting costs, construction and maintenance superintendent S. H. Dietz said the figure here is still below that in most other parts of the country.

'Safe' Viewpoint

Recreation Minister Ken Kiernan said Wednesday the proposal would be seriously considered.

"It appears that some type of safe viewpoint should be provided," he said.

Two sightseers, Herbert Otto Hohaus, 32, of West Germany, and Frank Pretula, 28, of Montreal, in less than a year plunged to their deaths over the 150-foot cliff.

Kiernan said a major problem facing parks planners is a policy which could be applied fairly to hundreds of danger spots in provincial parks throughout B.C.

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
Associated Press Writer

On May 25 Josip Broz Tito will be 79 years old.

The president-for-life of Yugoslavia is the world's oldest surviving Communist ruler. For more than 60 years he has been involved in war, revolution, intrigue and nation building.

"The situation in our country . . . is not good."

In his May Day speech he was not explicit about just what it was that was not good. In comparison with other Communist-ruled countries, Yugoslavia is a howling success economically and politically. But Tito's worries may have involved difficulties within the League of Communists, which is the ruling party organization.

There have been troubles in the party between those who lean toward old Stalinist ideas and those who want to continue liberalization. There have been worries, too, about a possible struggle for power after Tito.

NO SINGLE SUCCESSOR

With regard to the succession, Tito has spoken and now can only hope that his wishes are carried out. He has said that it is about time for him to leave the stage. There will be no single man as a successor, though it had once appeared likely that Tito's 60-year-old faithful lieutenant, Edvard Kardelj, would be the choice.

Tito appeared to want to avoid the risk of anointing any one man, probably mindful of the power-struggle experiences of other Communist nations, including the Soviet Union. Therefore, according to his wishes, after Tito there will be a state presidency made up of 14 equal members.

Education Minister Donald Brothers and Danny Wong

Minister Recommends Technical Education

DUNCAN — Education Minister Brothers urged Cowichan Senior Secondary stuudents Wednesday to consider enrolling in either a technical school or junior college rather than a university.

Brothers spoke after presenting 18-year-old Danny Wong, a graduate of the school, with the Governor-General's bronze medal for outstanding academic achievefent.

TRAGEDY

"Education is changing in the province," the minister said. "We are now concentrating on technical and college educations.

"The point seems to me is that we are looking at B.C. as a resource-based province."

Brothers said it is a tragedy that so many students are persuaded to go to university by their parents.

"Parents want university either because they never had the opportunity or because they are university graduates and their child must graduate from the same university."

Last year in a time of economic stress, Brothers said B.C. had 1,000 university graduates looking for jobs.

"They graduate and are not really qualified to do anything."

He compared this to the Burnaby-based B.C. Institute of Technology where "there were over 1,000 graduates and over 96 per cent got employment. The rest were awaiting the conclusion of strike negotiations before receiving positions."

Danny, third oldest of Mr. and Mrs. Poy Wong's six sons, achieved a 98.5 per cent average in last year's Grade 12 exams. The top mark was 99 per cent.

UBC STUDENT

He is now at the University of British Columbia.

Brothers told the students there is no doubt that Danny has abilities "but we all have abilities. The difference is that Danny is willing to go that extra mile and put the effort in."

Upon receiving the award to thundering applause from the assembly and when asked to speak Danny said, "This is very embarrassing, so I think it is best not to say too much." He then thanked both the minister and his teachers who helped him study for his final exams.

Early-Morning Fires Arson -Duncan Chief

DUNCAN—Fire Chief Vern Jones suspects two fires early Wednesday were deliberately set.

One gutted a house at 621 Coronation, the home of Ruby Evans who is partially deaf and blind.

The chief said prompt action by neighbor Bob Chadwick probably saved the woman's life because she was unaware of the fire. She lives alone.

A nearby shed also was destroyed.

A second shed owned by L. W. Aspden, 683 Charlotte, two blocks away, was burned to the ground about the same time.

Both fires occurred at 5:30 a.m.

ST. TROPEZ, France — The bridegroom was dawdling over lunch, the bride was still at the hairdresser. So Mick Jagger got married an hour late Wednesday after a heated argument with the mayor of this French Riviera resort town.

Jagger, the leader of the Rolling Stones rock group, telephoned the mayor and objected to the presence of about 100 photographers jamming into city hall. He demanded privacy for his nuptials, but Mayor Marius Astezan said the building was a public place and he couldn't order anyone out. The mayor added: "And if you're not here in 10 minutes, I'm leaving and to hell with the wedding." So Jagger cooled down and he and his Nicaraguan bride, Bianca Perez Morena de Macias, pushed through a crowd of about 500 for the service.

DAVIS, Calif.—Dirty pictures are being shown to medical students at the University of California to help them become better sex counsellors, Dr. Gordon Jensen said Wednesday. "Sexual problems are so common — it is important for the counsellor or physician to be aware of them," Jensen said. "This material is to relieve the shock impact of hearing patients' problems so the doctor can talk knowledgeably and not frighten them off." Jensen shows the pictures on an optional basis after class.

LONG BRANCH, N.J.—Tenants in an apartment house here complained to the building superintendent that they heard a horse prancing, kicking and whinnying in the apartment of Donald Remensnyder. Police visited the man and found a small pony. Not only was the pony being kept in violation of the building's "no pets" rule, and the town sanitation laws, but subsequent investigation showed that it had been stolen. Remensnyder was charged with "larceny of a horse."

ATLANTA—Atlanta may become the first major U.S. city to establish a four-day week for its municipal employees. Mayor Sam Massell announced Wednesday night that department heads will poll workers to determine if they favor a week of four 10-hour days in place of five eight-hour days.

SAN FRANCISCO—John Fairfax and his girl-friend Sylvia Cook were heading back to California Wednesday after turning around 125 miles off the coast in an attempt to row to Australia. They reportedly were coming back to get their radio fixed. Fairfax, 33, and Miss Cook, 31, left San Francisco April 26. U.S. Coast Guard reported the couple in good condition and said Fairfax refused an offer of a tow.

ABORIGINES RECRUITED

BRISBANE (Reuter) — Aborigines in Australia's far northern mineral boom areas have been recruited into a joint business searching for uranium in their tribal homelands.

A Brisbane-based minerals exploration company, Ocean Resources, has announced that the aborigines would be partners in the search with them and the big Canadian company, McIntyre Porcupine Mines.

The initial group of aborigines involved come from the Arnhem land mission station on the northern tip of the Northern Territory, near the site of the world's richest uranium prospect recently discovered by another company, Queensland Mines.

The group of aborigines had made a letter of agreement with the companies, said Ocean Resources.

Government officials have suggested that all aboriginal inhabitants of the tribal areas involved form themselves into an organization called the First Aboriginal Mining Company.

SHARES

The company would get royalties from the development of the area if uranium is found.

Initially, the aborigines will get a $10,000 consideration and 40,000 shares in Ocena Resources for the use of their prospecting authorities, said Ocean Resources.

This could rise over three years to $110,000 and one million shares, the Brisbane company added.

The partners have undertaken to employ 25 per cent aboriginal staff in the exploration team and 10 per cent in any development company.

McIntyre Mines and Ocean Resources also have been given first refusal on other prospecting authorities applied for by the aborigines close to the 1,385 square miles covered in the current arrangement.

Three Cadets for Overseas

Two will be taking a training course in the Caribbean and one competing in a rifle shoot at Bisley, England.

Taking summer training in Barbados during July and August will be Geoffrey Myers, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. B. J. Myers, 4765 Cordova Bay, and David Hoon, 16, son of Mr. and Mrs. Surjit S. Hoon, 583 Dupplin.

Both recently qualified as Master Cadets, Myers placing second in British Columbia and Hoon coming third. They will be part of a 20-strong Master Cadet contingent, chosen from across Canada.

Before going to the Caribbean, Myers and Hoon will receive preliminary training from July 9 to 22 at CFB Petawawa in Ontario.

In addition to the cadets going to Barbados, other qualified Master Cadets from across Canada will train in Jamaica, Trinidad-Tobago, Guyana and Wales.

Alex Boyte, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Boyte, 3131 Qu'Appelle, will be competing at the Commonwealth Rifle Shoot in Bisley as a member of the Canadian Army Cadet Corps Rifle Team. Boyte is a student at Mount View Senior Secondary.

John Bradshaw — one of Canada's foremost gardening authorities. He uses CIL Turf products on his own lawn, and recommends them on his radio shows. So we asked him to tell you how to use them. Read on.

How to grow the perfect lawn

by John Bradshaw

"Even an absolute beginner can have a lush green lawn this summer. Simply follow my advice, and use the CIL products I recommend."

The Pencil Test

Poke a pencil into the turf. If you can't penetrate 4 inches, the soil must be loosened up. Rent a lawn aerator or make your own spiker: drive 6" nails through a board, and screw on a handle. Spike the entire lawn. This lets air, food and water filter down to the roots. Next, rake out the thatch of dead grass. Now you're ready to fertilize.

When to fertilize

Feed as early as you can. Ideally, as soon as the snow melts. For the average established lawn, apply CIL Golf-green at the rate shown on the bag. It will not burn. Golf-green's special grass formula quickly builds thick green turf. Trace elements add extra color and vigor. In late June, growth slows. You normally mow about once every ten days. That's the time to feed again. (If you have a fine-textured grass, like Merion Blue, give a third feeding in Mid-August).

Watering: how often?

When grass turns blue-gray or yellow, get the water going. Not a daily sprinkle — a good 4 hour soak. Soil should be wet 2-3 inches down. Repeat the soak each time grass-colour changes.

Weeds, crabgrass, dead-spots

You can control crabgrass all season with a March application of CIL Crab Grass preventer. Just apply it like regular fertilizer. Other weeds, like chickweed, dandelion, foxtail can be taken out with CIL Weed and Feed. Apply CIL Weed and Feed as soon as weeds appear. The earlier you catch them, the better. Both these lawn products also give your lawn a good feed of safe non-burning lawn fertilizer. Dead-spots — patches of dead grass can mean grubs under the turf. Lift the dead grass. If you see grubs, apply some grub and bug killer over the whole lawn. Rough up soil under dead spots and re-seed.

Mowing

Don't cut too close, or too often. Set your mower for 1½" and mow once or twice a week. But in Summer, you shouldn't have to mow more than once every ten days. Keep blades sharp, cut regularly, and leave the short clippings on the lawn. They keep the soil moist, and provide organic material your soil needs.

Toadstools, Moss

Toadstools usually mean partly-rotted organic matter under the turf. Spike the area, apply Bordeaux mixture (from your nursery) then Golf-green. Moss means a re-seeding. Spike the area, apply CIL Acid Diet to kill moss, then re-seed with a shade-loving variety of grass. Feed with Evergreen.

New lawns

Need a special new-lawn formula fertilizer like CIL Evergreen. Work it into soil before sodding. Soak the sod after laying, and keep it moist until sod anchors to soil. After you have mown 3 times, apply CIL Evergreen at the rate shown on the bag. The following year, switch to Golf-green.

How to fertilize

Start with a good spreader. I can really recommend you rent or buy the CIL Spreader from your CIL dealer. To get a good even application, cut the recommended flow rate in half (there's a dial on the CIL spreader that lets you do this easily). Then spread your lawn criss-cross like this: Walk slowly and steadily. And always remember to open and close the feed gate only when moving.

Why I'm recommending CIL Turf Fertilizers

First Because I use them on my own lawn. I never have any trouble with weeds, or grubs. And CIL fertilizers have never burned the grass. Second You really don't have to worry about which analysis to use. Just choose the correct CIL name: Crabgrass-Preventer or Weed and Feed for sick lawns, Golf-green for established lawns, Evergreen for new lawns. Third CIL Turf Fertilizers are specially balanced to feed grass. Cheap 'General Purpose' fertilizers may do a part job — but many burn, and none are specially formulated for the lawn. So remember: look for the CIL name. Happy Gardening — and enjoy your perfect lawn this year!

CUT OUT AND KEEP

1. CIL Evergreen for new lawns

Special 'new-lawn' formula soon gets grass into shape. Won't burn; feeds for months. 50 lb. bag covers 2,500 sq. ft. per application.

2. CIL Golf-green for established lawns

Used by green keepers at big Canadian golf-courses for thick strong grass. Won't burn; feeds for months. 50 lb. bag covers up to 5,000 sq. ft. per application.

3. CIL Crabgrass Preventer — also feeds lawn, kills weed grasses

One safe application in early Spring prevents crabgrass all season. Also controls weed grasses like Foxtail and Barnyard Grass. Feeds safe non-burning lawn food. 40 lb. bag covers up to 2,000 sq. ft.

4. CIL Weed and Feed

Kills all broadleaf weeds — even tough creepers. Feeds long-lasting non-burning fertilizer. 40 lb. bag covers 4,000 sq. ft. per application.

Death Toll Passes 100 In Turkey Earthquakes

ISTANBUL (Reuter) — Relief supplies were rushed today to survivors of a devastating earthquake which killed more than 100 persons in southwest Turkey Wednesday.

The final casualty figures could be much higher because several mountain villages in the Burdur region hit by the earthquake were cut off and there was no way of assessing damage there.

Reports from the scene, about 370 miles southeast of Istanbul, said army units were using helicopters to aid in relief work and ground rescue teams were threading their way through the mountainous region with medical supplies and tents and food.

Officials struggling to feed, clothe and shelter the homeless also were worried that new tremors might strike and magnify the disaster.

Communications with the stricken area were still cut. The post office at Burdur, the provincial capital, was wrecked in the shock waves which followed the original earthquake, registered at eight on the open-ended Richter scale and felt along the entire Aegean Sea area.

The semi-official Anatolian news agency late Wednesday night reported that at least 100 bodies had been recovered—almost all in or around Burdur. More than 100 persons were injured.

At least 20 persons died in Burdur alone. About 50 buildings, including the provincial governor's office, were flattened. Up to 70 per cent of the dwellings, many made of wooden frames and clay, were reported damaged in the city of 30,000.

Apart from Burdur, the hardest-hit area was the Yesilova district about 30 miles to the west, where several villages were razed.

U.S. TROOP CUTS SEEN FOR EUROPE

WASHINGTON (WP)—Despite White House opposition, a Senate amendment requiring a 50 per cent cut in U.S. military forces in Europe by Dec. 31 appeared Wednesday to have an excellent chance of passage. The Senate agreed to take a showdown vote on the issue next Wednesday.

The amendment, sponoserd by majority leader Mike Mansfield (D-Mont.), is believed to have a slight majority in the Senate at present. The White House is expected to exert heavy pressure to reverse the margin between now and next Wednesday.

TOP DRINKERS IN ONTARIO

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario drinkers led Canada in beer consumption last year, says the Brewers Association of Canada's April bulletin.

Ontario had an annual consumption of 16.92 gallons per capita, ahead of Quebec with 16.90 and British Columbia with 16.58. Total Canadian consumption increased by three per cent over 1969.

From Reuter—AP

CAIRO (CP) — President Anwar Sadat of Egypt told his troops Wednesday night there is only a one-per-cent chance for peace in the Middle East despite U.S. State Secretary William Rogers's mission to Arab countries and Israel.

The semi-official newspaper Al Ahram said Sadat visited the troops on the Suez canal front and told army commanders that Egypt wants peace but is ready to fight if necessary.

Al Ahram quoted Sadat as saying: "Peace chances could only be rated at one per cent even after the recent visits by the American Secretary of State dilliam Rogers to both Cairo and Tel Avjv."

"There is one thing that we cannot accept to discuss with anybody—and that is the crossing over (of the canal) by Egyptian forces after any Israeli withdrawal," he declared.

Egypt has offered to reopen the canal, closed since the 1967 Arab-Israeli war, in exchange for partial Israeli withdrawal as the first phase of total evacuation. It also insists on the right to send forces across the waterway but the Israelis said they could only accept a civil administrative force such as the police.

U.S. Scientists in Gulf Testing Ocean Food Links

American scientists aboard the 95-foot ocean research vessel Dolphin are testing phytoplankton (microscopic algae) in the Strait of Georgia this month.

The expedition is being sponsored by the National Science Foundation and the Foundation for Ocean Research.

Heading the expedition are Dr. Andrew Benson and Dr. Richard Lee, marine biologists from Scripps' Institution of Oceanography at the University of California in San Diego.

The chief objectives of the research are to continue studies on fat metabolism in marine ecological systems and gain a better understanding of "who eats who, and why" in the ocean environment.

Also aboard in the party from Scripps are Dr. Judd Nevenzel, associate research biochemist; Dr. Osmund Holm-Hansen, research oceanographer from the Institute of Marine Resources, food research group; Donald Wilke, director of the Vaughan Aquarium-Museum; Jed Hirota, graduate student in biological oceanography, and technician Bette Baker.

Others are Dr. Nestor Bottino, professor of biochemistry at Texas A. and M. University; Dr. Virginia Swanson, professor of pathology at the University of Southern California; Thana Bisalputra, professor of botany and electron Microscopist at the University of British Columbia, and Dr. Abraham Rosenberg, professor of biochemistry at Pennsylvania State University's school of medicine.

At the time the algae bloom scientists know that copepods —tiny, shrimp-like marine organisms — end their winter hibernation and rise to within 30 feet of the ocean's surface. They are thought to be the very first animal link in the marine food chain.

Benson's group hopes to discover what triggers the return of the copepod and salmon fry at the same time. They are also searching for the biochemical signal (smell or taste) that makes this possible.

Inaction by Goyer Blamed For Kingston Riot Bloodshed

TORONTO (CP) — Law professor Desmond Morton says last month's Kingston penitentiary riot would have ended without anyone being killed or hurt had Solicitor-General Jean-Pierre Goyer promised the 500 prisoners they would not be "criminally mistreated."

The 44-year-old University of Toronto law professor was a member of a five-man citizens' committee which persuaded the 500 to free six hostage guards after four days of rioting, April 14-18, in the maximum security institution.

When the rebellion came to an end, 92 hours after the convicts seized the guards and occupied the penitentiary's main cellblock 11 prisoners had been injured and one convict killed. The guards were released unharmed.

Prof. Morton said in an interview Wednesday that the solicitor-general declined to guarantee the safety of the prisoners, so the rebels stayed put because "they were scared of being murdered or beaten."

"I put the blame on Goyer," Prof. Morton said when asked why the stand-off didn't end Friday, April 16, two days after the riot started.

ONE KILLED

Prisoner Brian Ensor, 26, was clubbed to death and 11 other "undesirables" among the convicts were badly beaten with iron bars in the early hours of Sunday, April 18, shortly before the insurrection ended.

Mr. Goyer met in Ottawa April 16 with Prof. Morton and fellow committee member Ron Haggart, columnist with the Toronto Telegram. The solicitor-general did not go to Kingston until April 18, after the savage rampage of beatings had ended.

Two prisoners have since said they were beaten by guards after they were transferred to the new maximum security prison at Millhaven, 14 miles west of Kingston, and provincial police are investigating.

Prof. Morton said the prisoners should have been told "there would be no punishment of an unlawful sort," though criminal charges would be laid against those who committed offences.

Mr. Goyer did not expressly refuse to give the prisoners assurances. But he did decline to issue a news release draft April 16 by the citizens' committee which said both the "undesirables" and the hostage guards were unharmed and "in reasonably good spirits."

The rebels had been led to believe by the citizens' committee that the release would be issued and when it wasn't the prisoners took this as a sign that the government was bent on violence, said Prof. Morton.

The news release ultimately issued by Mr. Goyer's office said simply that the situation was under control, which, Prof. Morton said, "was just totally and absolutely useless."

The arrival of 300 battle-equipped troops from Canadian Forces Base Kingston who took up positions around the cellblock Thursday night, April 15, "nearly caused a panic" among the rebels.

The professor said a story swept the cellblock after the troops arrived about prisoners being shot in their beds after a riot at St. Vincent de Paul penitentiary near Montreal, and the Kingston prisoners believed it.

Ottawa Urged to Cut Tax, Reduce Its Own Spending

OTTAWA (CP) — J. Douglas Gibson of Toronto, former general manager of the Bank of Nova Scotia, said today the government should cut taxes and reduce its own spending to spur employment and control inflation.

"We should have tax reductions now—reductions to encourage consumer spending and reductions or corresponding tax adjustments to encourage business investment."

At the same time, he called for a "real effort on the part of the federal government to give leadership in checking the growing government encroachment on the economy, which is another way of looking at a policy of tax reduction.

"Government cannot do everything it is asked to do, or that ambitious politicians want it to do, unless we are prepared to risk ruining the private sector and bringing on even worse inflation."

Mr. Gibson, who teaches monetary theory at York University and holds directorships in seven companies, was addressing the Senate finance committee.

He said policies must be developed to encourage growth and check inflation at the same time.

While the government had made expansionary moves in past months, "the emphasis has been too much on more government spending and not enough on private spending and investment."

By encouraging business investment now, future production bottlenecks—and consequent cost-push inflation—could be prevented in the future.

It would also reduce Canada's foreign exchange rate, which he termed too high.

Shaw Festival Tour Offers Self-Portrait

By VIC STANTON

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — The Philanderer, a self-portrait of playwright George Bernard Shaw, kicked off a four-city pre-season tour of the 1971 Shaw Festival here Wednesday night.

The festival, celebrating its 10th anniversary this year, also will present the play in Montreal, Ottawa and Rochester, N.Y., before its Niagara-on-the-Lake, Ont., season begins June 14.

A spokesman for the Ontario Council for the Arts, which assisted in bringing the production to Kingston, said that the remaining performances, including a Saturday matinee for students and senior citizens, were all but sold out.

An explanation as to why the theatre was filled to only about three-quarter capacity Wednesday was that Kingston traditionally has Thursday night openings, the spokesman said.

Last year, when the pre-season tour first was initiated by the festival and included only Kingston and Ottawa, the festival company played to capacity audiences at each of four performances here.

VAN BRIDGE DIRECTOR

The Philanderer, one of Shaw's least-known plays, is directed by Tony van Bridge, who acted in two of last year's festival productions, and features Paxton Whitehead, the festival's artistic director, in the Shavian role of Charteris, philanderer and supporter of the Advanced Woman, the late 19th-century equivalent of the women's liberation movement.

Mr. Whitehead, who also is artistic director of the Vancouver Playhouse, gave the finest performance in a show highlighted by good performances, excellent direction and a superb set designed by Maurice Strike.

Included in the cast are Patricia Collins, familiar to viewers of television's Wojeck, in which she played Wojeck's wife, and Montreal actress Louise Marleau.

The festival runs through to Sept. 5.

POLKEY SENT TO POKEY

NOTTINGHAM, England (CP) — Midlands police were soon hot on the trail of burglar William Polkey. He had lit a piece of paper to see his way in the dark — and accidentally set fire to the store he was raiding. He made an emergency call and was still trying to extinguish the blaze when police arrived. Polkey was sent to jail for three years.

Largest Festival Attracts 24 Groups

The focal point for the non-competitive replacement for the Dominion Drama Festival will be the National Arts Centre but peripheral activities will take place throughout the city.

Events are scheduled in schools, hospitals, shopping malls, senior citizens homes, underprivileged boys clubs and anywhere else the artists think they can get people involved.

One of the highlights of the peripheral activities will take place at Carleton University next Friday when 15 prisoners from the Collins Bay penitentiary near Kingston, Ont., will present a play written by prisoner Peter Madden.

BREAKS WITH PAST

The play, A Criminal Record, discusses effects of the Canadian judicial and penal systems on a man who has been a habitual offender since his youth.

John Hill, vice-president of administration for the festival, said one of its aims is to "break away from the rigid standards set by theatre, many of which are archaic."

The idea is to show people that "theatre isn't just sitting in a plush theatre and paying $5 a ticket and then getting up and leaving when it's over."

He said the festival involves a lot more work than Dominion Drama Festival finals.

"We had only six plays involving about 120 people before. Now we have to deal with more than 400 people."

The 24 groups performing at the arts centre are intended to represent every type of theatre there is in Canada today. They come from as distant places as Victoria, Halifax and Labrador City, Nfld.

Already the children's performances being held in the salon have been sold out. One studio production, Oh What a Lovely War by the Sault Theatre Workshop of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., also has been sold out.

Following the plays, the audiences and actors will discuss the performances. There will be no judging and no prizes.

Advertisers Scored For 'Discrimination'

Newspapers continue to publish classified advertisements "which on their face appear to discriminate" against applicants aged between 45 and 65, the director of the human rights branch of the B.C. labor department reports.

"This type of advertising contravenes the provisions of Section 7 of the (Human Rights) Act unless the limitation, specification of preference is based on a bona fide occupational qualification," said the director, John C. Sherlock, in his annual report.

He said newspapers have endeavored to acquaint advertisers with the requirements of the act by heading classified advertisement sections with a reference to these requirements.

"However, a request for help in a classified ad which on its face would appear to contravene the legislation may be based on a bona fide occupational requirement, the determination of which would necessitate an investigation in each instance by the human rights branch.

ADS SCREENED

"The human rights branch screens all the classified ads appearing in the newspapers and in each instance where it appears a violation has occurred the advertiser is notified of the apparent infraction and supplied with a copy of the Human Rights Act, together with a list of advertising phrases which are considered acceptable and those which are considered unacceptable.

"In this regard, 194 apparent infractions have occurred and the advertisers so notified," Sherlock said.

The human rights branch received 697 complaints of discrimination during 1970. Officers were appointed in 27 instances to investigate formal complaints.

Naturalists Planning Save-Bird Program

Increasing involvement in the conservation problems of British Columbia and a lot of hard work helping to solve these problems are in store for members of the Victoria Natural History Society.

These were among the challenges put to the naturalist group by their newly-elected president, Dr. J. B. Tatum, of the physics department of the University of Victoria.

Dr. Tatum, in accepting the reins of office from the outgoing president, Mrs. F. A. Sherman, at the Newcombe Auditorium Tuesday night, praised the efforts of Mrs. Sherman during a period of conflict and stress while the society searched for a new role in the community.

Dr. Tatum emphasized that activities such as sponsoring the annual Audubon Wildlife film series, the Christmas bird count, support for the Federation of B.C. Naturalists and the conservation efforts of organizations like the Sierra Club, and the work of Freeman King with the Junior Naturalists, will be continued by the society.

Among the new projects unveiled was a plan to prepare rescue and rehabilitation centres for seabirds affected by oil spills in the Strait of Juan de Fuca. For this, Dr. Tatum said many volunteer helpers would be needed; people who weren't afraid to get covered with oil while trying to save the birds.

Other members of the new executive are K. R. Beckett, vice-president; Mrs. R. C. Muirhead, recording secretary; and Miss Jennifer Brown, programs. The naturalist groups of botany, entomology, marine biology and ornithology will be headed by Miss T. Todd, Dr. R. A. Ring, Dave Stirling and Rod Muirhead respectively. Miss E. K. Lemon will again organize the Audubon film program and Freeman King will continue his work with the junior naturalists.

The society plans an extensive program of summer outings this year which includes trips to Hurricane Ridge in the Olympics and Cowichan Bay.

MEN OUTWEIGH WOMEN FOUR TO ONE IN UNIONS

There are nearly four times as many male trade unionists as female in British Columbia.

This is shown in the annual report of the B.C. labor department which says that of the 310,222 union members in 1970, 65,599 or about 21 per cent were women.

The report said it is "interesting to note" the number of men or women who could potentially be organized and those who actually are members of unions.

Just over half the male working population in the province are members of unions but only 26 per cent of working women are unionized.

"Unions obviously have managed to gain a smaller percentage of the potential female leadership than the potential male membership," the report said.

"This may reflect a lack of union interest in organizing females and (or) some difficulty in organizing females. The fact that many women work for small employers (three to five employees) accounts in part for their smaller degree of organization."

The report also said that women union members are concentrated in the service industry and "as one would expect, the unions having the greatest number of female members

B.C. Trade Union Membership Rises

Trade union membership in British Columbia increased by 17,380 workers or 5.93 per cent during 1970.

Trade union membership was 310,222 persons, the B.C. labor department says, or 42.7 per cent of the total number of paid workers.

This compares with 41 per cent of the total number of paid workers in the previous year and 48.1 per cent in 1960.

"This indicates there has been little real growth during 1969," the labor department report said.

"It is difficult to evaluate the significance of this real growth in labor union membership. It could possibly be a reversal of the intermittent trend apparent in the 1960s of the decline of the number of organized workers relative to all the paid workers. Intuitive judgment allows that the trend of the '60s will, however, continue and that 1970 was simply an interruption of the trend," the report said.

$1.6 Million Appeal Lost by Woodward

—VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia government was upheld by the British Columbia court of appeal here in a ruling that imposed a $1.6 million succession duties tax on the Woodward Foundation.

P. A. Woodward, founder of the department store chain of the same name, died Aug. 27, 1968, leaving an estate valued for succession duty purposes at $4.45 million of which $4 million was bequeathed to the Mr. and Mrs. P. A. Woodward Foundation.

Premier Bennett, in his capacity as minister of finance, ruled in May, 1969, that the foundation was not a religious, charitable or educational organization and was not entitled to exemption from taxes.

The foundation appealed the ruling to the B.C. Supreme Court, where Mr. Justice F. Craig Munroe ordered that the ruling be quashed and referred the matter back to Bennett for exercise of his discretion upon proper legal principles.

NO DAMAGE TO CAR AT FIVE M.P.H.

New Shock-Absorber Bumper Tested

WASHINGTON (WP) — A father-and-son engineering team, who equipped a car with a low-cost energy-absorbing bumper system, rammed it at five miles per hour into a concrete loading dock at the old senate office building Tuesday.

Sen. Philip A. Hart (D-Mich.) stepped out of the front passenger seat to tell a repored, "you knew you hit something, but you knew you didn't have a $200 repair bill."

There was no repair bill at all because the car, a 1971 American Motors Hornet station wagon, was undamaged.

In contrast, a 1970 Hornet sedan with a standard bumper, test-crashed last year into a fixed barried at the same speed, needed repairs costing $204.50 repairs for 1971 models generally have gone up substantically over the 1970s.

Last Friday, Paul H. Taylor, 56, and his son Douglas, 23, crashed the '71 Hornet into a fixed barrier at higher speeds, 7½ and 10 m.p.h., and filmed the results for a screening Tuesday before the senate commerce committee.

At 7½ m.p.h the car which Douglas Taylor, working alone for four hours with a quarter-inch electric drill, had fitted out — suffered no damage at all.

At 10 m.p.h. an experimental rubber engine mount failed, causing the fan to do $91.78 in damaged to the radiator. But the 1970 Hornet, which the insurance institute for highway safety crashed at the same speed last year, needed repairs costing $508.40

The question that "just screams out for an answer," Hart told the hearing, is why the department of transportation, which the Taylors had formally informed about their system (and at least seven firms have similar ones), apparently ignored it in setting bumper-performance standards.

The standards require 5 m.p.h. front and 2½ m.p.h. rear bumpers on the 1973 cars, and 5 m.p.h. bumpers front and rear on the 1974s. The Taylors testified that with three months' lead time they could supply all the components the industry needs for 5 or even 10 m.p.h. bumpers, front and rear.

The Taylors may prove to be embarrassing, too, to the big three auto makers, all of whom testified Monday.

General Motors, for example urged that DOT continue to have full administrative discretion to set bumper standards. GM opposed a proposal, tentatively part of a bill sponsored by Hart and Sen. Warren G. Magnuson (D—Wash.), to require 5 mph front and rear bumpers on 1975 models, at an estimated annual savings in insurance premiums of $1 billion.

Ford Motor Co. said that the Hart-Magnuson proposal would cost it about 75 dollars, and that the customer's cost, about $100, would not likely be offset by decreased insurance costs.

Tuesday, however, the Taylors said their price to manufacturers for a 5 mph system would be about $25, (and for 10 mph $35 to $40), plus an unestimated but assertedly small cost for substituting stainless steel for carbon steel in the bumpers themselves.

The elder Taylor is president of Taylor Devices, Inc., of North Tonawanda, N.Y., near Buffalo. He is a graduate engineer and an inventor. The firms gross about $1.2 million a year and have 55 employees. His son, who will receive his engineering degree in two months from the State University of New York at Buffalo, is reasearch director of Taylor Developments Inc.

For years, Taylor Devices has made—for cranes, railroad cars, even the Saturn V launching site—cushioning equipment using silicone oil. Packed under pressure in a cylinder, the oil compresses when struck by a piston but quickly regains its original mass. Thus it is a "liquid spring."

On a car, four Taylor units normally are bolted or spot-welded to the frame, with the forward end of each piston attached to the bumper. Paul Taylor compared the way it absorbs an impact to "laying your head on a pillow." He said auto makers' labor costs would be increased little, if at all.

Last October, almost simultaneously, Ford and American Motors expressed interest in the Taylor units. Chrysler and GM followed. Now, Paul Taylor testified, Ford has installed a set on a special safety car that suffered zero damage in a 27.6 mph barrier crash—the equivalent of two cars colliding head-on with each travelling at 55.2 mph.

Taylor said Ford's cost estimate of $100 for 5 mph protection is "certainly not realistic." At another point he said, "We won't make too many friends with our statements here."

End of Draft Leads to Manpower Famine in British Forces

LONDON (AP) — Britain's armed forces have faced a manpower famine ever since they gave up the draft nine years ago.

The British army is short 18,000 men, nearly 5 per cent.

Not even higher pay, roughly comparable to civilian wages, has turned the trick. An enlistee for three years starts at a higher basic wage than as truck driver, construction worker, milkman or bus conductor. A recruit signing up for nine years gets more than a doctor working for the National Health Service. And still recruiting lags.

"The image of the army in the minds of some of our young people is that it is something filthy," Lt.-Col. Colin Mitchell ruefully told the Commons in a recent defence debate. Mitchell, who battled terrorists in Aden and used to handle manpower in the army, now is a member of Parliament.

"We all know in our political and private lives how difficult it is to put across to many young people the need for even the barest minimum of defence forces," he said.

SIZE DECLINES

"The size of armies without conscription is necessarily declining. Therefore, the question which the government should have before them at the moment is whether or not conscription should be brought back within the next five years."

Yet Britain has some advantages in recruiting, among them geography. Regiments have put down roots in towns and counties over the centuries. A Welshman goes into a Welsh regiment, a Scot into a Scottish. British areas develop pride in their regiments. From these territorial roots develop social acceptance.

Most Western nations currently have the recruiting problem. Mitchell says: "The German army is running out of officers and NCOs. France and Italy are having similar difficulties. The reason people will not join the services in 1971 is that the general social attitudes in Western Europe are opposed to military strength. It is as simple as that.

This year the Royal Military Academy at Sandhurst attracted just half as many officer cadets as it wanted. The officer shortage is so great short-term commissions are being granted after a few weeks' training.

CITE BIRTH RATE

A fallen birth rate two decades back reduces recruitable manpower today. If youth tends to stay in school longer, recruiting is hurt. And, no matter how many youths you recruit there always will be shortages in some skills.

There are other influences the best recruiter cannot control. A political reduction in defence cuts the bottom out of recruiting. So does a shrinking empire which rubs out those romantic billets east of Suez. As the British Empire shrank in post-war years, regiments with centuries of history were reduced to company status or abolished.

With recruiting going well in 1967, the British government ordered the armed forces cut down to 380,000 men and women from 417,000 by 1971. Recruiting skidded to sharply only 365,300 men are in the British armed forces today.

The defence ministry since 1961 has done various things to spur recruiting. The standard recruiting officers become "career information officers." School liaison officers concentrated on visiting, speaking and interviewing students. Army youth teams of an officer, sergeant and four privates work with youth clubs and schools, helping in leisure activities from hill-climbing to camping. These units do no recruiting, just build goodwill.

Then there are "satisfied soldiers," happy recruits who go home on leave to report how happy they are in the army. Since these all entered outfits containing men of their own areas they have broad contacts in their own communities.

Even mothers-in-law get a turn at bat. They qualify for subsidized trips to Germany to visit their daughters and keep them happy. They live rent-free in army quarters for "any reasonable time." That often ends up as months.

Since last April the British soldier has lived with a new civilian-type pay scale. Soldier pay used to be in the "beer money" category with other necessities furnished.

A three-year recruit now begins with a weekly salary equivalent to $33.84, rising to $41.64 weekly for a nine-year enlistment. Recently, the first pay level rose to $40.74 and the second to $50.40.

British army pay is competitive with civilian wages.

F-310*

Chevron gasolines with F-310 are available in the Lower Mainland and Victoria areas in all 3 grades.

Chevron Unleaded with F-310

Chevron Supreme with F-310

Chevron Gasoline with F-310

Improved Engine Performance

By selecting the right grade of Chevron gasoline that best suits your car — you can benefit from the qualities of F-310. Here's how it works . . .
When deposits build up in your carburetor and PCV (positive crankcase ventilation) valve, the fuel mixture becomes too rich — resulting in rough idle, stalling and wasted fuel. Remove these deposits, and good engine performance is restored. Mileage improves because gasoline is no longer being wasted.
F-310 was developed specifically to clean the critical parts of dirty engines — and to keep clean engines clean. And that's how F-310 helps towards better engine performance — and better mileage!
These extra performance benefits are now in all three grades of Chevron gasoline — all with F-310.

Housing Project Delayed

A construction start on a $1,013,00 integrated housing development in Saanich has been delayed about three months.

Project architect John Di Castri said Wednesday construction is expected to start in July or August.

Target date announced last December was for a construction start in April or May.

Di Castri said he is doing working drawings, soil has to be pre-loaded and negotiations are continuing between Saanich and the provincial government on the rental structure.

Site of the development, announced 17 months ago, is between Darwin and Vernon near the municipal hall.

The first phase, expected to take eight or nine months to complete, comprises 19 townhouses and 60 apartment suites.

Cost of the first phase was made possible by a $100,000 donation from Mrs. E. L. Fielding of Oak Bay, enabling a generation of $1 million under the non-profit aspect of the National Housing Act.

Working on the project are the Multiple Sclerosis Society and Cosmopolitan service club. The housing development will be for the handicapped, the aged and the well.

Thief Gets Full Outfit

City police are looking for a thief who made off with a new motorcycle, a licence plate for it and a leather jacket and helmet over the weekend from Les Blow's Motorcycle Sales Ltd., 2940 Douglas.

Police said the theft was reported about 11 p.m. Sunday when a rear window was found smashed and a door found unlocked.

The motorcycle was a 1971 175-cc Kawasaki and the licence plate, police said, was from another machine in the shop for repairs.

The vehicle was valued at about $800. The jacket and helmet were worth about $90.

Police said a soft drink machine was also broken into and a counter had been moved to get the motorcycle out.

Judge's Son Lunges At Father

MONTREAL (CP) — Martial Allard, who attacked his father, Judge Maurice Allard, during a courtroom session Tuesday, has been ordered to undergo a psychiatric examination.

Judge Guy Guerin ordered the examination late Tuesday after Dr. Eugene Cloutier testified that he had spoken with Martial for about 20 minutes and considered a psychiatric opinion necessary.

The young man, in his early 20s, was not charged but was ordered to appear in court Friday following the psychiatric examination.

Earlier Tuesday, Judge Allard was in the process of handling a suspended sentence to a young man accused of burglary when his son jumped out of his seat in the sessions court spectators' gallery and vaulted over a four-foot-high railing separating the public from lawyers.

Witnesses said Martial ran to the clerk's raised desk below the judge's bench and made a lunge for his father.

Field Trips For Threads

The main centre of the Silver Threads Service has planned several trips for May and June.

A shopping trip to Vancouver is set for May 20, a tour of Butchart Gardens on May 26, a mystery tour on June 10, a seven-day tour to Johnston Canyon in the Rockies starting June 20, a four-day trip to Harrison Hot Springs starting June 22.

SPACE DEATH SUIT LOST

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — A $5 million suit against spacecraft builders by the widow of Virgil L. Gus Grissom, one of three astronauts killed in a 1967 launch-pad fire, was dismissed Tuesday because the time limit had passed.

Betty Grissom had charged that faulty wiring and negligence caused the blaze aboard Apollo 1 at Cape Kennedy which also claimed the lives of Roger Chaffee and Ed White.

Polaroid introduces Focused Flash.

Focused Flash is the best thing that's happened to indoor flash pictures since the flashcube. And Polaroid's new 400 Land cameras have it.

Until now, every flash picture you took got the same amount of light. Sometimes it was too much, sometimes too little. Now Polaroid's new Focused Flash throws exactly the right amount of light on your subject, automatically.

How Focused Flash works.

Just shoot normally. See those little louvers in front of the flashcube? As you focus the camera they open or close, automatically. Up close (as close as 3½ feet) you get a soft, flattering light. As far back as 10 feet you get enough light for the whole gang. Anywhere in between, you get something precisely in between.

GE's extraordinary new flashcube.

One reason there'll be plenty of illumination for group shots, is that GE has designed a special 4-shot flashcube for these new cameras. The new GE Hi-Power Cube. It's more than twice as bright as standard flashcubes.

On the new 400s.

These four new Polaroid Land cameras are the most automatic cameras we make. (The 450 even has a built-in electronic timer that "Beeps" when your picture's ready.) Prices start at under $80 with Focused Flash and under $70 without Focused Flash. All take color pictures in a minute, black-and-white in seconds.

TOPS Losers Graduate

From the left they are Mrs. Leslie Grant, Evelyn Jensen, and Mrs. Eric Crawford, three of the 31 TOPS (Take Off Pounds Sensibly) members who will graduate into KOPS (Keep Off Pounds Sensibly) on Saturday.

The graduation will be held at the Canadian Legion Hall in Sidney. It will follow an evening of skits, a fashion show featuring clothes made by the members and a sing-song.

TOPS has grown in the past two years. In 1969 it had eight chapters with 189 members. Now there are 58 chapters and 1,365 members. In 1970 Vancouver Island members lost a total of 14,521½ pounds — close to 7¼ tons.

Several Victoria men are interested in joining TOPS and area supervisor Meryle Howard hope they will form a chapter of their own here soon.

TOPS members must go to their doctor for a diet and a target weight. When a member has reached the weight set by her doctor she must hold it for three months to qualify for KOPS membership.

Those interested in joining the group can call Meryle Howard, 386-1093 or Mary Gibbons, area captain, 479-5413.

Plan Demands Births Be on Time

OTTAWA (CP) — Advice to would-be mothers hoping to collect maternity-leave benefits when new unemployment insurance legislation is passed: set a date for delivery with your doctor and stick to it.

The new plan will have some flexibility, the Commons labor committee was told Tuesday, but promptness will be rewarded.

The bill, now being studied by the committee, would establish an initial 15-week period of payments for anyonne who has worked 20 weeks in the previous year and can prove they are unemployed as a result of layoff, sickness or pregnancy.

For women on maternity leave, however, the bill states the period is to begin eight weeks before the week set for confinement. The benefits would begin after a two-week waiting period.

One week is set aside for confinement itself and payments continue for a following six-week period of recovery.

All very well for the average woman, several members of the committee agreed. But what happens, they asked J. W. Douglas, counsel for the unemployment insurance commission, if the baby is born, say, a month prematurely?

The six-week limit on benefits after the birth would still apply, Mr. Douglas answered. Only if her doctor ruled that she was unable to return to work because of sickness would the woman be able to claim the remaining four weeks of the 16-week period.

"And if the birth is delayed?" asked Perry Ryan (PC—Spadina).

"She'll be out of luck if the birth is delayed any more than six weeks," answered Jacques DesRoches, chairman of the commission. "She'll have used up her 15 weeks."

Every week of delay would be subtracted from the following six-week period.

Mr. DesRoches told the committee the plan had been devised to suit the needs and health of the vast majority of working mothers.

One non-medical concern raised by the committee was the case of a woman laid off by an employer after only five or six months of preganey.

Mr. DesRoches said such a woman would be able to argue that she was ready to work and would qualify for regular unemployment insurance benefits. Later she would qualify under the maternity-leave provisions although benefits still would run out after a total of 15 weeks.

Schools Said to Divide Family

By JEAN SHARP

TORONTO (CP) — Schools topped the list of institutions responsible for dividing the family, three young people and a social worker said recently.

The four introduced this claim when they led a discussion group on youth and the family on the final day of the annual meeting of the Vanier Institute of the Family.

The consensus seemed to be that families have handed over their responsibilities to insitutions and now the institutions are helping to break down the family.

Greg Donovan said there is an erosion of decision-making and people find it harder and harder to take responsibility for their own lives and the lives of their children.

Donovan is commissioner of youth in Halifax.

Steven Langdon said schools segregate young people from their families, from the community, from people of other ages. He said he believes changes in the work week to allow parents to be with children and co-operative nurseries that give the family a role in education are steps toward the necessary integration of education and the community.

Langdon also blamed technology and from-the-top-down power structures for the alienation of youth.

"Young people lose any sense of control over the milieu they're growing up in."

Langdon is a journalist in Toronto.

Shoppers Favor Women Directors

TORONTO (CP) — Fifty-three per cent of persons questioned on a recent survey of Toronto supermarket shoppers thought supermarkets should be more responsive to shoppers' needs if they had more women directors. The survey was conducted by Contemporary Research Centre, an independent research company.

GLAZED CORNED BEEF AND VEGETABLES, FOLK STYLE

Corned Beef Dinner Made Ahead

Glazed corned beef and vegetables makes an attractive cold buffet for summer entertaining. It is prepared in advance leaving the hostess free to relax with her guests.

GLAZED CORN BEEF AND VEGETABLES

9 pounds fancy brisket corned beef.
Cold water.

As much as two days in advance, cover meat with cold water; bring to a boil. Pour off water and add fresh water. Simmer slowly for three hours or until tender. Cool. Chill overnight in its broth, placing a weight on top.

The day of the buffet remove meat from broth and trim off excess fat. Place the meat on a cake rack in a jelly roll pan; dry the meat carefully with absorbent paper. Set aside.

Vegetables

1¾ cups diced unpared cucumber
1¼ cups cooked peas
1 (7 ounce) jar of pimentos drained, reserve one pod and chop the rest
⅓ cup thinly sliced green onions, reserve a few green tops
½ cup thinly sliced radishes

Clear Glaze

1 envelope unflavored gelatine
¼ cup cold water
1 vegetarian style bouillon cube
1½ cups boiling water

Soften gelatine in cold water. Dissolve bouillon cube in boiling water. Add softened gelatine. Stir to dissolve. Set half aside to glaze the meat. Pour a thin layer in 12 (5 ounce) custard cups. Let set. Arrange remaining radish slices on top of glaze, pour on remaining glaze. Let set. Make Chaud-Froid sauce.

Chaud-Froid Sauce

2 envelopes of unflavored gelatine
½ cup cold milk
½ cup butter or margarine
½ cup unsifted all-purpose flour
½ teaspoon white pepper
¾ teaspoon salt
1 Pint of dairy half and half
1 vegetarian style bouillon cube
1 large bay leaf
1 large bay leaf
1 teaspoon prepared mustard
2 tablespoons fresh lemon juice

Soften gelatine in milk. Melt butter, blend in next three ingredients. Stir in next four ingredients. Bring to a boil, stirring constantly. Remove from heat and add softened gelatine; and lemon juice. Stir to dissolve. Cool stirring occasionally. Do not allow to set. Pour one cup sauce evenly over meat. Chill while completing vegetable moulds.

Mix remainder of sauce with vegetables and spoon into custard cups on top of the set gelatine. Chill about 4 hours. Chill the reserved clear glaze until slightly syrupy. Arrange reserved green onion tops and pimento on top of the meat. Carefully pour the glaze over. Chill.

When ready to serve arrange meat on a large platter. Unmold the vegetables on a rusk, slice of toast or large slice of tomato. Arrange them around the meat. Makes 12 servings.

Baby Christened In Heirloom Shawl

Laura May, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Virtue of Red Deer, Alberta, was Christened recently in the church where her parents were married in 1967.

She was baptized in St. Paul's Anglican Church, Powell River by the Rev. D. Chassels who married her parents.

The baby wore a 73-year-old christening gown owned by her paternal great grandmother, Mrs. Fred Blackwell of Victoria. Her godparents are Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Sangster.

Mrs. Ruth Parkin, the baby's maternal great-grandmother attended the service. A tea was held after the service at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Stewart.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Goose Goofed

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY:

Your answer to "L"
Was funny and quaint.
An authority on GEESE
You certainly ain't!

For a GOOSE was a "him"
You seemed to infer,
And the GANDER you spoke of Like "he" was a "her."

At your mix-up in genders
I was amused,
But some of your readers
Were, no doubt, confused.

—Muncie, Ind., fan.

DEAR MUNCIE FAN:

For an Iowa lass
I feel like a cluck
For I've often mistaken
A DRAKE for a DUCK.

In the realm of the barnyard
I'm loathe to meander,
It's plain, I don't know
My GOOSE from my GANDER!

(Edgar Allan Po-Po.)

DEAR ABBY: My story is as old as the hills. I am a fairly attractive woman and the mother of three children. I became bored with the housekeeping routine and decided to get a job. That is when my troubles began.

I met a man at work. (I'll call him "Charley.") We were very much attracted to each other. I enjoyed having something to get dressed up for every day, and this new excitement did a lot for my ego. My car was laid up for about a week, and Charley offered to drive me home. One thing led to another, and we started meeting secretly. I got hooked on him, and told my husband I wanted a divorce so I could marry Charley. It broke my husband's heart, but he said he wouldn't stand in my way if that's what I wanted.

Abby, I was so wrapped up in Charley, I couldn't see the people I was hurting. My husband moved out and I could see as much of Charley as I wanted to. After a few months I realized how foolish I had been. I began missing my husband and Charley suddenly looked less attractive to me.

Now I am so ashamed of myself I could die. I realize it's my husband I really love, but what can I do now? I don't deserve a second chance, but do you think my husband would take me back?—Ashamed.

DEAR ASHAMED: You'll never know until you ask him.

DEAR ABBY: I was nominated for an office in a club (don't mention the office or the club, please) and I really wanted this office. When the results of the election were announced, I lost by one vote. I was really heartsick because (as you have probably guessed) I voted for my opponent, who voted for himself!

Was it stupid of me to have voted for my opponent? I felt it would have been egotistical to have voted for myself. Two of my friends said they thought I did the right thing in voting for my opponent. Another friend said he thought it was stupid. What do you think? Sock it to me, Abby.—Lost.

DEAR LOST: You should have voted for the person who in your opinion would have made the best officer. If you didn't then you were stupid (or perhaps impracticably humble).

DEAR ABBY: Hooray for that little old frugal lady who carries a plastic bag in her purse for her leftovers when wealthy friends invite her to high-classed restaurants.

I am also a widow on a tight budget, and my wealthy friends taught me to carry a plastic bag in my purse. I know a woman who not only takes home her leftover meat, but her uneaten rolls and bits of parsley as well. Why not? The whole lot would be thrown out anyway.

Another friend, whose entree was fish, was told by an arrogant waiter, "Why don't you roll it up in your place mat, lady?"

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Barber Syrt on Hairstyling

What is the difference between a barber and a hairstylist? While the barber is trained to simply cut the hair, the hairstylist is trained to trim hair to suit the face, to give more individuality. A round face is counterbalanced by a squarish cut. To soften and shorten a long face, the hair is left as thick as possible on the sides, with a round cut on top. A face with a long structure and a large nose can be helped by a soft and face-framing cut (a severe cut would create a death-mask look). Therefore: Select your stylist with great care.

Diamond Wedding

The recent diamond wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Leopold Hayes was achknowledged by The Queen with a telegram from the Royal Yacht. Leopold Hayes came to Canada from Covent Gardens, London, England in 1910. In 1911 he married Mary Agnes Elliot of Biddenden, Kent in Calgary. Hayes founded the Occidental Fruit Company in Kelowna and was its governing director until 1939 when the couple moved to Victoria. They celebrated their anniversary at their home, 1019 Joan Crescent.

Budding Chefs Reveal Recipes

MADISON, Wis. (UPI) — Campy Craig, a first grade student at Hoy School, doesn't rank with the world's great chefs yet but his recipe for giant peppermint cake is interesting all the same.

It consists of "two spoons of peppermint, 500 tons of whipping cream, 60 eggs, 20 drops of vanilla and then mix it all together. Put in the oven at 60,000 deg. F. and then wait for six hours."

Teacher Betty Overland discovered other budding gastronomical wizards in her class when she asked for some recipes for a Mother's Day cookbook which she released to the rest of the world Tuesday.

For instance, Freddy Yankee's specialty is home-made cherry pie.

You make it by mixing a banana, a carrot and a little bit of soup. Then you put in three cups of sugar, five cups of milk and set the oven at 5 degrees.

Paul Raushenbush's forte is chicken.

"Put one cupful of salt on the chicken. Then you put it in the oven. Put the oven up to 60 degrees so the chicken does not get greasy."

And how about Andrew David's steak?

"Take one steak and one cup of gravy and put it in the oven. Bake it at 1 degree and put one cup of sugar on it so it will be good to eat."

Shawn Dugan's speciality is cake.

"Put three scoops of ice cream in a pan. Then put in four scoops of salt. Then put in five scoops of meat. Put it in the oven. Then take it out of the oven. Then eat it."

Scott Levine was the class pizza expert.

"First you go to the store and get it and then you come home and put it in the oven and leave it in the oven for half an hour. Put the oven at 40 degrees, then the pizza is ready."

Night Trippers

RYDE, England (CP) — This Isle of Wight resort is launching an investigation into why the illegitimate birth rate is 50 per cent higher than the national average. The national figure is eight per cent of all live births — Ryde's is 12.5. One local theory is that most of the community's illegitimate babies are fathered by men from the mainland who cross to the island for a night out.

Home Pregnancy Test May Cause Problems

EDMONTON (CP) — The Alberta Medical Association said Tuesday it is concerned women using a home pregnancy test may be putting too much faith in the results.

The test kit, available at various drug stores, contains chemical agents that react on a urine specimen to determine whether the woman is pregnant.

Dr. R. F. Clark said the association is opposed to the kits being widely advertised.

He said the test could result in a woman delaying a needed therapeutic abortion past the desirable 12-week period, cause her to be overconfident, cause the family unnecessary concern, "or even cause an upset women to attempt to get an unsafe abortion or try to abort herself."

The kit costs $4.98.

Dr. Clark said a woman desiring a pregnancy test can see a physician and all costs and the visit would be covered under the province's medical care scheme. (These costs are also covered by B.C.'s medical plan.)

Additives Tested Thoroughly

WINNIPEG (CP) — Homemakers should be less concerned with food additives and more concerned with good nutrition, says Susan Gadd, specialist in consumer information for the Manitoba agriculture department.

"It is unfortunate that food additives, which are not harmful, have received considerable publicity in recent months," she said. "Food additives in Canada must be tested and cleared by the federal food and drug directorate before being used."

She said the additives generally are used in small amounts to improve the keeping qualities, the nutritional value and the general acceptability of foods.

Good, basic information on nutrition and food additives tends to be unsensational and is often overlooked, Miss Gadd said.

Nixon's Welfare Plan Gets New Life

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's family-assistance plan for reforming the welfare system, which fell by the congressional wayside last year, has been given a new, running start.

The House of Representatives ways and means committee has included essentials of the plan —substantial federal takeover of welfare and a $2,400 income assurance for a family of four —in a social security-welfare reform measure.

Approved Wednesday except for a final review of language and formal vote, the measure is expected to go to the House for consideration early next month.

When fully effective in 1973 the bill would pump an additional $6 billion to social security pensioners and welfare recipients.

The social security portion would require a sizable increase in payroll tax collected from employees and employers.

Through increases both in the wage base and the tax rate, the bill would raise the maximum payment by an employee and his employer from this year's $405.60 each to $550.80 in 1972. The maximum increase would apply only to those earning $10,200 or more.

STATES TO SAVE MONEY

Committee spokesmen said the states could expect to save $1.5 billion to $2 billion of the money now expended on welfare.

A last-minute tailoring assured the dozen large, heavily paying states protection against increases in their expenditures above the 1971 level caused by addition of the working poor and natural growth of the relief rolls.

The government would take over in stages the cost of welfare for the indigent aged, blind and disabled.

Welfare recipients considered able to work would be enrolled in a training program administered by the labor department, and funds would be provided to states and localities for 200,000 public service jobs. Day-care facilities for working mothers would be funded.

South Viets Repulse Attack

SAIGON (AP) — South Vietnamese forces repulsed the first two major counter-attacks in their month-long A Shau Valley campaign, claimed 200 North Vietnamese killed with the help of U.S. aircraft, and smashed a regimental-size base camp and arms factory.

Ninety South Vietnamese marines were reported killed or wounded in the attacks.

Some 400 North Vietnamese made the first assault at 4 a.m. Wednesday on the night camp of a 500-man South Vietnamese marine battalion in mountainous terrain on the eastern border of the 30-mile-long valley. Field reports said six marines were killed and 48 were wounded.

A second assault on the marines came at 2:30 p.m., with hundreds of North Vietnamese moving behind the cover of an artillery barrage. But this brought the North Vietnamese into the open in daylight, and American B-52, fighter-bombers and helicopter gunships pounded them. Three of the B-52s dropped 90 tons of bombs.

Another 36 marines were reported killed or wounded in the second battle.

The A Shau Valley is 375 miles northeast of Saigon on the Laotian border and is the gateway to the populous coastal lowlands, including the cities of Hue and Da Nang. It is a major staging area and trans-shipment point for North Vietnamese troops and supplies.

Tories Urge ECM Links

OTTAWA (CP) — A Conservative party discussion paper says "a degree of access to and association with" the European Common Market is critically important to Canada economically and politically.

The paper, made public Tuesday, is not party policy but is for discussion purposes leading to the Conservative policy convention here in October.

It says Canadian access to the ECM is essential if Canada is to maintain any real independence from the United States.

It also says Canada should explore the possibilities of a "special relationship" with the ECM.

The paper does not define what is meant by "access to," "association with" or "special relationship" with the ECM.

HOME GARDEN

Never Use Sprays on Herbs

By HILDA BEASTALL

It could be that culinary herbs are the easiest and most satisfactory plants for a new gardener to grow — f fertilizers and sprays are forgotten — and never used. For these delicacies are usually eaten raw and fresh, unprocessed in any way.

Hilda

Herbs have always been, and should still be grown for pleasure — pleasure in the visual simplicity of the plants and pleasure in the subtle yet unchanging flavors and aromas.

No hybrids exist among the plants we grow as kitchen, or culinary, herbs, though some variable forms have appeared in thymes and mints. Basically the plants are the same as they grew when first pictorially recorded by herbalists and physicians centuries ago.

A sunny spot of finely cultivated soil containing compost and sand, will grow a collection of many kinds of usable herbs. A half dozen or so can be permanent perennials to give the spot a look of attractive usefulness even in winter. The others must be freshly sown each spring.

Now that the soil is warm, sowings of all the annual herbs can be made outdoors where they are to grow.

Tubs and planters, a foot deep and a foot wide, on sunny apartment balconies will grow sufficient herbs for summer use and enough to dry for winter.

The soil will need an occasional thorough watering since drying results from the heating of the sides of the tubs by the sun. The same principles of no insecticide sprays and no fertilizers must be followed.

With herbs and indeed all home garden food crops, the harvesting is not done by the calendar but on the whim of the gardener and his family.

Each day someone goes to the vegetables (or herbs) to gather or pull something to eat raw on the spot or for preparation of a meal.

The whole enjoyment of these foods depends on their freedom from contamination. A caterpillar can be picked off; aphis can be washed away or rubbed off with the fingers; but it is only by chance these appear on herb plants.

Sow the annual herbs thinly; they will still need further spacing as they grow, but you can pull out seedlings to use in green salads or sandwiches. In this way you will get to know and like your herbs while they are young and fresh.

Remember their names and what they look like; you will find these plants as fascinating as did the ancients.

KARPIN ON BRIDGE

By FRED KARPIN

The fundamental difference between rubber bridge and duplicate bridge is strikingly illustrated in today's deal, which arose in a National Championship some years ago.

In rubber bridge, one's primary concern is the fulfillment of his contract, and he never tries for an overtrick if, in so trying, he jeopardizes his contract.

In duplicate bridge, on the other hand, scoring is on a relative basis, with every pair playing the same deals. Thus, if on any given deal one can make an overtrick on a hand where his competitors fail to make the overtrick, he has a better score than they. And so, in order to obtain a good score, one will sometimes jeopardize his contract to try for an overtrick. This deal is a case in point. Both sides vulnerable. South deals.

♣ Q J 3

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♡	Pass	1 NT	Pass
3 ♡	Pass	4 ♡	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: King of ♠.

South captured the opening spade lead with his ace, after which he cashed his three top hearts, picking up the missing trumps.

In rubber bridge, the play would now be automatic. The board's ace and king of diamonds would be cashed, on the outside chance of catching the queen. If it were caught, then South would be able to discard his losing spade on the diamond jack.

In this deal, the queen would not fall. Declarer would now attack the clubs, losing two tricks to the adversaries' ace and king; and simultaneously creating a club trick for himself. Thus South's only losers would be a spade and two clubs.

But when this deal actually arose, our South declarer felt that he had to gamble in order to have a chance to win the tournament. (It made little difference to him whether he finished 19th or 68th. He wanted to be "in the money.")

After drawing trumps, South led the eight of diamonds — and finessed dummy's jack! If East had held the queen, the defenders would have made two club tricks, a spade, and a diamond. But luck was on South's side.

With the jack winning, the diamond ace and king were cashed, South discarding his losing spade on the latter lead. With both opponents following suit to all three diamond leads, dummy's two remaining diamond were winners, on which South tossed away two of his clubs. Thus he made three overtricks, for a "top on the board."

FIRE CHIEF PROVES HIS POINT

DONCASTER, England (UPI) — Fire Chief Raymond Barlow said he could not let any of the 25 visiting French students slide down the station fire pole because they might be hurt. So he said he would demonstrate the speedy stationhouse exit.

Barlow crashed 30 feet down the pole to the cement floor breaking two bones in his back.

"He isn't accustomed to using it," deputy fire chief Jack Kildreth said of Barlow who was recovering in Doncaster Hospital.

8 CARDS OF THANKS

At some time or other the thought that we would suffer the loss of a loved one occurred to us, but we little realized the extent of sympathetic understanding that would exist. We are more grateful than mere words can express to all of you who did so much to help us through this time.

In the loss of our Mother, Mrs. Cora Flynn, our special thanks to Doctor L. Ptak and Doctor G. May for their untiring attention during her declining years, to Reverend Travis for a most consoling service and to McCall Bros. Funeral Chapel. Jim, Ed, Reg and John Flynn, Thelma McKinly and Margaret Richardson.

9 IN MEMORIAM

DAVIES — In loving memory of my dear husband, Ernest Davies, who passed away May 13, 1962.

The face I loved is now laid low,
His loving voice is still,
The hand so often clasped in mine
Lies now in death's cold chill,
I often sit and think of him
When I am all alone,
For memory is the only thing
That grief can call its own.

—Ever remembered by his loving wife, Trixie, and family.

GODWIN — In loving memory of my dear husband, Harry Godwin, who passed away May 13, 1960.
— Ivy Kathleen.

★ ★ ★

COURTSHIP OF EDDIE'S FATHER. 7 p.m., Channel 6. Eddie runs into an unexpected snag when he tries to go into the movie production business. Eddie's project is strctly on the home movie level and he has it planned as a surprise for his father.

★ ★ ★

FAMILY AFFAIR. 7 p.m., Channel 8. Jody is taken with Bill's latest date . . . taken to the point where she starts aping the girl's every action. Which produces complications, you see, because the date is a comedienne and she's always on.

★ ★ ★

ALIAS SMITH AND JONES. 7:30 p.m., Channel 4 (rerun). The funny premise of this episode has two groups shooting it out to see which one gets to turn our heroes in and collect the reward. Heyes (Peter Duel) and Curry (Murphy) don't have very much to say about it because they've been tied up. Keenan Wynn, always good, guests as Charlie Utley, manager of a stagecoach way station.

★ ★ ★

FLIP WILSON SHOW. 7:30 p.m., Channel 5 (rerun). Bill Cosby returns for his second guest appearance and corrals his faithful sidekick (Big Chief Flip) for a hilarious takeoff on the old Lone Ranger show, only this one is called "The Lone Stranger and Pronto." For musical pleasure, Nancy Wilson sings "Make It with You" and Claudine Longet offers "Look What They've Done to My Song."

★ ★ ★

JIM NABORS HOUR. 8 p.m., Channel 7 (rerun). Gary Puckett for the young and Kate Smith for the geriatric set gives this show diversified appeal. Miss Smith gets into a patriotic fervor for "The Spirit of 1776," backed by a full-cast production. She also renders "If He Walked into My Life," and duets with Nabors in "Fallin' for You." Puckett renders "I Just Don't Know What to Do with Myself."

★ ★ ★

DEAN MARTIN SHOW. 8:30 p.m., Channel 8; 10, Channel 5 (rerun). Dean Martin takes on world's heavyweight champion Joe Frazier in song. They sing "Makin' Whoopee" together, then the champ goes it alone for "Answer Me." Sizzling Joey Heatherton sings a Burt Bacharach medley. Comic Norm Crosby, the malaprop king, does a monologue and Eva Gabor and Paul Lynde are along for laughs in sketches with Dino.

★ ★ ★

IRONSIDE. 8:30 p.m., Channel 5 (rerun). Carl Betz portrays Jason Banning, a financial administrator who fails to convince police he murdered his secretary in a jealous rage. Ironside investigates and turns up several eye-opening facts: first, the girl was two-timing Banning, but evidence also points up embezzlement and a double-cross.

★ ★ ★

THURSDAY NIGHT MOVIE. 9 p.m., Channel 7. "A Covenant with Death" (1966). The cast is stronger than the movie with some fine acting by Sidney Blackmer, Earl Holliman and Katy Jurado, George Maharis and Laura Devon. Holliman plays a man falsely accused of murdering his wife and is sentenced to be hanged. On the way to the gallows he is involved in an accident in which another man dies. Can he be guilty of two crimes?

★ ★ ★

ADAM-12. 9:30 p.m., Channel 5 (rerun). An interesting, and well-done segment, titled "Log 105—Elegy for a Pig." There is no dialogue, just Marty Milner's narration as he recalls his long friendship with fellow officer Tom Porter (Mark Goddard) after he's been gunned down by a small-time crook. A rather moving episode.

YOUR HEALTH: Dr. Walter Alvarez

Thousands of women worry themselves sick over petty conscientious scruples and perhaps fear of punishment if they don't go to church often enough, or don't live up to rituals that they have set up for themselves. For instance, one woman had to wash her hands six times before leaving the house — so that her father wouldn't get another heart attack. Other women feel they have to protect their family from accident and illness by doing penances, like going without some food they love.

Many women are constantly fussing at their loved ones to do something which will presumably make them healthier and lengthen their lives. As a man once said so aptly, he suffered daily "from that form of persecution known as love." Certainly, all sensible women should avoid this constant tormenting of a husband for his supposed good.

The best advice ever given to worriers was that of the great Austen Riggs. He said that the first thing a would-be worrier should do is to ask himself if the problem that is bothering him so much is his to solve. If it isn't and he cannot do anything about it, then obviously, he shouldn't spend three minutes on it.

The next question for the worrier is: If it is your problem, can you tackle it and solve it now? If it can or should be tackled now, the thing to do is to get busy immediately. If you cannot figure out what the solution is, then find some expert who does know and can advise wisely. Many a woman has worried herself sick over a problem that any wise lawyer or banker or physician could have solved for her in a few minutes. And when advice is obtained from an expert, it is better to follow it than to go on worrying — better a poor decision than illness due to lack of one.

Finally, when a decision is made, the subject should be closed, unless perhaps some new information is obtained which requires that the docket be reopened.

One comfort I can offer women is that though they tend to worry more, on the average they outlive men by several years, and so in some ways, they are stronger than men. They are almost immune to some diseases which affect men, like gout or a "poker" or stiff spine; they get fewer ulcers and, especially before the menopause, fewer heart attacks than do men.

Application for a permit under the Pollution Control Act, 1967

We, the Capital Regional District of 26 Bastion Square, Victoria, B.C., hereby apply to the Director of Pollution Control for a permit to discharge effluent from a proposed municipal sewerage system located within the District of Central Saanich into the waters of Cordova Channel between the Straits of Georgia and Juan de Fuca and give notice of my application to all persons affected.

The point of discharge shall be located at approximately 2,800 feet south of the northernmost tip of Cordova Spit.

The land upon which the effluent originates is within the District of Central Saanich being the communities of Brentwood, Saanichton, Turgoose Point and other areas as shown on attached map.

Maximum rate 1.5 (C.F.S.). 550 (Imp. gal. p.m.).

The operating season during which the effluent will be discharged is continuous.

The average characteristics of the effluent discharged shall be equivalent to or better than Suspended Solids 50 ppm, B.O.D. 50 ppm, pH value 7—8, Temperature 30—80 degrees F. Coliform Bacteria 8x10 to the fifth power.

The type of treatment to be applied to the waste before discharge is as follows: Secondary or biological treatment by conventional aeration system and dilution by discharge through long sea outfall.

I, William G. Gerry, Director of Engineering hereby certify that this application does not conflict with the local by-laws of the Capital Regional District.

This application, dated on the 25th day of March, 1971 was posted on the ground in accordance with the Pollution Control Regulations.

(Signature of applicant or agent) W. G. Gerry.

This application is to be filed with the Director of Pollution Control, Parliament Buildings, Victoria, British Columbia. Any person who qualifies as an objector under the Pollution Control Act, 1967 may, within 30 days of the date of the application, or within 30 days of the date of publication in the British Columbia Gazette, or in a newspaper, or, where service is required, within 30 days of the serving of a copy of the application, file with the Director an objection in writing to the granting of a permit, stating how he is affected.

Some Prefer Foul Bay Name To One Honoring Elizabeth

Naming their street after the Queen is less offensive than calling it University Way — but there are still those on Foul Bay Road who resent any change.

A telephone survey showed that several residents heartily approved renaming Foul Bay and Henderson either Queen Elizabeth Way or Queen Elizabeth Road in honor of the Queen.

But the opposition to losing the historic name still exists. It first arose when Public Works Minister W. N. Chant tried to change it to University Way in February, 1968.

Mrs. R. C. Garside, 618 Foul Bay, said her husband is strongly opposed to the proposed change.

A third-generation Victorian, Mrs. Garside said that although Foul Bay his historical significance "it really makes little difference" to her.

Mrs. N. O. Larsen, 2150 Foul Bay, thinks the name-change proposal "sort of stupid." Her objection is that the new names would both be too long.

"Couldn't they think of something shorter?"

Karen Jones, 18, of 351 Foul Bay, a first-year student at the University of Victoria, said her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Rolland Jones, and all their four children are opposed to any change.

"Foul Bay is an interesting kind of name with historical meaning. Perhaps they could name a new street after the Queen, say, in Saanich."

Mrs. E. E. Readshaw, who recently moved from 423 Foul Bay to 4001 Sherwood, is "dead against it. There are streets all over the place named after the Queen but when I wrote to friends in England and France they were all intrigued with the name Foul Bay."

ELIZABETH WAY

Mrs. G. E. Rutledge, 2746 Foul Bay, hoped that Queen Elizabeth Way will be chosen.

Mrs. W. R. McBratney, 2936 Henderson, also feels a renaming after the royal visit would be "quite in keeping."

Mrs. W. E. Jones, 2925 Foul Bay, is in favor. She said it is embarrassing when friends ask her the meaning of "Foul."

Mrs. P. K. Diggle thinks it's a "lovely" idea.

"If they went back to the original spelling of Fowl, as its shown on charts in the Provincial Archives, it wouldn't be so bad.

Vancouver Indian Air Race Entry

Rod Dixon, a 22-year-old Indian from Vancouver, became the 77th and last entry Monday in the B.C. Centennial Air Race, due to start from London July 1.

Dixon flew his Piper PA-23-250 to Ottawa to register, phoning from the Vancouver International Airport to announce that he'd be there before the midnight deadline.

Although a pilot, Dixon has never learned to drive a car. With him on the race will be E. R. C. Radcliffe, an aircrew member with Canadian Pacific.

The provincial government's First Citizens Fund has contributed $15,000 for Dixon's sponsorship.

ENTRY TAPED

Another last-minute entry was made by Bennett of Melbourne. He phoned from Australia Sunday, his official entry being made legal by a tape recorder. The Australian was one of those who competed in the 1969 England-Australia air race.

Another veteran of that race will be competing. He is T. D. Philips, who placed third in the 1969 race. An Englishman who farms in Ireland, Philips is being sponsored by the Irish Hospitals Sweepstakes.

California pilot. Margaret Mead is one of three women who will be piloting planes in the July race. She arrives in Victoria Monday to make a practice trans-continent, trans-ocean run in reverse.

Prior to her arrival she will have made a 16-city tour of her country as a warm-up.

The English pilot Sheila Scott also intends to put in some practical preparation. She's presently standing by in England, waiting for favorable weather to make a flight over the North Pole.

A director of Canadair, manufacturers of the plane, Rathgeb hit the headlines when he piloted a balloon over the Alps.

The oldest plane in the race, which is due to end here July 7, is a prewar-vintage DH 90 A Dragonfly, piloted by W. H. Kerr of Stockton, Calif. Another plane that will rouse interest is the Sea Prince T Mark 1, manned by a Royal Navy fleet air arm crew from the Scottish base of Lossiemouth.

Burke's Peerage is well represented in the English contingent of 14 entries. The Right Hon. Earl of Shelburne will pilot a Piper Cherokee. Crewing in F. Buxton's Britten-Norman Islander will be the Hon. William Astor and Sir William Dugdale.

CANADA MOST

Canada has the largest entry list in the race with 28 planes registered, nosing out the United States' 27.

Eleven of the Canadian pilots are from B.C., nine from Ontario, six from Alberta and two from Quebec.

Local entries who will provide particular interest for Greater Victorians are Claude Butler, 1785 Verling, and Rick Cockburn of Sidney.

The rest of the field is made up of two entries from Sweden, two from Australia, one from Finland, one from West Germany and one from France.

Prime Minister Trudeau and members of his cabinet will be in Victoria July 1. Trudeau and Premier W. A. C. Bennett will make a trans-ocean phone call to the starting base just outside London and share the starting honors.

Greater Victorians will have a chance to view both the finishers and their planes Saturday, July 10.

After a brief ceremony, the pilots will leave the Empress Hotel at noon in a motorcade to the Victoria International Airport. They will hold an 'open house' all afternoon so visitors may see their plans at first-hand.

$712,097 Paid Out

Action by the B.C. labor department last year resulted in $712,097 being paid to 10,052 employees from 4,442 employers under the minimum wage, payment of wages and annual holidays legislation.

Adjustments of $479,309 were made in the previous year.

A number of calls made by department officials on employers resulted "from information which had been received that infractions were taking place and it became necessary that adjustments be made either to the conditions of work or to wages due to the employees," said Gerald O'Neill, director of the labor standards branch, in his annual report.

He said a "large portion" of the $712,097 paid to employees was obtained following the issuing of certificates by the Board of Industrial Relations under the Payment of Wages Act.

O'Neill said because employees sometimes exercised their civil rights under the minimum wage acts through the courts without going to the labor department, "it may be presumed that the amount of money paid to employees as a result of legislation administered by this department is considerably in excess of that reported" by the department itself.

Position Filled

W. S. MacKay, 33, of Victoria, has been appointed director of planning for the regional district of Nanaimo.

MacKay, employed with the municipal affairs department, will take the post June 15.

He replaces Victor Grimson who left last year.

History To Float By

A mini-parade with a B.C. Centennial theme will precede the main body of the Victoria Day parade May 24, organizers announced Wednesday.

The historical front-runners will leave the Mayfair parking lot at 9:45 a.m., 15 minutes before the military sections and the main body, and will take 15 minutes to pass a given point.

Included will be items of historical significance like old farm machinery, and marchers in old-time police and fire uniforms.

There will be 285 units in the whole extravaganza, of which 22 will be in the mini-parade. There will be 55 floats, compared with 30 last year.

Students Get Ups, Downs From School Rodeo Course

CARDSTON, Alta. (CP) — About 90 Indian students at the Blood Indian reservation near here are learning that school really has its ups and downs.

The students, attending St. Mary day school, are enrolled in Canada's first high school rodeo course.

Lynn Jensen, a former professional rodeo performer, gives classroom instruction on rodeo theory to both boys and girls. Lessons include technique of the events, how to organize a complete rodeo and the makeup of the rodeo structure.

TEST COMES NOW

"We stress the five major events—calf roping, bareback riding, steer wrestling and saddle-bronc and bull riding —for the boys—and barrel racing for the girls," says Mr. Jensen.

Most of the lessons during the winter were devoted to theory. The only practical experience offered when the snow was on the ground was roping bales of hay.

The real test of the students comes in the spring, when they do in the arena what they were taught in the classroom.

Mr. Jensen says his curriculum is flexible and does not require a set number of textbooks. It includes steps to follow to become a rodeo hand, rules and terminology, promotion, advertising and organization.

To provide some instruction in judging a rodeo, Mr. Jensen shows films of various performances. The students then are asked to evaluate the event.

He will take 15 top students to Edmonton this year to see some of the world's best performers compete in the world championships.

WANTS RECOGNITION

Mr. Jensen also wants to have Alberta recognized as a region in the North American National High School Rodeo Association.

"If we can get Alberta recognized as a region, instead of all of Canada, there will be a better chance for more Alberta boys to compete in the national finals.

"This also could mean more boys will be able to compete in rodeos on the college levels, getting their education and experience at the same time."

ANCIENT MAMMOTH FOUND

MOSCOW (UPI) — The body of an ancient mammoth — complete with bones, skin and hair — was found frozen in Siberia by a Soviet farm worker, the news agency Tass said. Tass said the worker, K. Struchkov, discovered parts of the huge elephant-like mammal jutting through the hard frozen earth near a tributary on Siberia's Indigirka River.

"The animals's hair and skin are well preserved," Tass said. "This find is a rare one. Only about 30 such finds have been made in Siberia and Alaska."

The agency said the giant beast will be studied in a deep cave in Siberia where the Siberian permafrost will keep it solidly frozen.

Canada Jobless Total Edges Up

But Declines In B.C.

OTTAWA (CP)—Unemployment across Canada rose to 659,000 last month, an increase of 9,000 during a time when unemployment figures usually go down, the manpower department and the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported today.

British Columbia, however, bucked the trend along with the Prairies and Quebec, and recorded 72,000 jobless, down 1,000 on March.

B.C.'s percentage rate for April was 8.1 per cent unemployed, down from the 8.3 per cent March rate, but still above the national average of 7.8 per cent.

The joint report by the manpower department and statistics bureau said the national increase in jobs available between March and April "was considerably less than usual for this time of year." The number of people employed in April was an estimated 7,737,000, compared with 7,686,000 in March — an increase of only 51,000 while there were 60,000 more people in the labor force.

Because of slower-than-usual growth of new job opportunities, this spring, the seasonally-adjusted rate of unemployment shot up sharply to 6.7 per cent from 6.0 in March. In actual terms, the unemployment rate remained unchanged, however, at 7.8 per cent.

The actual figures show the percentage of the work force that is actually unemployed. The seasonally-adjusted figure is computed in order to take into account the factors such as winter or spring seasons

Some Not Helping —Benson

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Edgar Benson said Wednesday that some provinces — showed they "really do not care about inflation" after agreeing last year to help fight it.

He told the Commons the problem of inflation was discussed with the provinces and they agreed that some wage guides should be followed by both the federal and provincial governments.

"I must say that beyond the meeting at which this was agreed, some of the provinces were not noteworthy in carrying out the voluntary guidelines with regard to wage settlements in respect of their own employees."

Mr. Benson spoke in reply to questions from opposition MPs about putting the subject of unemployment on the agenda of next month's federal-provincial conference in Victoria. The conference was originally intended to deal mainly with constitutional reform.

Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield asked whether the provinces agreed to fight inflation to the extent of causing higher unemployment.

PROVINCES CONSULTED

Mr. Benson said the provinces were consulted on anti-inflation policies at meetings of premiers and prime ministers, and at meetings of provincial treasurers and finance ministers.

"This (inflation) was agreed to be the major problem in Canada and . . . it was agreed that certain things, including some wage guidelines, should be adhered to by the provincial and federal governments," Mr. Benson said.

David Orlikow (NDP—Winnipeg North) asked whether Manitoba had not entered a reservation to the agreement, saying that rents and profits should be restrained as well as wages.

Mr. Benson said that was true, but he added:

"It was also indicated by some provinces—as was indicated by some members of the opposition—that they really do not care about inflation."

ROYAL PARTY BACK AT WINDSOR CASTLE

Times News Services

LONDON — The Queen, Prince Philip and Princess Anne returned to Windsor Castle to a bit of unwanted excitement after their on-security-conscious tour of British Columbia.

The Queen was told that a telephoned bomb threat forced Princess Margaret and 1,400 other persons to evacuate the Chichester festival theatre Wednesday night. A police search, however, failed to locate an explose device.

Automatic Suspension For Drivers Ended

The provincial government has abandoned its policy of automatic 30-day suspension of drivers convicted of impaired driving.

Attorney-General Leslie Peterson said today the move results from a B.C. court of appeals decision quashing a suspension.

He said he can't argue with the court's view that the suspensions should be handed out only after an inquiry into each case.

This "procedural defect" will be corrected by the motor vehicles branch, Peterson said.

But he warned that this doesn't mean a "go soft policy" is being instituted as a result of the court decision.

"If anything, it will be the reverse," said Peterson.

He also repeated earlier suggestions that the government may introduce legislation next year to make the automatic 30-day suspensions acceptable to the courts.

The good thing about the automatic suspensions was that there were no exceptions for anyone, Peterson said.

Forests Ablaze In Central B.C.

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — A forest fire, which burned over 600 acres 15 miles south of here, jumped its northern boundary on Wednesday and threatened some private homes.

There is no immediate danger to Prince George and its suburbs.

Assistant district forester Bill Bishop said water bombers were called in. He described it as a particularly bad start to the fire season of any year. The fire broke out Tuesday and was out of control by Wednesday afternoon.

More than 500 men were fighting 98 fires in the Prince George district. Twenty-five of the fires had broken out since Tuesday. A total of eight aircraft and 110 tractors were attacking the fires.

A house near Hixon, about 30 miles south of this central B.C. city was destroyed by a forest fire Tuesday. At Crescent Spur, 95 miles east of Prince George, a deserted railway station and store were destroyed by a 250-acre fire that twice jumped the Fraser River.

Winds in th Prince George area were at 20 miles an hour out of the south. The forecast called for 15-mile-an-hour southeast winds today. The weather continued hot and dry.

In Victoria, the B.C. Forest Service reported 174 forest fires burning in the province and said several in the Peace River district were major problems. Strong southwest winds were forecast for the Peace River later in the week.

Brinco Will Get Nod For Stikine Power

Long before a major environmental study has been done in the area, it is "basically" a certainty that there will be power development on the Stikine River system in Northwest B.C., Resources Minister Ray Williston indicated today.

WILLISTON
looking north

Williston was commenting in an interview on reports that British Newfoundland Corporation Ltd. of Montreal is involved in studies of power development on the Iskut, a tributary of the Stikine, about 200 miles northwest of Prince Rupert.

He said the cabinet environment and land use committee wouldn't conduct an ecological study of the area until a proposal for development is received.

Williston is chairman of the committee which has been given the official job of making major environment and land use decisions.

RESTRICTED

He indicated the committee would be restricted to deciding the methods and nature of development rather than the basic question of whether development should take place.

Williston said a power supply in the area, coupled with the extension of the provincially owned Pacific Great Eastern Railway to Dease Lake by 1974, would provide the missing links for a major mineral development.

He said that B.C. Hydro and Power Authority, now

Labor-Short Japan Wants West To Make Semi-Finished Products

Times News Services

VANCOUVER — A growing labor shortage has already forced Japan to expand some of its labor intensive industries to its Asian neighbors and this trend may also bring work to western Canada, a Japanese steel executive said Wednesday.

Tadayoshi Yamada, executive council member of Nippon Steel Corp., told the Pacific Basin Economic Co-operation Council that Japan has a minimal population growth and is critically short of land.

As a result, he said, the country must put work out to countries with spare labor and manufacturing facilities.

SEMI-FINISHED

The Japanese government and industry, he added, will encourage western Canadian industrialists from Manitoba to British Columbia to develop several base mineral products into semi-finished industrial items for export to Japan.

Yamada said the process will be aided by a liberalization of foreign exchange regulations and an easing of import controls by his country.

Robert Bonner, vice-chairman of MacMillan Bloedel Ltd., a giant in the forest products industry, said British Columbia businessmen for years have urged removal of Japanese barriers to the importation of semi-manufactured goods.

"Indeed," he said, "the Japanese moves appear to be in response to Canadian urgings."

He said a direct consequence of an enlightened and co-operative Japanese trading policy could be an expansion of smelter facilities and the founding of a serious iron and steel industry in western Canada.

The PBECC consists of five founding members — Australia, Canada, Japan, New Zealand and the U.S. Guest participants at the conference are Hong Kong, Singapore, Indonesia, the Philippines, South Korea and South Vietnam.

The conference today considers in closed session an American proposal for an international investment charter, which would set out the rights and responsibilities of corporations and host countries regarding industrial projects and investments.

A basic principle of the charter would be the responsibility of investors to "proceed in ways that will contribute to established economic and social development programs" in the developing countries.

The host country would conversely be responsible for developing an investment environment "conducive to the flourishing of private enterprise in the interests of all parties involved."

NO VOTE DATE SET—THATCHER

REGINA (CP) — Premier Ross Thatcher said Wednesday night the cabinet has not decided on the date for a provincial election in Saskatchewan although it likely will be either in June or October.

He denied reports that he had told a Columbus, Ohio, audience there will be a provincial election within one month.

Britain's ECM Hopes: Almost Certain

By HAROLD MORRISON

LONDON (CP) — Barring some last-minute upset, it now appears that Britain's major negotiations to join the European Common Market may be completed by July, opening the way for her formal admittance by January, 1973.

British commentators, supported by Canadian trade experts here as well as European observers, all view the latest round of bargaining at Brussels as a big breakthrough though some key issues still remain to be resolved.

These include the future of sterling as an international reserve currency, the future of New Zealand dairy products in the British market and the question of whether the Caribbean countries will accept the idea of association with an enlarged European bloc to safeguard their sugar markets.

Opinion polls suggest that a majority of the British people still remain to be convinced that entry into the Common Market will be to their benefit. A big anti-market lobby continues its criticism and warnings that entry will push up British food prices and force Britain to pay large subsidies to French farmers.

But in Prime Minister Heath's government there is confidence that the Conservative party will not crack in parliamentary debate and that a vote in favor of entry is assured providing the remaining issues can be resolved.

Some of them, such as the future of sterling, may be settled in the Anglo-French summit in Paris next week between Heath and President Georges Pompidou.

Others may be resolved at the next Common Market bargaining session in Luxembourg June 7.

One key issue is whether New Zealand dairy markets can be safeguarded. Some British observers suggest this could turn out to be the crucial barrier since there is much sentiment in Britain in support of New Zealand's future.

Canada gained at least one important concession during the Brussels bargaining — agreement by the six that duty-free imports of newsprint will be safeguarded through a quota system. A number of other raw materials, such as wood pulp and plywood, will be given similar treatment.

But there is concern in official Canadian quarters that enlargement of the Common Market through extension of the association principle to the Caribbean and other regions will hurt Canadian exports. These countries which accept association must give the Common Market tariff and trade preferences.

STIFFER PENALTIES IMPOSED AS TOTALS SOAR

Area Drug Convictions Disproportionately High

Greater Victoria, with approximately 0.84 per cent of Canada's population, accounted for over 3 per cent of the nation's drug convictions in 1970.

And with just 8.3 per cent of the British Columbia population, Greater Victoria's 204 drug prosecutions in 1970 amount to slightly over 11 per cent of the provincial total.

Nationally, the number of convictions in 1970, compiled by the federal health department, was 6,745, double the 3,338 in 1969.

In British Columbia there were 1,790 convictions in 1970, up from 1,117 in 1969.

Locally to deal with the dramatic upsruge in the use of narcotics and restricted drugs, the courts have begun to impose stiffer penalties, particularly for convicted traffickers.

Statistics from the General Investigative Section of the RCMP show this increase as part of a trend which has taken place in the area since 1966, when it appears drug use among young people started to come into vogue.

Only three prosecutions were made in 1966, but the figure climbed to 33 in 1967 and there were 75 drug prosecutions in 1968.

Figures for the first four months of 1971 indicate that the rate of drug prosecutions is not about to decline. So far this year there have been 70 prosecutions, 52 for possession offences and 18 for trafficking.

By far the most common offence has been for possession of marijuana and hashish, the so-called "soft" drugs so popular in contemporary youth culture. Prosecutions for possession of these drugs make up over 55 per cent of drug charges laid in the area.

Penalties for possession of marijuana or hashish in the last year ranged from an average fine of $350 to a light jail sentence or a suspended sentence with a year or two probation.

Fines were most often used as punishment, comprising 69 per cent of the cases, while 16 per cent of the convictions brought light jail sentences (from seven days to six months) and 15 per cent of the sentences were suspended.

Authorities have dealt more severely with convictions involving possession or trafficking of heroin. In every case, conviction for possession of heroin has led to a lengthy jail term while traffickers have received jail terms of up to five years.

Persons convicted of trafficking in drugs rarely escape jail according to figures covering the past year. Of 28 persons convicted only two had their sentences suspended, and none received fines. The average jail term was 21 months.

There were four cases of heroin trafficking, with three getting sentences of 2½ years and the other getting five years.

In the five cases of persons convicted of possession of narcotics for the purpose of trafficking, four were given jail terms, two of them for three years each.

Traffic in the restricted drugs (LSD, MDA, STP) comprises a substantial part of the illicit drug trade. Almost 20 per cent of the convictions made in Greater Victoria in the past year have involved a restricted drug.

Heroin convictions accounted for just over 5 per cent of the total.

Traffickers Eye Youth Market

The traffickers of heroin have developed a new system of narcotics distribution to accommodate the potential market among young people, according to an official of the British Columbia Narcotics Addiction Foundation.

Heroin is no longer confined mainly to the Vancouver area, Dr. H. R. Williams, clinical director of the foundation, said in his annual report Wednesday.

"Areas were heroin use had never been reported in the past are now showing a high incidence of use."

Dr. Williams said treatment centres for heroin addicts are needed throughout British Columbia as a result of the increase in heroin addiction.

Licence Threat Hurled At Rest Home Owners

GAGLARDI
. . . 'I'll take them on'

HANRAHAN
. . . won't meet Phil

Rehabilitation Minister Phil Gaglardi said today he would "take a look" at the licence of any rest home operator who evicts a welfare guest.

He made the statement after telling reporters that "I don't operate under threat."

The minister was commenting on a meeting of rest home operators which unanimously supported a policy of evicting welfare guests if the government fails to meet demands for higher rates.

"Did you ever hear of anything so inhumane?" Gaglardi asked. "They're not fit (to run rest homes) if they dump people."

"I'll take them on any old day of the week," Gaglardi said.

"Let him go ahead and try, and see what happens to him."

Gaglardi said the rest home owners are trying to "stampede" him and "I don't operate under that system."

He said the government "has gone as far as it is prepared to go" on the rate question because a committee of experts had made the recommendation for the recent announced increase in the rate for welfare guests. It was boosted from a maximum of $150 a month to $174.

* * *

Two new twists to the dispute were disclosed today by Hanrahan.

1. The operators will not meet with Gaglardi again because he "does not know what he's talking about;"

2. The Victoria dispute "could be province-wide."

About 300 rest home guests are caught in the middle of the fight between the operators and the government.

* * *

No date was announced for the discharge of the welfare guests but Hanrahan, asked if the eviction will be in stages rather than all at once, said "they are all going to be discharged around the same time." But this would not be right away, he added.

"This will be very, very serious," he said. Hanrahan also said Gaglardi will have to appoint another man to discuss the dispute because the operators will not meet with him.

New Tactics Considered In Sandringham Strike

A top-level meeting of union officials in Victoria Wednesday night discussed a number of ways of bringing the 7½-month Sandringham Private Hospital strike to a head, but no decisions were made on specific actions, a spokesman said today.

Alex Markides, local representative for the Canadian Union of Public Employees, said in response to questions that chain or solid picketing "is a thought" and that consideration has been given to picketing the homes of those who have replaced the 28 women who went on strike last Sept. 30.

Markides also said that tactics which are decided upin will not be announced in advance.

Attending the meeting were representatives of CUPE, the B.C. Federation of Labor and the Victoria Labor Council.

Markides said the "effort will be escalated" to involve the "National Nursing Homes chain so that both parties can get back to the bargaining table." MNH manages Sandringham and has resisted the union which is seeking a first contract.

Fire belived caused by children having a secret smoke on the way to school wrecked a garage and a car and damaged two adjoining buildings at Moss and Oscar this morning.

Police are questioning students at Sir James Douglas Elementary across the street, after owner Frank Low said youngsters often broke into the garage to smoke.

Low owns one adjoining building which houses his store, Henderson's Low Cost, as well as Alicia's Beauty Salon and three upstairs apartments.

He said the burned auto was an older model, and estimated the cost of the garage at $2,000. Singe, smoke and water damage to the building itself was slight.

Damage was estimated at $2,500 to the house on the other side of the garage, owned by Mr. and Mr. William D. Wells. The roof of the home was badly burned, windows were broken and there was smoke and water damage.

Two other cars parked in front of the garage were pushed out of the way after the alarm was turned in at 8:39 a.m.

The Best Place for a Horse Is With Other Horses — Bate

Plans for an animal farm in Beacon Hill Park do not include a horse to replace Queenie, Victoria parks director Cliff Bate said today.

The farmyard will contain only small, young animals, newly acquired from local farms each season.

"There's no way we can have a horse and children" in the farmyard, Bate said.

Council approved the children's farmyard plan in March but the first animals will not appear until next spring.

Despite the wide attraction of Queenie, who died earlier this year, the park was not the best place for an old horse, Bate said. Queenie's fans overfed her and she lacked exercise, making her uncomfortable and often requiring a crane to get her on her feet.

The best place for an old horse, Bate said, is in an open pasture with other horses.

MORE DETAILED SURVEY PLANNED

Old Town Study Group Gets Grant

The University of British Columbia architectural study group, studying Victoria's downtown area between the harbor and the business area, has received an $8,000 grant from the federal government.

The Opportunities for Youth Program sent a telegram to co-ordinator Jim Starck Wednesday saying the program will "enable you to contribute in your own way to both the community you live in and in Canada as a whole."

Starck, originator of the group, applied for the grant so U.B.C. students could continue a study of the buildings in the Old Town area. Starck was an architecture instructor at UBC for two years.

The group plans to carry out more detailed survey of the buildings and their conditions.

"The core group will be made up of architect students and hopefully more specific people such as urban geographers, sociologists and civil engineers," Starck said.

The rest of the workers will come from almost any discipline interested in this type of study, he said.

Meanwhile, an account of the group's brief on downtown development, which appeared in the Times Wednesday, incorrectly reported that the Old Town steering committee presented its brief to the Chamber of Commerce environment committee Wednesday.

The brief was presented to the chamber committee today, and it will be presented to City Council Tuesday, May 18.

ROUSE AND BEWARE, ye householders of historic Foul Bay Road! The attack has been renewed, the name of your turny-twisty thoroughfare is again in danger, and it may take a determined protest to save it.

In an excess of nice-Nellyism, three mayors have aligned themselves with a new move to do away with the time-honored but misinterpreted "Foul" that figures in your street name.

The adjective as applied to Foul Bay by early nautical types had no bearing on the purity or otherwise of its waters, whatever their state today. It merely signified foul ground in the sense of a difficult or dangerous anchorage.

I don't go along with this changing of place names from the bluff, bold, historic and hearty because over-sensitive ears don't happen to like the sound of them. With all deference, I suggested that the proposed substitute title, "Queen Elizabeth Way," be given instead to the ring road that circles University of Victoria campus.

The mayors of Oak Bay, Victoria and Saanich might also take warning from what happened when some earlier scatterers of rose petals decided that Smuggler's Cove Road on Ten Mile Point should have its well-earned name changed to something nicey-nice.

Up went a new road marker with a pretty name in Spanish. Simultaneously, up rose a concerted howl from residents who demanded the old name back in forceful terms. They prevailed, and Smuggler's Cove road it remains.

I hope that threatened Foul Bay roadsters will react in no less determined fashion.

Anyone who believes that war as waged in the era of musket and muzzle-loading cannon was more picturesque than lethal could do worse than take in the reconstructed "Waterloo" now in full thunder at the Royal.

As a study of the fateful battle that took place on June 18, 1815, the picture is both grim and impressive. Cavalry charges that look at the outset like reproductions of old paintings crash from their frames to end in nightmarish blood-lettings. And though they lack the overkill potential of our modern fissionable horrors, the ranged guns work awesome execution.

(The actual battle, as reported by observers at Waterloo, could be no more than capsulized on film. To approximate the slaughter it would have been necessary to scatter 45,000 "dead" or "wounded" extras over a single tract of three square miles.)

To which I might add that after enduring Rod Steiger's Napoleon for a couple of hours, I could have used a restorative nip myself.

"I'm only too glad to pay off," he writes, "but I wish they'd come around and collect. If they put it off much longer, they'll have to wait till next pay-day."

A suggestion which the tardy three, along with any others who haven't yet collected for miles walked, would do well to heed.

HEARING CONCLUDING

The preliminary hearing of a 17-year-old youth charged with attempted murder began its second day in Victoria provincial court this morning and was expected to conclude this afternoon.

Judge William Ostler issued a no-publication order Wednesday in the case of Russell Michael Amos charged after Fiona Fay Boucher, 2, of 643 John, was attacked at her home on the night of March 4 and 5.

The student prizes will be presented at a ceremony at the gallery marking the opening of its May 25 to June 13 21st annual jury exhibition. The opening ceremony begins at 8:30 p.m. and the awards presentation at 9 p.m.

Judges were Nita Forrest and Glen Howarth.

Before the Judge

An Ontario merchant appeared in Victoria provincial court Wednesday to testify on behalf of a 20-year-old man who pleaded guilty to four charges of trafficking in drugs.

Donald Brill told Judge William Ostler that he had come to ask for leniency in the case of Gordon William McKie, also of Toronto, who faced charges of trafficking in LSD July 10 and 21, in hashish July 13 and in heroin July 29.

McKie pleaded guilty.

Brill said he had come from Toronto after meeting McKie through his son last August. He said his son picked up McKie when he was hitchhiking in Winnipeg last summer.

Brill said the accused had stayed with his family, admitting a troubled childhood and use of drugs that had been ended.

He added that McKie went to work for his firm in Ottawa, driving a truck and handling large sums of money.

"He developed a relationship with our family and not only he for us but us for him," Brill said.

A RCMP officer testified that McKie sold one undercover agent two tablets of LSD for $10 July 10 and a gram of hash for $5 three days later.

The accused, the officer said, then sold a second agent two tablets of LSD for $5 July 21 and a capsule of heroin for $20 July 29.

Defence counsel Lloyd McKenzie, arguing for a suspended sentence, said it was "almost miraculous" that McKie should be thumbing a ride in Winnipeg and land in with the Brill family.

Prosecutor Cecil Branson, however, while agreeing that it was an unusual case, opposed a suspended sentence because of the number of charges and the involvement of heroin which he termed "a most despicable drug."

Ostler remanded the case to May 28 for pre-sentence report and to look at higher-court judgments in similar circumstances.

SCHOOL BURSTING AT SEAMS

Sidney Elementary is bursting at the seams and a meeting will be held there tonight to determine how to cope with the overflow.

School superintendent Cory Holob says attendance has risen from 599 in June 1970 to a present registration of 670. Rapid suburban growth in Sidney is responsible for the increase which is expected to continue at a rate of 5 per cent a year.

Sidney Elementary is planned to accommodate 538 pupils and has two additional portable classrooms.

TRANSFER 90

"Every hole has now been filled," says Holob, who explained the school board is considering transfer of about 90 students by bus to Deep Cove Elementary and Sansbury Elementary, both in North Saanich.

The situation will be explained to parents at the meeting tonight which will be attended by school board trustees Harry Tobin and Charley MacNeill, superintendent Holob, grounds supervisor Bryan Shaw and principals of all three schools involved.

Plans are on paper for the establishment probably in 1973 of a second elementary school in the city which will be accommodated in the present junior high school when the new junior-senior school complex is built.

STAR-GAZERS MEET HERE

More than three dozen papers on almost every aspect of star-gazing will be read at University of Victoria Friday and Saturday as 70 astronomers from across the country gather for a conference of the National Research Council's Committee on Astronomy.

Included on the agenda is discussion of a proposal to build a huge radio telescope on the Clearwater River, which would make Canada a world leader in the field.

TITO

LIFER SAYS HE'LL LIVE TO BE 900

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — In a petition to the California Supreme Court, a San Quentin prisoner says he wants his life sentence for murder ended because, like Methuselah, he expects to live for 900 years.

Percy Jones, 44, told the court he follows biblical sanctions against certain foods and his "religious conscience" otherwise convinces him of a 900-year life.

He said his five-year-to-life term was imposed under old theology that a man was expected to live 65 to 75 years.

Tito Nears 79th Birthday; Oldest Surviving Red Ruler

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
Associated Press Writer

On May 25 Josip Broz Tito will be 79 years old.

The president-for-life of Yugoslavia is the world's oldest surviving Communist ruler. For more than 60 years he has been involved in war, revolution, intrigue and nation building.

"The situation in our country . . . is not good."

In his May Day speech he was not explicit about just what it was that was not good. In comparison with other Communist-ruled countries, Yugoslavia is a howling success economically and politically. But Tito's worries may have involved difficulties within the League of Communists, which is the ruling party organization.

There have been troubles in the party between those who lean toward old Stalinist ideas and those who want to continue liberalization. There have been worries, too, about a possible struggle for power after Tito.

NO SINGLE SUCCESSOR

With regard to the succession, Tito has spoken and now can only hope that his wishes are carried out. He has said that it is about time for him to leave the stage. There will be no single man as a successor, though it had once appeared likely that Tito's 60-year-old faithful lieutenant, Edvard Kardelj, would be the choice.

Tito appeared to want to avoid the risk of anointing any one man, probably mindful of the power-struggle experiences of other Communist nations, including the Soviet Union. Therefore, according to his wishes, after Tito there will be a state presidency made up of 14 equal members.

ONE PARENT BILLED FOR BROKEN WINDOWS

One parent has been billed for school windows broken by his son in the school board's tough new approach to mounting window replacement costs.

A school board spokesman said today's costs of replacing windows in Greater Victoria schools was $13,900 from Jan. 1 to April 20 this year. Almost all the damage is deliberate and the school board is taking a firm approach to the problem, the spokesman said.

"There seems to be no economic or geographic pattern governing which schools are hit hardest," he said, but one factor is the number of loose rocks lying around.

Even after hiring an extra glazier, damage has been so heavy this spring that some of the repair work has had to be contracted out by the school board's construction and maintenance department.

April is the worst month for vandalism. This year's bill is running well ahead of last year, when the total window breakage for the year was $36,000.

Hardest hit was been S. J. Willis Junior High, where breakage has cost $2,078. On one night alone early in April, 45 windows were broken at the school.

The bill at Highrock Junior High was $1,901, and at Victoria High $1,044. Lowest window replacement costs were reported by Lake Hill Elementary at $8.50 and Mount Douglas High at $7.60.

In addition to billing parents when the culprit can be determined, the school board plans to increase lighting and surveillance at school grounds, and to ask students for suggestions on how to prevent vandalism.

Despite the mounting costs, construction and maintenance superintendent S. H. Dietz said the figure here is still below that in most other parts of the country.

'Safe' Viewpoint

Recreation Minister Ken Kiernan said Wednesday the proposal would be seriously considered.

"It appears that some ty of safe viewpoint should be provided," he said.

Two sightseers, Herbert Otto Hohaus, 32, of West Germany, and Frank Pretula, 28, of Montreal, in less than a year plunged to their deaths over the 150-foot cliff.

Kiernan said a major problem facing parks plannes is a policy which culd be applied fairly to hundreds of danger spots in provincial parks throughout B.C.

Health Care Changes Main Topic

Changes in the delivery of health care will be discussed by guest speaker G. B. Rosenfeld, federal hospital administration consultant, at the 59th annual meeting of the Registered Nurses Association of British Columbia in Vancouver May 26 to 28.

Lautens will be the dinner speaker aboard the S.S. Princess Louise II May 27. Miss Beswetherick will discuss new roles in nursing at p.m. the same day at the Bayshore Inn.

Her speech will be followed by a panel discussion. New officers for the association will be announced May 28. Rosenfeld's address also will be delivered at the Bayshore Inn May 27, at 11 a.m.

Canada Jobless Total Edges Up

But Declines In B.C.

OTTAWA (CP)—Unemployment across Canada rose to 659,000 last month, an increase of 9,000 during a time when unemployment figures usually go down, the manpower department and the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported today.

British Columbia, however, bucked the trend along with the Prairies and Quebec, and recorded 72,000 jobless, down 1,000 on March.

B.C.'s percentage rate for April was 8.1 per cent unemployed, down from the 8.3 per cent March rate, but still above the national average of 7.8 per cent.

The joint report by the manpower department and statistics bureau said the national increase in jobs available between March and April "was considerably less than usual for this time of year." The number of people employed in April was an estimated 7,737,000, compared with 7,686,000 in March — an increase of only 51,000 while there were 60,000 more people in the labor force.

Because of slower-than-usual growth of new job opportunities, this spring, the seasonally-adjusted rate of unemployment shot up sharply to 6.7 per cent from 6.0 in March. In actual terms, the unemployment rate remained unchanged, however, at 7.8 per cent.

The actual figures show the percentage of the work force that is actually unemployed. The seasonally-adjusted figure is computed in order to take into account the factors such as winter or spring seasons

Some Not Helping —Benson

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Edgar Benson said Wednesday that some provinces — showed they "really do not care about inflation" after agreeing last year to help fight it.

He told the Commons the problem of inflation was discussed with the provinces and they agreed that some wage guides should be followed by both the federal and provincial governments.

"I must say that beyond the meeting at which this was agreed, some of the provinces were not noteworthy in carrying out the voluntary guidelines with regard to wage settlements in respect of their own employees."

Mr. Benson spoke in reply to questions from opposition MPs about putting the subject of unemployment on the agenda of next month's federal-provincial conference in Victoria. The conference was originally intended to deal mainly with constitutional reform.

Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield asked whether the provinces agreed to fight inflation to the extent of causing higher unemployment.

PROVINCES CONSULTED

Mr. Benson said the provinces were consulted on anti-inflation policies at meetings of premiers and prime ministers, and at meetings of provincial treasurers and finance ministers.

"This (inflation) was agreed to be the major problem in Canada and . . . it was agreed that certain things, including some wage guidelines, should be adhered to by the provincial and federal governments," Mr. Benson said.

David Orlikow (NDP—Winnipeg North) asked whether Manitoba had not entered a reservation to the agreement, saying that rents and profits should be restrained as well as wages.

Mr. Benson said that was true, but he added:

"It was also indicated by some provinces—as was indicated by some members of the opposition—that they really do not care about inflation."

ROYAL PARTY BACK AT WINDSOR CASTLE

Times News Services

LONDON — The Queen, Prince Philip and Princess Anne returned to Windsor Castle to a bit of unwanted excitement after their non-security-conscious tour of British Columbia.

The Queen was told that a telephoned bomb threat forced Princess Margaret and 1,400 other persons to evacuate the Chichester festival theatre Wednesday night. A police search, however, failed to locate an explosive device.

Automatic Suspension For Drivers Ended

The provincial government has abandoned its policy of automatic 30-day suspension of drivers convicted of impaired driving.

Attorney-General Leslie Peterson said today the move results from a B.C. court of appeals decision quashing a suspension.

He said he can't argue with the court's view that the suspensions should be handed out only after an inquiry into each case.

This "procedural defect" will be corrected by the motor vehicles branch, Peterson said.

But he warned that this doesn't mean a "go soft policy" is being instituted as a result of the court decision.

"If anything, it will be the reverse," said Peterson.

He also repeated earlier suggestions that the government may introduce legislation next year to make the automatic 30-day suspensions acceptable to the courts.

The good thing about the automatic suspensions was that there were no exceptions for anyone, Peterson said.

Forests Ablaze In Central B.C.

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — A forest fire, which burned over 600 acres 15 miles south of here, jumped its northern boundary on Wednesday and threatened some private homes.

There is no immediate danger to Prince George and its suburbs.

Assistant district forester Bill Bishop said water bombers were called in. He described it as a particularly bad start to the fire season of any year. The fire broke out Tuesday and was out of control by Wednesday afternoon.

More than 500 men were fighting 98 fires in the Prince George district. Twenty-five of the fires had broken out since Tuesday. A total of eight aircraft and 110 tractors were attacking the fires.

A house near Hixon, about 30 miles south of this central B.C. city was destroyed by a forest fire Tuesday. At Crescent Spur, 95 miles east of Prince George, a deserted railway station and store were destroyed by a 250 - acre fire that twice jumped the Fraser River.

Winds in th Prince George area were at 20 miles an hour out of the south. The forecast called for 15-mile-an-hour southeast winds today. The weather continued hot and dry.

In Victoria, the B.C. Forest Service reported 174 forest fires burning in the province and said several in the Peace River district were major problems. Strong southwest winds were forecast for the Peace River later in the week.

Brinco Will Get Nod For Stikine Power

Long before a major environmental study has been done in the area, it is "basically" a certainty that there will be power development on the Stikine River system in Northwest B.C., Resources Minister Ray Williston indicated today.

WILLISTON

Williston was commenting in an interview on reports that British Newfoundland Corporation Ltd. of Montreal is involved in studies of power development on the Iskut, a tributary of the Stikine, about 200 miles northwest of Prince Rupert.

He said the cabinet environment and land use committee wouldn't conduct an ecological study of the area until a proposal for development is received.

Williston is chairman of the committee which has been given the official job of making major environment and land use decisions.

RESTRICTED

He indicated the committee would be restricted to deciding the methods and nature of development rather than the basic question of whether development should take place.

Williston said a power supply in the area, coupled with the extension of the provincially owned Pacific Great Eastern Railway to Dease Lake by 1974, would provide the missing links for a major mineral development.

He said that B.C. Hydro and Power Authority, now

Labor-Short Japan Wants West To Make Semi-Finished Products

Times News Services

VANCOUVER — A growing labor shortage has already forced Japan to expand some of its labor intensive industries to its Asian neighbors and this trend may also bring work to western Canada, a Japanese steel executive said Wednesday.

Tadayoshi Yamada, executive council member of Nippon Steel Corp., told the Pacific Basin Economic Cooperation Council that Japan has a minimal population growth and is critically short of land.

As a result, he said, the country must put work out to countries with spare labor and manufacturing facilities.

SEMI-FINISHED

The Japanese government and industry, he added, will encourage western Canadian industrialists from Manitoba to British Columbia to develop several base mineral products into semi-finished industrial items for export to Japan.

Yamada said the process will be aided by a liberalization of foreign exchange regulations and an easing of import controls by his country.

Robert Bonner, vice-chairman of MacMillan Bloedel Ltd., a giant in the forest products industry, said British Columbia businessmen for years have urged removal of Japanese barriers to the importation of semi-manufactured goods.

"Indeed," he said, "the Japanese moves appear to be in response to Canadian urgings."

He said a direct consequence of an enlightened and co-operative Japanese trading policy could be an expansion of smelter facilities and the founding of a serious iron and steel industry in western Canada.

The PBECC consists of five founding members — Australia, Canada, Japan, New Zealand and the U.S. Guest participants at the conference are Hong Kong, Singapore, Indonesia, the Philippines, South Korea and South Vietnam.

The conference today considers in closed session an American proposal for an international investment charter, which would set out the rights and responsibilities of corporations and host countries regarding industrial projects and investments.

A basic principle of the charter would be the responsibility of investors to "proceed in ways that will contribute to established economic and social development programs" in the developing countries.

The host country would conversely be responsible for developing an investment environment "conducive to the flourishing of private enterprise in the interests of all parties involved."

Britain's ECM Hopes: Almost Certain

By HAROLD MORRISON

LONDON (CP) — Barring some last-minute upset, it now appears that Britain's major negotiations to join the European Common Market may be completed by July, opening the way for her formal admittance by January, 1973.

British commentators, supported by Canadian trade experts here as well as European observers, all view the latest round of bargaining at Brussels as a big breakthrough, though some key issues still remain to be resolved.

These include the future of sterling as an international reserve currency, the future of New Zealand dairy products in the British market and the question of whether the Caribbean countries will accept the idea of association with an enlarged European bloc to safeguard their sugar markets.

Opinion polls suggest that a majority of the British people still remain to be convinced that entry into the Common Market will be to their benefit. A big anti-market lobby continues its criticism and warnings that entry will push up British food prices and force Britain to pay large subsidies to French farmers.

But in Prime Minister Heath's government there is confidence that the Conservative party will not crack in parliamentary debate and that a vote in favor of entry is assured providing the remaining issues can be resolved.

Some of them, such as the future of sterling, may be settled in the Anglo-French summit in Paris next week between Heath and President Georges Pompidou.

Others may be resolved at the next Common Market bargaining session in Luxembourg June 7.

One key issue is whether New Zealand dairy markets can be safeguarded. Some British observers suggest this could turn out to be the crucial barrier since there is much sentiment in Britain in support of New Zealand's future.

Canada gained at least one important concession during the Brussels bargaining—agreement by the six that duty-free imports of newsprint will be safeguarded through a quota system. A number of other raw materials, such as wood pulp and plywood, will be given similar treatment.

But there is concern in official Canadian quarters that enlargement of the Common Market through extension of the association principle to the Caribbean and other regions will hurt Canadian exports. These countries which accept association must give the Common Market tariff and trade preferences.

that usually affect employment figures over a period of several months. It is regarded by economists as a better indicator of unemployment trends.

While there was an 11,000 reduction in the number of unemployed people aged 55 or more, there was a sharp increase of 20,000 in the number of younger workers looking for jobs. For this under-25 group, the seasonally-adjusted unemployment rate shot up to 12.3 per cent last month, from 11.1 per cent in March. 5

While the increase in the over-all unemployment figure was contrary to the trend expected, a finance department spokesman said it was not unprecedented. There have been many cases in the past in which one month's unemployment figure appeared to bounce out of line, and next month's report could show an equally dramatic shift towards lower unemployment, he said.

	April 1971	Mar. 1971	April 1970
Labor force	8,396	8,336	8,198
Employed	7,737	7,686	7,654
Unemployed	659	650	544

Regionally, unemployment rose in the Atlantic provinces and Ontario but declined in Quebec, the Prairies and British Columbia.

The decline in Quebec, however, was slight and insufficient to pull down the seasonally-adjusted trend rate which rose to 8.4 per cent; the highest in the country.

LABOR FORCE UP

The report said that compared with a year earlier, the labor force last month was up by 198,000 or 2.4 per cent while employment was up by only 83,000 or 1.1 per cent. The number of unemployed persons was up by 115,000 or more than 21 per cent.

There was the usual springtime increase in employment last month in agriculture and construction. But the increase in trade was less than usual, and there were fewer jobs available in the service industries and government, in manufacturing and in transportation.

The figures are compiled from a monthly survey of 30,000 households conducted by the statistics bureau and analysed by the manpower department. The survey, taken last month for the week ended April 17, covers all Canada except the northern Territories and Indian reserves.

Not counted are students still in school full time, housewives not seeking outside work, and those too old or otherwise unable to work, voluntarily idle or retired.

The seasonally-adjusted figure of 6.7 per cent of the labor force unemployed in April was the highest since last September, when it was 6.8. The figure had been declining, except for a small bump upwards in December, and reached six per cent in March, giving weight to government assurances that the peak of unemployment had been passed.

Fine Boosted

EDMONTON (CP) — A fine imposed on an Alberta doctor convicted of an assault that resulted in the loss of the victim's eye was increased to $2,500 from $350 in Supreme Court.

In addition, the court's appellate division ordered Dr. Alin Patrick Brennan, 38, of Manning placed on two years probation.

Dr. Brennan was convicted of assault causing bodily harm for attacking 32-year-old William Gusulak of Manning During a party at the Manning Medical Clinic on Aug. 25.

Crown Prosecutor J. W. K. Shortreed asked the court for a jail sentence in the case, saying that the crown appealed the sentence imposed because of "the absolute ferocious violence" of the assault.

Shadow Mischief

Welfare Route For Hikers Cut

By PETER McNELLY

For some travelling young people, life on the road this summer will be no lark.

Some of these people, particularly those in the 14 to 18 age group, are runaways or have other troubles causing them to leave their home towns.

Clearly, they don't get welfare. It's not provincial policy to give welfare to persons under 19 except in special cases.

Victoria city welfare director Alex Davidson said today his offices on Cook and Panodra Streets refer people in the 14 to 18 age group to the Family and Children's Service.

Gordon Welsh, director of treatment services for the F and CS, said today the summer always means an increase in the number of troubled young transients coming to the agency for counselling.

Last week, the F and CS handled between seven and 10 cases, he said, and this likely will increase once the high schools close at the end of June.

But Welsh said he dosen't forsee a dramatic increase in this problem compared with last year's situations.

He said some of the younger people coming to the agency's offices at 1627 Fort are frightened, confused or need to get something off their chests.

Family and Children's Service social workers always are available to talk things over, and they will try to work out ways of getting the youngsters back home.

Staff can call parents and work out a way of putting the youngster on a train or plane, with the parents paying what part of the cost they can afford.

Or, Welsh said, if the individual says things are so bad back home that he doesn't want to go back, the F and CS will contact the appropriate welfare or children's aid society to arrange further counselling.

No Direct Referrals Made

Many referrals to the F and CS come from Cool-Aid. Cool-Aid staff worker Laurie Smith said today the group doesn't make direct referrals any more, but simply points out what assistance is available here.

Smith added that many young people won't have anything to do with welfare offices any more because, "after travelling around you know you get a bad reception."

"I can probably count on one hand the number of people who have asked us about welfare in the last eight months," Smith said. "They don't even pay attention to welfare agencies any more."

Young transients aged 19 and over are not given welfare unless they can prove residence. This is contrary to the spirit of the federal welfare law, the Canada Assistance Plan, but B.C.'s department of rehabilitation and social improvement never has accepted the principles of the federal act.

WANTS CONTROL

The effect of provincial policy is to make it very difficult for young people to get welfare. This is shown by Welsh's statement that 50 per cent of the local youngsters in the 16 to 18 age group who come to the F and CS for advice decide to drop the matter before going through with applying for welfare.

DETERRENT

"They say, 'if it's that much hassle to get welfare, I don't want it.' I don't agree that it should be like this, but it is a deterrent," Welsh said.

The F and CS will refer local young people to city welfare if it is evident that they have no intention of returning home and cannot find other means of support.

When it is evident that strong family and emotional problems exist, the F and CS can take the young person into its care and can call upon a variety of counselling and treatment methods.

Union Fight Closes Projects

VANCOUVER (CP) — Lathers' union members were picketing selectively at seven construction sites today in their jurisdictional dispute with the carpenters' union.

Union business agent Courtenay Burton said the pickets went up at a Chilliwack General Hospital extension and an Air Canada project at Vancouver International Airport to house the Boeing 747 aircraft.

The lathers were also picketing the Ocean Cement headquarters at Marpole, a medical building and an office building in Vancouver, an apartment project in Burnaby and a school annex.

C. J. Connaghan, head of the Construction Labor Relations Association, said his organization wants to assess the extent of the actual shutdown by other trades refusing to cross the picket lines before making a move.

In Victoria, a spokesman for the United Brotherhood of Carpenters said there are no indications of picket lines locally.

He said that generally the Vancouver Island Building and Construction Trades Council has taken a position against jurisdictional picket lines "and I hope we can maintain that good record."

Car Plows Into Crowd —4 Persons Injured

VANCOUVER (CP) — An auto involved in a two-car collision plowed into a crowd of pedestrians Wednesday afternoon, sending four to hospital.

One woman, Mrs. Elsie Terhume, 58, of Vancouver, suffered the most serious injuries, but was reported in good condition in hospital here Thursday. She received internal injuries and a fractured hip.

Police said the three other pedestrians were released after treatment in hospital.

. . . BRINCO TO GET NOD

hard-pressed to meet its rapidly-growing power load, could not provide power to the area and B.C. would welcome private industry building the electrical facility.

TAKE POWER

The government has made it quite plain to Brinco that in future B.C. Hydro might requisition the power that was developed with "proper compensation."

First indication of Brinco's interest came from a brief reference in the company's 1970 report.

Brinco is largely involved in water, mineral and timber resource development in Labrador.

The company which Brinco has brought in to do its development work in B.C. is Iskut Pulpower Ltd., which is still partially owned by Glenn Crippen of North Vancouver, a consulting engineer.

Thomas Elliott, manager of the B.C. and Yukon Chamber of Mines, described the area involved as "one of the most promising mineral areas in B.C. It is tremendously important to us."

The U.S. mining giant Kennecott Corp. has spent an estimated $6 million in proving up what is estimated to be a one-million-ton ore body with grades running as high as one per cent copper.

Meanwhile, a provincial fisheries official said there is concern for the effect of any power development proposal on the salmon fisheries of the river system.

There is also concern that any investigation by fisheries departments would come "as usual, after the fact" of major development decisions.

He said that five potential dam sites have been discussed in the past and the choice of which one to build would be critical for the fisheries of the area.

The government has been warned in the legislature in recent years that the delicate ecology of the northern half of the province will require great care to avoid environmental disasters.

The land environment and land use committee this year was given the job of making the big development decisions before huge sums had been spent on projects which in effect forced the hand of pollution control authorities.

Williston admitted in the legislature that this is what happened in the case of Utah Construction and Mining which was allowed to dump 9.3 million gallons of effluent daily into Rupert Inlet on Northern Vancouver Island by the pollution control branch.

Williston said today that the environment committee will still be in a position to judge the desirability of development proposals.

Stay Away Warning Issued

Rehabilitation Minister Phil Gaglardi announced today there are no jobs in B.C. for people from other provinces and they should stay home.

Gaglardi called a press conference to say he is asking B.C. industry to give preference to B.C. residents wherever possible when hiring.

He said "we'll do our best" for people who do come from other provinces but there is only enough economic growth going on here to handle the labor force already in the province.

"If you're coming to B.C. to work, you'd better think again," Gaglardi said to the people of Canada.

He also repeated earlier criticism of federal programs encouraging summer travel and called for Ottawa to use the money to give each province $5 million or $10 million to solve its own unemployment problems instead of shipping people across the country.

Gaglardi's warning was reminiscent of similar statements in the past from former welfare minister Dan Campbell, who often told "hippies" and other potential welfare recipients to turn around and go home.

RUSSIANS SAY POLLUTION LOSS HITS 6B RUBLES

The birds had the misfortune to alight on a swampy inlet of the Caspian Sea, one of the most polluted bodies of water in the Soviet Union.

The swans' feathers became coated with the oily mess, the government newspaper Izvestia reported. People from the town of Guryev, on the Caspian's northern shore, scrubbed the birds with detergent and sent them on their way.

Such incidents are becoming increasingly common and the Soviet Union in the last five years or so has started to think about preserving its water resources, after 50 years of all-out industrialization.

In the last few months the Soviet press has painted a grim picture of once-sparkling rivers running with manure and industrial wastes, seas splotched with oil slicks, and rare creatures such as the caviar-bearing Beluga sturgeon and white swans dying because of man's abuse of their habitat.

"Losses due to water pollution are estimated by scientists at six billion rubles a year," said Boris N. Bogdanov, chief of the agriculture ministry's department for preservation of natural resources. That is equivalent to $6.6 billion.

"Rivers are polluted by industrial and municipal sewage which is not subject to purification," Bogdanov added.

Consideration for Environment

"And the sanitary condition of all towns and villages must be improved."

The Caspian Sea provides 90 per cent of the world's sturgeon catch and 95 per cent of the black caviar. The sturgeon has been fighting a losing battle against pollution and dams that cut off his spawning grounds in the Volga River, the Caspian's main source.

The northern part of the sea is stained by hundreds of slicks from offshore oil rigs and oil derricks and refineries on shore. Soviet scientists report also that the Caspian has dropped more than seven feet since 1931 and is at its lowest level in 1,500 years.

In 1968, the government ordered installation of anti-pollution shields on all the Caspian's offshore oil rigs, declared the northern portions a fish preserve with stricter penalties for poaching, and installed water purification plants at 100 industrial enterprises along the Volga.

Even if no pollutants foul the sea, there is still the residual problem of old pollution to be cleared up, and oil drilling still competes with sturgeon fishing.

Some scientists feel it is too late to correct damage already done. It takes 30 years for sturgeon to reach spawning size. If all the adult fish die off, there won't be any new parents for many years.

268 Graduates Win $3,800

OTTAWA (CP) — Awards valued at $3,800 each have been awarded to 268 graduate students across Canada in the fields of medicine, pharmacy and dentistry, the Medical Research Council announced today.

The students ar undertaking full-time training and research leading to a master of science or doctor of philosophy degrees. They include five women who will begin research training in the audiology and speech sciences program recently established in the pediatrics department at the University of British Columbia.

The Medical Research Council is a federal funding agency.

Massive Spill Picture Painted

OTTAWA (CP)—Two mariners and two scientists Wednesday painted a grim picture that included almost inescapable shipwrecks and massiv spills of oil in British Columbia's Gulf Islands.

They appeared before the special Commons committee on environmental pollution, carrying out a study of the implications of a United States proposal to carry Alaskan oil by tanker to Cherry Point, in northwestern Washington State, from Alaska.

Capt. Wilfred Davenport, a retired Port of Vancouver pilot, and Paul LeBond, a University of B.C. oceanographer, dealt with natural conditions in the Gulf Islands-Georgia Strait area which make shipping hazardous at best and which could quickly send an oil spill on to coasts anywhere in the region.

Davenport told the committee the Gulf Islands area is one of the worst for shipping in the world, with unpredictable tides, currents, storms and fogs always waiting to bring a ship to grief.

Any ship entering the area needed a good radar set and serviceable communications equipment. If a ship did not have these, it was a menace which should not be allowed passage through the area.

Faulty Equipment, Incompetent Crew May Mean Sinking

LeBond said there is no question that an oil spill could contaminate coasts of the Gulf Islands, Vancouver Island or mainland areas of Canada and the U.S.

Generally speaking, he said, a spill of petroleum near Cherry Point would tend to flow northward into Georgia Strait. In two days it could reach Vancouver.

Regardless of how good the equipment on a supertanker might be, he said, one ship with inoperative equipment or an incompetent crew could mean a sinking.

Philip Townsley, UBC biochemist-microbiologist and an expert in bacterial degradation of oil, held out little hope to the committee that the use of bacteria to clean up oil spills is in any but experimental stages.

•

Petroleum companies, he said, have the most money to spend on such research and the most to gain. But they didn't seem interested.

But even if it was practical to use bacteria to degrade oil, the method would be useful for complete clean-up only on small spills.

Gillespie — An Old Master Still at Work

By JOHN CUNNINGHAM

TORONTO (CP) — Behind a solid barrage of present-day rock drumming, the thumping of a modern electric bass and the occasionally audible sounds of a well-played piano, the subtly-skilled trumpet notes played by Dizzy Gillespie still showed the earmarks of an old master at work.

Perhaps there was some truth to the claims of the Toronto critics who said that Gillespie, one of the founding brothers of bop some 30 years ago, had done away with the crazy, leaping solos that had placed him in the top half-dozen of the world's greatest jazz trumpeters.

But as the evening performance at Toronto's Colonial Tavern wore on, Dizzy's tightly-muted trumpet stylings carried with them some of those moments of Gillespie jazz charisma remembered well by music fans of a couple of decades ago.

His band, a five-member group made up mostly of musicians much younger than himself, has a solid rock rhythm section.

'GOTTA KEEP UP'

Yet the star, Dizzy himself, must play a bop-styled jazz with only occasional jazz hints from piano player Michael Longo.

How to overcome the electrified sound of an amplified guitar and bass, counteract the onslaught of heavy drum off-beats and still retain a distinctive jazz sound?

Stopping to buy an underground newspaper from a bearded, long-haired youth dressed in a hippie outfit, Dizzy said:

"Dixieland jazz was the message of the '20s. It was all right for its time.

"But rock 'n' roll is the music of now. I like it. Some of it is not so good. Some of it excellent."

Dizzy said his band has decided to come to a compromise.

They play bop—but it has a rock 'n' roll base.

Some Not Helping —Benson

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Edgar Benson said Wednesday that some provinces — showed they "really do not care about inflation" after agreeing last year to help fight it.

He told the Commons the problem of inflation was discussed with the provinces and they agreed that some wage guides should be followed by both the federal and provincial governments.

"I must say that beyond the meeting at which this was agreed, some of the provinces were not noteworthy in carrying out the voluntary guidelines with regard to wage settlements in respect of their own employees."

Mr. Benson spoke in reply to questions from opposition MPs about putting the subject of unemployment on the agenda of next month's federal-provincial conference in Victoria. The conference was originally intended to deal mainly with constitutional reform.

Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield asked whether the provinces agreed to fight inflation to the extent of causing higher unemployment.

PROVINCES CONSULTED

Mr. Benson said the provinces were consulted on anti-inflation policies at meetings of premiers and prime ministers, and at meetings of provincial treasurers and finance ministers.

"This (inflation) was agreed to be the major problem in Canada and . . . it was agreed that certain things, including some wage guidelines, should be adhered to by the provincial and federal governments," Mr. Benson said.

David Orlikow (NDP—Winnipeg North) asked whether Manitoba had not entered a reservation to the agreement, saying that rents and profits should be restrained as well as wages.

Mr. Benson said that was true, but he added:

"It was also indicated by some provinces—as was indicated by some members of the opposition—that they really do not care about inflation."

K & E RAILWAY BID VETOED

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian transport commission has denied a bid by the Kootenay and Elk Railway Co. to build a rail line from the rich coal fields in southeastern British Columbia to the U.S. border.

The application, which would have permitted the Kootenay and Elk to compete with Canadian Pacific Railway in hauling coal destined for Japan, was rejected on a legal point in the Railway Act.

Commission vice-president Pierre Taschereau said except for this point he would have approved the 80-mile railway from Line Creek, B.C., to Rooseville West, B.C., on other grounds.

Automatic Suspension For Drivers Ended

The provincial government has abandoned its policy of automatic 30-day suspension of drivers convicted of impaired driving.

Attorney-General Leslie Peterson said today the move results from a B.C. court of appeals decision quashing a suspension.

He said he can't argue with the court's view that the suspensions should be handed out only after an inquiry into each case.

This "procedural defect" will be corrected by the motor vehicles branch, Peterson said.

But he warned that this doesn't mean a "go soft policy" is being instituted as a result of the court decision.

"If anything, it will be the reverse," said Peterson.

Forests Ablaze In Central B.C.

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — A forest fire, which burned over 600 acres 15 miles south of here, jumped its northern boundary on Wednesday and threatened some private homes.

There is no immediate danger to Prince George and its suburbs.

A house near Hixon, about 30 miles south of this central B.C. city was destroyed by a forest fire Tuesday. At Crescent Spur, 95 miles east of Prince George, a deserted railway station and store were destroyed by a 250-acre fire that twice jumped the Fraser River.

In Victoria, the B.C. Forest Service reported 174 forest fires burning in the province and said several in the Peace River district were major problems. Strong southwest winds were forecast for the Peace River later in the week.

But Declines In B.C.

OTTAWA (CP)—Unemployment across Canada rose to 659,000 last month, an increase of 9,000 during a time when unemployment figures usually go down, the manpower department and the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported today.

British Columbia, however, bucked the trend along with the Prairies and Quebec, and recorded 72,000 jobless, down 1,000 on March.

B.C.'s percentage rate for April was 8.1 per cent unemployed, down from the 8.2 per cent March rate, but still above the national average of 7.8 per cent.

The joint report by the manpower department and statistics bureau said the national increase in jobs available between March and April "was considerably less than usual for this time of year." The number of people employed in April was an estimated 7,737,000, compared with 7,686,000 in March — an increase of only 51,000 while there were 60,000 more people in the labor force.

Because of slower-than-usual growth of new job opportunities, this spring, the seasonally-adjusted rate of unemployment shot up sharply to 6.7 per cent from 6.0 in March. In actual terms, the unemployment rate remained unchanged, however, at 7.8 per cent.

The actual figures show the percentage of the work force that is actually unemployed. The seasonally-adjusted figure is computed in order to take into account the factors such as winter or spring seasons

Brinco Will Get Nod For Stikine Power

Long before a major environmental study has been done in the area, it is "basically" a certainty that there will be power development on the Stikine River system in Northwest B.C., Resources Minister Ray Williston indicated today.

WILLISTON
. . . looking north

Williston was commenting in an interview on reports that British Newfoundland Corporation Ltd. of Montreal is involved in studies of power development on the Iskut, a tributary of the Stikine, about 200 miles northwest of Prince Rupert.

He said the cabinet environment and land use committee wouldn't conduct an ecological study of the area until a proposal for development is received.

Williston is chairman of the committee which has been given the official job of making major environment and land use decisions.

RESTRICTED

He indicated the committee would be restricted to deciding the methods and nature of development rather than the basic question of whether development should take place.

Williston said a power supply in the area, coupled with the extension of the provincially owned Pacific Great Eastern Railway to Dease Lake by 1974, would provide the missing links for a major mineral development.

He said that B.C. Hydro and Power Authority, now

Labor-Short Japan Wants West To Make Semi-Finished Products

Times News Services

VANCOUVER — A growing labor shortage has already forced Japan to expand some of its labor intensive industries to its Asian neighbors and this trend may also bring work to western Canada, a Japanese steel executive said Wednesday.

Tadayoshi Yamada, executive council member of Nippon Steel Corp., told the Pacific Basin Economic Cooperation Council that Japan has a minimal population growth and is critically short of land.

As a result, he said, the country must put work out to countries with spare labor and manufacturing facilities.

The Japanese government and industry, he added, will encourage western Canadian industrialists from Manitoba to British Columbia to develop several base mineral products into semi-finished industrial items for export to Japan.

Yamada said the process will be aided by a liberalization of foreign exchange regulations and an easing of import controls by his country.

Robert Bonner, vice-chairman of MacMillan Bloedel Ltd., a giant in the forest products industry, said British Columbia businessmen for years have urged removal of Japanese barriers to the importation of semi-manufactured goods.

"Indeed," he said, "the Japanese moves appear to be in response to Canadian urgings."

He said a direct consequence of an enlightened and co-operative Japanese trading policy could be an expansion of smelter facilities and the founding of a serious iron and steel industry in western Canada.

NO VOTE DATE SET—THATCHER

REGINA (CP) — Premier Ross Thatcher said Wednesday night the cabinet has not decided on the date for a provincial election in Saskatchewan although it likely will be either in June or October.

He denied reports that he had told a Columbus, Ohio, audience there will be a provincial election within one month.

Britain's ECM Hopes: Almost Certain

By HAROLD MORRISON

LONDON (CP) — Barring some last-minute upset, it now appears that Britain's major negotiations to join the European Common Market may be completed by July, opening the way for her formal admittance by January, 1973.

British commentators, supported by Canadian trade experts here as well as European observers, all view the latest round of bargaining at Brussels as a big breakthrough, though some key issues still remain to be resolved.

These include the future of sterling as an international reserve currency, the future of New Zealand dairy products in the British market and the question of whether the Caribbean countries will accept the idea of association with an enlarged European bloc to safeguard their sugar markets.

Opinion polls suggest that a majority of the British people still remain to be convinced that entry into the Common Market will be to their benefit. A big anti-market lobby continues its criticism and warnings that entry will push up British food prices and force Britain to pay large subsidies to French farmers.

But in Prime Minister Heath's government there is confidence that the Conservative party will not crack in parliamentary debate and that a vote in favor of entry is assured providing the remaining issues can be resolved.

Some of them, such as the future of sterling, may be settled in the Anglo-French summit in Paris next week between Heath and President Georges Pompidou.

Others may be resolved at the next Common Market bargaining session in Luxembourg June 7.

One key issue is whether New Zealand dairy markets can be safeguarded. Some British observers suggest this could turn out to be the crucial barrier since there is much sentiment in Britain in support of New Zealand's future.

Canada gained at least one important concession during the Brussels bargaining—agreement by the six that duty-free imports of newsprint will be safeguarded through a quota system. A number of other raw materials, such as wood pulp and plywood, will be given similar treatment.

But there is concern in official Canadian quarters that enlargement of the Common Market through extension of the association principle to the Caribbean and other regions will hurt Canadian exports. These countries which accept association must give the Common Market tariff and trade preferences

From Reuter—AP

CAIRO (CP) — President Anwar Sadat of Egypt told his troops Wednesday night there is only a one-per-cent chance for peace in the Middle East despite U.S. State Secretary William Rogers's mission to Arab countries and Israel.

The semi-official newspaper Al Ahram said Sadat visited the troops on the Suez canal front and told army commanders that Egypt wants peace but is ready to fight if necessary.

Al Ahram quoted Sadat as saying: "Peace chances could only be rated at one per cent even after the recent visits by the American Secretary of State dilliam Rogers to both Cairo and Tel Aviv."

"There is one thing that we cannot accept to discuss with anybody—and that is the crossing over (of the canal) by Egyptian forces after any Israeli withdrawal," he declared.

Egypt has offered to reopen the canal, closed since the 1967 Arab-Israeli war, in exchange for partial Israeli withdrawal as the first phase of total evacuation. It also insists on the right to send forces across the waterway but the Israelis said they could only accept a civil administrative force such as the police.

Land Bylaws To Be Bared

TERRACE, B.C. (CP)—Deputy Municipal Affairs Minister Jim Baird has ordered Terrace council to show to a local newspaper two land purchase bylaws it tried to keep secret.

Mr. Baird issued the order after receiving a complaint from the Herald, a weekly newspaper here.

"All public bylaws are open for scrutiny once they are adopted, no matter what they are," Mr. Baird said.

Terrace Mayor Victor Jolliffe said one deal involves six acres of an eight-acre municipal plot which are to be sold to MacGillis and Gibbs Pole Co. for $87,001.
